SALE OF W. & A. WARRANTS FOR 10 YEARS APPROVED BY SENATE FINANCE COMMITTEE

Council Re-establishes Atlanta Water Discounts

RESCINDING ACTION TO SAVE $500,000 FOR 57,000 USERS

Earlier Ordinance Abolishing Deductions Abrogated; $75,000 To Be Returned to Consumers.

NEW FINANCIAL PROBLEM FACED

Members of Committee Will Begin Study of Money Situation at Meeting Monday.

Discounts on water bills for Atlanta's 57,000 customers were re-established Wednesday afternoon when Mayor James L. Key approved councilmanic measures abrogating ordinances which attempted to abolish the water discounts. At the same session council directed that more than $75,000 already collected from consumers be returned to them or credited on bills to be rendered in the future.

In a comparatively short session, council adopted unanimously recommendations of Alderman J. Charlie Murphy, chairman of the finance committee of council, and abrogated a former ruling which provided for collection of gross amounts of water bills instead of allowing the discount.

Council Capitulates.

This action was a complete capitulation on the part of the borough, and means that all water bills in the future will carry provision for discounts if paid in the customary 10-day period from the date they are rendered.

No effort was made to balance the January finance sheet which carried an anticipation of about $500,000 from the water discount elimination measures.

Members of the finance committee will begin a study of the fiscal problem at a meeting beginning at 10 o'clock Monday morning with prospects that about $400,000 of the amount which must be absorbed will be anticipated from receipts in rounding up tax dodgers.

Councilman Claude L. Barnwell, chairman of the tax committee, declared Wednesday he had been informed by Joe Little, tax assessor, that a large sum will be obtained from this source.

On motion of the bridge committee a previous resolution, authorizing Mayor Key to sign an agreement with the N., C. & St. L. railway for erection of piers under a proposed new Broad street viaduct, was returned to the bridge committee for further consideration.

Mayor Key appeared before council, stating there were two provisions of the plan as passed which he did not think fair to the borough.

Key Objects to Paper.

One was that on written notice from the railroad, the borough would be forced to remove its supports to the viaduct and the other was that the borough would be a tenant under sufferance at the conclusion of the present lease of the railroad from the state.

"I think this matter so important that it should be open to negotiation in an effort to see if the borough and the railway cannot get together in bearing the cost of the bridge," the mayor told council. "I do not think it is the borough's duty to stand the entire cost of rebuilding the viaduct."

The bridge committee asked $68,500 for rebuilding purposes.

JURY IS COMPLETED TO TRY INDIAN WOMAN

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 18.—(AP)—The jury which will try Lila Jimerson, Cayuga Indian woman, a second time for the murder of Mrs. Clotilde Marchand, wife of Henri Marchand, an artist, last March, was completed today.

The jury comprises two accountants, one carpenter, three salesmen, a paymaster, a clerk, a garage owner, a farmer, the vice president of a company and a pattern maker.

Mother Saves Child At Cost of Own Life

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—(UP)—Mrs. Minnie Schwartz today sacrificed her life in keeping with the tradition that a mother must think first of her child's safety. She was going to market with her son, Arnold, 4.

A truck, out of control, made toward her. She tossed the child to safety and was crushed to death a moment later. Had she not thought only of her child she could have jumped and saved herself as well.

ALFONSO AVOIDS DICTATOR RULE IN RESTLESS SPAIN

King Names Aged Admiral Premier and Government Is Formed Without Violence.

ALFONSO REPORTED CHATEAU PURCHASER

HENDAYE, France, Feb. 18.—(AP)—A report spread along the Franco-Spanish frontier tonight that Alfonso XIII of Spain had, through a "straw man," purchased a chateau at Talence, near Bordeaux.

This was interpreted here to mean that the king is prepared to take refuge in France should need arise, but the general feeling is that he would never "run away."

Instead, say those who know the Spanish monarch best, he likely would retire to the chateau voluntarily to permit free functioning of the constituent assembly which his new cabinet is said to have promised and which would decide whether Spain is to become a republic, like her numerous offsprings in the Americas, or be converted into a "democratic" monarchy similar to that of England.

BY CLARENCE DUBOSE.

MADRID, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Spain tonight had a new government, peacefully formed, and was looking forward to at least a period of calm after the political turmoil of the last five days.

Admiral Juan Bautista Aznar, staunch royalist and political neutral, heads the ministry formed today by King Alfonso in a successful effort to head off another military distatorship like that of Miguel Prime De Rivera.

The king called for no participation on the part of the left, socialist and republican elements, and their attitude remained problematic. The public generally, however, seemed to be waiting quietly until the program and policies of the new government could be formulated and put into effect.

The cabinet that replaces that of Damaso Berenguer includes Berenguer himself and the Count of Romanones and the Marquis of Alhucemas, the men most responsible for his overthrow.

It is formed of right monarchists with liberal, conservative and Catalan independents represented and according to its chief the heart of its

ROAD CONTRACTS TOTAL $1,000,000

Road and bridge construction contracts totaling $1,044,135.90 were awarded by the state highway board Wednesday. The letting was the second this month.

A third award, which Chairman Barnett said would bring the total to approximately $4,000,000, will be made February 24.

Thirteen contracts were awarded Wednesday. The successful contractors and the amounts of their bids were:

Whitley Construction Company, LaGrange, 4.28 miles of paving in Hart county, on Hartwell-Anderson road, ending at the South Carolina line, $101,400.06.

Beckham-Lawler Construction Company, Perry, 7.6 miles of grading in Morgan county on Madison-Watkinsville road, $63,036.97. Nicholas Con-

Censor Says Carroll Chorines Appear Nude in 'Sketch Book'

CHICAGO, Feb. 18. — (AP) — A sketch in the nude of Earl Carroll's "Sketch Book" was drawn today by a censor attempting to prove the show obscene.

The trial of 28 chorines and four principals, begun after Judge Justin F. McCarthy overruled a defense motion to quash the information, hinged from the outset upon one scene in which the chorus dances behind a veil of gauze.

With the giggles of chorus girls supplying a musical setting, Miss Effie Sigler, chairman of the censor board, testified that "the women seemingly were nude."

"The bodies of the dancers," Miss Sigler testified, "were all exposed."

A bathroom scene was also portrayed by the censor. She said the chorine therein was "represented as being nude."

Asked if she could identify any of the chorus girls in court, Miss Sigler said:

"No, I couldn't distinguished them without their make-up on."

Miss Sigler will be cross-examined by the defense tomorrow.

The "Sketch Book" was raided last Friday night by police. It has been running since under a judge's order.

Stars of Golf Firmament Play Junior League Benefit; Bobby Jones and Golden Are Tied by Sarazen and Smith

Four of the nation's greatest golfers gathered on the old course at East Lake Wednesday afternoon to play an exhibition match for the benefit of the Junior League's ward in the Henrietta Egleston Memorial Hospital for Children. They are, left to right, Johnny Golden, chunky pro, who recently won the rich Agua Caliente tourney; Bobby Jones, Atlanta's own master of them all; Horton Smith, stellar professional shot-maker from Joplin, Mo., and Gene Sarazen, swarthy little Italian, who has been cracking par for many years. Bobby and Johnny paired against Gene and Horton, the match ending all even on the 18th green. Staff photo by Kenneth Rogers.

BY RALPH McGILL.

Gene Sarazen's approach shot from the rough and a 12-foot putt which he dropped for a par three on the eighteenth green Wednesday afternoon at East Lake Club gave him and Horton Smith a half with Bobby Jones and Johnny Golden in their four-ball foursome.

A curling putt of 20 feet went down for Bobby Jones on the sixteenth green for a birdie three to put him and Golden one up. Bobby Jones tried one of 30 feet on the eighteenth. It rolled straight almost up to the lip of the cup as the gallery held its breath—and then swerved a hair's breadth to one side and stayed out. Sarazen followed with the putt that halved the match.

At least 2,000 people, badly bitten by the golf bug, scampered in the wake of the foursome which was playing for the benefit of the Junior League's ward in the Henrietta Memorial Hospital for Children.

It was one of the finest galleries Atlanta ever turned out. East Lake's old course fairly swarmed with golf addicts. They had a beautiful day for it. There was a brisk wind blowing across the course that rippled the lake into iridescent lines. The turf was soaked from a Tuesday rain and the emerald winter greens were in midsummer condition.

Marching with the gallery, just one of the fans, was Max Schmeling, heavyweight champion of the world, and one of the maddest of golf fans. He leaped ditches, hurried to vantage points about the green and behaved as

Auto Thief Asks Cop To Push His Own Car

PATERSON, N. J., Feb. 18.—(UP)—"Give me a hand here, will you, officer?", asked Leon McChesney, of Syracuse, N. Y., who was struggling to push a balky automobile. "The battery's gone dead."

"Sure, I'll give you two hands, young fellow," answered Patrolman Roy Helgenhurst, as he yanked McChesney away from the car to a police station. "The car you're trying to push is mine."

COMMITTEE VOTES BONUS BILL OVER HOOVER PROTEST

Senate Expected To Pass Vet Loan Act Today. Presidential Veto Is Expected.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—(AP)—A firmly worded letter from President Hoover was impotent today to halt the swarm of administration senators to the support of the veterans' loan bill.

Scarcely an hour after it had been read to the senate finance committee the measure was approved by that group with Senator Watson, the republican floor leader, voting for it.

A short while later the senate agreed to take the bill up and vote on it tomorrow. Its opponents are seriously doubtful of their ability to sustain a veto.

Meanwhile the house worked on appropriation bills and approved the conference report on the billion-dollar treasury-postoffice measure. The report is still to be acted on by the senate.

Muscle Shoals conferees came to an agreement. All the senate managers and a majority of the house conferees signed a compromise under which he government would operate the power plant and lease the nitrate plant to private interests for the production of fertilizer.

The senate foreign relations committee unanimously disapproved a treaty with Canada under which certain water power rights at Niagara Falls would be leased to private interests, with the latter taking measures to prevent erosion of the falls as compensation. The treaty had already beene approved by the Canadian parliament.

Chairman Legge urged emergency action for the relief of the farmers in testimony before the house ways and means committee. He indorsed the Burtness bill for a 12-month embargo on wheat and other selected agricultural commodities.

Former Postmaster-General New vigorously defended the record of his administration in the negotiation of postal leases, before the senate committee investigating such contracts. He denied the St. Paul commercial station lease was signed at his direction with the name of John H. Bartlett, first assistant postmaster-general.

The senate judiciary committee selected John W. Davis to act as special counsel for the senate in the court test of George Otis Smith's right to sit as chairman of the federal power commission.

CONDITION IS MADE THAT SCHOOLS GET HALF OF PROCEEDS

16-to-4 Vote Comes as Distinct Surprise to Supporters of Battle-Allen House Measure.

$800,000 TO REMAIN FOR INSTITUTIONS

Goode Amendment, in Effect, Turns 80 Per Cent of Sale Value Over to Schools.

BY R. E. POWELL.

Sale of Western & Atlantic railroad warrants for 10 years received the approval of the senate finance committee, voting 16 to 4, Wednesday afternoon on condition that half of the proceeds first be allocated to the school deficit and that the schools share on a pro rata basis in the remaining half of the $3,400,000 the discount plan is expected to yield.

The senate vote came as a distinct surprise to friends of the bill, some of whom quickly assented to the senate amendment. Before the committee went into executive session Senator George W. Lankford, chairman, an opponent of the bill, had predicted that it would be reported out of the committee favorably.

Allocation of the first half of the yield to the schools was provided for in an amendment, introduced by Senator George Goode, which the committee adopted by a vote of 17 to 3. Its effect, committee members said, would be to turn over about 80 per cent of the total sale value to the schools, leaving approximately $800,000 for the charitable institutions.

Diversion of highway funds was discussed in the executive meeting, members said, but no diversion substitute to the Battle-Allen bill, which the house passed, 146 to 50, was offered. The Goode amendment has the support of the common school bloc in the house but its ultimate fate was regarded uncertain in view of the known attitude of the house and the prophecy of friends of the bill that it would not be approved when the bill comes to a vote on the senate floor.

Action of the committee on the bill immediately brought predictions from some legislators of an adjournment next week but others, notably in the senate, were inclined to think that there will be two more weeks of the special session after this one ends.

The senate ended a week's debate Wednesday by passing, 35 to 7, a bill designed to strengthen the present motor vehicle regulations act, and then proceeded immediately with consideration of a second measure to regulate the size of busses and trucks and other phases of their operation not dealt with in the first bill.

In the house a battle giving promise of long duration opened on the new

INDICTMENTS SEEN IN STATE PROBE

Grand Jury Action Looms as Result of Tennessee Investigation.

BY RALPH WHEATLEY.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Feb. 18.—(AP)—With the grand jury in the background, the legislative committee investigating state finances pressed forward today to uncover additional evidence on which indictments will be sought as a result of the loss of large sums of state funds in bank crashes of last year.

Tangible proof that indictments will be sought on the revelations of the committee was shown today by the appearance at the capitol of Richard M. Atkinson, district attorney, of Nashville, his assistant, Carlton Loser, and two criminal court judges, Chester K. Hart and Charles G. Gilbert.

They told the committee before today's session opened that they were prepared to proceed with indictments

Tidal Wave of Disapproval Overwhelms Dixie 'Dunkers'

If you look it up in Webster's, you'll not find the word called "dunk,"
And we below the Dixie line believe it is the bunk.
In homes of our aristocrats or homes that seem more humble,
When eating our potlikker, into it our 'pone we crumble.

The foregoing quatrain—four lines, anyway—by J. H. Wofford, of Cartersville, Ga., condenses in rhymed logic the current situation in the dunking or crumbling controversy.

The latest news is that Governor Huey Long, LL.D. and senator-elect, has been inducted into the movie-talkies. This strategy on the part of Governor Long gives credence to the charges made Wednesday by Nunnally Johnson, of Columbus, Ga., and New York, the noted short story writer, that Governor Long, consciously or unconsciously, is "being used as a cat's-paw by the powerful dunking interests of the north to bring Dixie into disrepute."

In Georgia Wednesday the question of "to dunk or not to dunk" stirred the Georgia legislature when Senator Shelby Myrick, of Savannah, asserted that the matter should be investigated. He startled his colleagues by stating that he sides with Governor Huey Long, and thus aligned himself definitely with the "dunkers." Equally strange was the fact that no one "booed" the heretofore astute and able young state senator, son of one who for years was one of Georgia's ablest editors, Mrs. Marie Louise Myrick, formerly publisher of the Americus Times-Recorder.

Still another phase of the potlikker and cornpone controversy was the announcement by a leading Atlanta department store that it would today attempt to assist in clarifying the dunking and anti-dunking situation. Potlikker and cornpone will be served free with every order in the store's restaurant and guests will be given an opportunity to cast their ballots for or against dunking.

Northern Dunking Interests Assailed.

But to return to the charges made by Nunnally Johnson. They were outlined in a communication telegraphed from Miami Beach, Fla., and addressed to the Potlikker and Cornpone editor of The Constitution. It follows in full:

Dunking is a crude method of attacking potlikker which was started among the lower classes of the slums of the north in direct imitation of the fine old aristocratic southern practice of crumbling cornpone. Consciously or unconsciously Governor Long

POTLIKKER WARFARE GETS INTO "TALKIES"

BATON ROUGE, La., Feb. 18. (AP)—The potlikker warfare today was extended at its source to include the talking movies, when Governor Huey P. Long, exponent of cornpone dunking, made a "talkie" speech reiterating his principles on the subject. A movie sound truck rolled up to the executive mansion, and the governor delivered for the benefit of film audiences his pronunciament on how potlikker should be eaten.

Myrick, Ardent 'Dunker,' Seeks Senate Probe of Burning Issue

Potlikker and cornpone, the latest issue to divide the great and near-great in the south and certain other spots of these United States, will be officially investigated by the state senate of Georgia if Senator Shelby Myrick, of Savannah, has his way about it.

The first district senator announced to his colleagues, when the session opened Wednesday, that he is stringing along with Governor Huey P. Long and voting to dunk the cornpone rather than crumble it in the potlikker. But that isn't why he wants the famous southern dish put under the legislative microscope.

"This thing has become a national question," Myrick said, "and I think it ought to be investigated by the

GOV. F. C. EMERSON OF WYOMING DIES

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Feb. 18.—(AP) Governor Frank C. Emerson, of Wyoming, died tonight.

The governor's death followed an illness of only five days. He left his office for home with a slight attack of influenza last Friday and the ailment developed into pneumonia.

Earlier in the day the belief had been expressed by his physicians that he had rallied slightly.

Announcement of the governor's death was made shortly before 9 p. m., mountain time.

He was the second Wyoming governor to die in office within a period of seven years. Governor William B. Ross died in office in 1924.

Governor Emerson, who was 48 years old, was the second chief executive in the history of the state to be honored by re-election after serving a complete term.

Officers' Struggle for Control Caused Air Crash Which Killed 9

PLYMOUTH, England, Feb. 18.—(AP)—After witnesses had testified that two pilots were contending for the controls of a huge seaplane of the royal air force just before it crashed into Batten bay with the loss of nine lives February 4, a coroner's jury today returned a verdict of accidental deaths.

From his hospital bed Flight Lieutenant M. H. Ely, one of the survivors, substantiated testimony of other witnesses that his hand was knocked away by Wing Commander C. G. Tucker, as Ely sought to take the controls when the ship was about to slight.

The coroner's jury held that the accident was caused by the inexperience of Tucker, who died in the crash. Although he was ranking officer on the plane, he was taking instructions from Lieutenant Ely, who was actually in charge.

Among witnesses of the accident who testified was Aircraftsman Shaw, who became famous for his daring exploits in Arabia under the name of Colonel Thomas E. Lawrence. He said that he would have flown with Commander Tucker if ordered to do so, but not if given his choice.

Shoals Conferees Break Ten-Year-Long Deadlock

Hoover Disapproval of Compromise Bill Feared by Leaders, However.

BY NATHAN ROBERTSON.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—(AP)—The 10-year-old deadlock between the house and senate over Muscle Shoals legislation was broken today, but many congressional leaders were apprehensive that the compromise agreement faced a veto by President Hoover if approved by congress.

The bill which emerged today from the conference committee after a year of negotiations provides for government operation of the power plant at Muscle Shoals, Ala., and lease of the nitrate plants to private interests if possible.

If the nitrate plants are not leased within a year after the bill passes, they would be operated by the government for experimental production of fertilizer.

Government Lines.

The measure also provides for government construction of transmission lines to distribute power from Wilson dam, completion of the steam power plant, and construction of the Cove creek dam on the Clinch river in Tennessee.

The provision for government construction of transmission lines is the controversial point which advocates of the measure fear may prevent its final enactment.

One congressional leader who has talked frequently with President Hoover on Muscle Shoals legislation said "there is not one chance in a million that he will sign this bill."

He predicted a veto which would throw the issue back into the next congress and into the 1932 presidential campaign.

The conference report will be submitted to the house tomorrow. Leaders planned to bring it up Friday.

Early congressional approval of the bill was predicted. Chairman Snell, of the house rules committee, indicated it would be passed by the house and senate leaders said it would meet little opposition on their side of the capitol.

Quick Action.

"It will be brought up in the senate as soon as it passes the house," Chairman McNary, of the senate conferees, said.

The assistant republican leader added that with the senate up to date on consideration of appropriation bills there would be no trouble in obtaining consideration.

The settlement came as a surprise to leaders in both houses, as the conferees had apparently reached an impasse after having thrown out an agreement two months ago.

All three senate conferees, Senators McNary, Norris, republican, Nebraska, and Smith, democrat, South Carolina, signed the report. Three of the five house conferees also signed. They were Representatives Wurzbach, republican, Texas; Quin, democrat, Mississippi, and Fisher, democrat, Tennessee.

Representative Ransley, republican, Pennsylvania, refused to sign and Representative Reece, republican, Tennessee, said he would decide before the report was submitted tomorrow whether to concur.

Based on Compromise.

The agreement was based on a compromise plan for leasing the nitrate plants under which the lessee would be allowed to purchase for manufacturing electro-chemical products off the government reservation 15 per cent of the power he used for manufacture of fertilizer at the government plants.

Senator Norris, author of the original senate bill for government operation of the $150,000,000 plants, explained the bill would eventually provide between 400,000 and 500,000 primary horsepower at Wilson dam.

RADIO FOR POLICE APPROVED BY KEY

Last Obstacle Removed in Way of Purchase of Equipment.

Every obstacle in the way of immediate purchase of police radio equipment was removed Wednesday when Mayor James L. Key affixed his signature of approval to a councilmanic resolution authorizing the police committee of council to buy the equipment, retain the advice of experts in installation and to do any other service incident to placing the system at the disposal of the department.

Immediately after the mayor had sanctioned the measure, Alderman Alvin L. Richards, chairman of the police committee of council, declared he would call a meeting of the police committee just as soon as he could get all members together, probably Saturday afternoon, to consider buying the equipment.

It will take about two months to get the system working, it is estimated, inasmuch as 30 days are required to obtain a permit to establish a short wave system through the department of commerce at Washington.

The Atlanta system will be the only one in Georgia to date, and one of the few in the south.

Mr. Key also completed signing all other councilmanic papers passed to him from the regular meeting of council Monday afternoon, and vetoed only one—that permitting establishment of a dance marathon at the Atlanta theater by the Ross Amusement Company.

Talented Atlanta Dancers Will Appear At Fashion and Beauty Extravaganza Here

Erma Llorens, little pupil of the Semon-White School of Dancing, who will appear on the program of stage dance numbers to be presented for the Greater Atlanta Fashion and Beauty Extravaganza next week at the Paramount theater.

Varied and attractive is the program of stage dance numbers devised by Miss Virginia Semon, of the Semon-White studio, for the Greater Atlanta Fashion and Beauty Extravaganza which comes to the Paramount theater next week in connection with two exceptional screen features, sponsored by the Young Matrons Circle as a benefit for Tallulah Falls school.

One of the cleverest presentations will be a tap dance ensemble featuring eight young pupils of stellar talents, who will wear smart sports costumes especially designed for very young misses. All the dance numbers will have abundant color, rhythm and speed, and several of the specialties promise to rival the professional stage.

Music with just the right snap and verve will be provided by Tom Brannon and his orchestra who two days ago were engaged by the management of the Paramount theater to add their talents to the already brilliant array assembled for the fashion and beauty revue. The inclusion of this popular orchestra and the announcement that Charles Wynne, favorite Atlanta tenor, will appear in several numbers has increased anticipation to pleasing proportions.

Major business firms participating in the extravaganza are J. P. Allen & Co., who will furnish all costumes and accessories for the fashion sequences; Muse's Men's Shop, Maier & Berkele, Georgia Power Company, Nunnally's, Anthony-Buick Company, Foremost Dairies, C. J. Kamper Grocery Company, Southern Business College, Wofford Oil Company, Duffie-Freeman Furniture Company, Jacobs Pharmacy, Capital Electric Company.

Forty members of society's younger contingent, including young matrons, debutantes and sub-debs, will give beauty and charm to the fashion revue, each modeling the newest and loveliest of the season's style creations.

Tickets for the event are now on sale at the headquarters office of the fashion revue on the mezzanine of J. P. Allen's. The Paramount theater's regular evening admission scale of 50 cents prevails and the largest percentage comes to Tallulah Falls school from the advance ticket sale.

The screen features chosen for presentation in connection with the extravaganza are "Kismet," starring Otis Skinner, the distinguished stage star, for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, and "Viennese Nights," a colorful musical comedy featuring Vivienne Segal, Walter Pidgeon and Alexander Gray, for Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

WEALTHY TENNESSEEAN ENDS LIFE IN MEMPHIS

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 18.—(AP)—Walter A. Frank, 59, wealthy land owner of Collierville, Tenn., was found today fatally wounded in the lavatory of a downtown business building with a bullet wound in his brain. A pistol was found nearby. Police said their investigation determined that the wound was self-inflicted. He died soon after he was taken to a hospital.

Relatives said they knew of no reason that might have prompted him to shoot himself other than he had been in ill health.

'I Pay for the Hay!' Says Big Bill; 'Sneaks!' Says Lyle in Gay Chicago

BY FREDERICK C. OTHMAN.

CHICAGO, Feb. 18.—(UP)—His honor, the mayor, himself, pays for all the hay his elephant eats, and without recourse to public funds, Mayor William Hale Thompson assured a cheering campaign audience today.

The mayor, running for renomination at the republican primaries next Tuesday, had been accused by Judge John H. Lyle, his principal opponent, of using the taxpayers' money to feed his elephant, his camel, and the other performers in his big "jackass political circus."

"Sure my elephant eats four bales of hay a day," the mayor confided to the throngs which packed Cohan's grand opera house. "But, by golly, I pay for that hay myself. And the nutty judge is a liar when he says I don't."

Thompson went on to explain why he had sued Lyle for $100,000 for criminal libel after the latter had accused him of misappropriating funds collected for flood relief sufferers.

"Lyle is the biggest crook and the biggest liar that ever ran for public office," the mayor shouted, getting red in the face the while. "That's why I sued him for $100,000 when he called your mayor a crook.

"I don't expect to collect the $100,000 because the nutty judge is always broke. So maybe I can get him put in jail for criminal libel. But if I did that I'd have to pay his board."

The judge also was getting red in the face, meanwhile, at the Apollo theater over what he called the "dastardly trickery of the Thompson crowd of crooks." Announcements went mysteriously to all the newspaper offices that Lyle didn't plan to make any speech today.

Thus, when he went to the Apollo theater to speak as usual, an audience was lacking. His brass band and his eloquent cohorts hurried outside to drum up as much business as possible. When a handful of listeners had been herded into the theater by dint of much persuasion and horn tooting, the judge had this to say:

"The Thompson crowd is responsible for this. These seats are empty because lies have been circulated about this meeting. Old Blubber Jaw Thompson's men would stoop to anything to beat me."

But all is fair in love and war and apparently in Chicago politics.

So the crowds jammed around the grand opera house, gaped at the pictures of Earl Carroll's "56 most beautiful girls in the world," and pushed inside to see the mayor's show.

There was music by the silver-voiced police quartet, each member of which weighs close to 300 pounds, including star and pistol. There was speechmaking by an assortment of gentlemen who threw their "ain'ts" and their "they don'ts" around with reckless verbal abandon and finally there was the grand entrance of the mayor.

The police quartet reached an ear-splitting crescendo in a song concerning love in good old Barcelona. The lights flashed dim. Somebody stumbled crashingly over a chunk of stage property belonging to Carroll's "Sketch Book," and in trod the mayor.

He doffed his topcoat, removed his 10-gallon hat, accepted a cigar from a bystander on the stage and reached for the water pitcher.

"This water is pretty thin stuff," said he after draining his glass. "Ugh. Give me beer, anytime."

"Yeah, beer," howled a citizen in the gallery. "Hooray for Bill Thompson. He'll give us back our beer."

The audience stamped and screamed and whistled. Thompson bowed, grinning, and the police quartet obliged once again, this time with "Sweet Adeline," while the mayor assembled his notes.

COLLEGE PRESIDENT HELD AS DRUNK DRIVER

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 18.—(AP) Dr. H. H. Cherry, 66, president of Western Kentucky Teachers' College at Bowling Green, Ky., was arrested today on a charge of operating a motor vehicle while drunk after a minor traffic accident here today.

Dr. Cherry's companion, W. M. Pearce, 51, head of the college's extension department, was charged with drunkenness in a public place. They were slated to appear in police court tomorrow.

Dr. Cherry has been president of the state institution since its organization in 1907. He is widely known in the state, and some years ago sought the democratic nomination for governor. Mr. Pearce was at one time president of Ogden University at Bowling Green, which closed a few years ago.

Dr. Cherry ate today issued the following statement:

"I was not intoxicated and did not have a bottle of whisky in my pocket. A car in front of mine at Fourth and Walnut streets, waiting for a red signal light to change, backed into my car while standing still, and caused slight damage to the car in front. A dispute arose as to the blame for the damage, and while engaged in this controversy, two policemen appeared and arrested me for violating a traffic ordinance."

GREENSBORO INSURANCE EXECUTIVE KILLS SELF

GREENSBORO, N. C., Feb. 18.—(AP)—F. E. Cann, 46, executive vice president of the Pilot Life Insurance Company of Greensboro, died in a hospital here today two hours after he was found in his home with a pistol bullet through his right temple.

Coroner W. W. Harvey, of Guilford county, termed the death an "apparent suicide," and said no inquest would be held unless requested by the Cann family.

SHERIFF CONVICTED FOR KILLING YOUTHS

MARIANNA, Fla., Feb. 18.—(AP) J. Webb Larramore, farmer and former deputy sheriff, today was sentenced to die in the electric chair for killing two youths near here on the night of December 6.

Sentence was pronounced by Circuit Judge Amos Lewis. The condemned man appeared cool and unmoved. He said his case would be appealed to the state supreme court and he felt sure the high court would save him from execution.

Larramore was convicted of the first-degree murder of Leslie Harrell and Alex Porter, both minors. The jury did not recommend mercy.

Dry Administrator Is Held for Contempt

WILMINGTON, Del., Feb. 18.—(AP)—Harold D ("Three-Gun") Wilson, Delaware's prohibition administrator, today was held in contempt of court after he had refused to reveal what member of the Democratic League Club here had given him the key he used to make a raid on the club's headquarters here last October.

The league has entered suit asking that the evidence be suppressed and the seized property returned, on the ground that it was obtained illegally. Argument in the suit was begun today and Wilson was called as a witness.

When directed by Federal Judge John P. Nields to answer concerning the key, Wilson said:

"I have the utmost respect for the court, but I refuse the information about the key. It was given to me in strictest confidence, and as a man of honor, I refuse to answer."

MADE STUDY OF RHEUMATIC PAIN

Some years ago, a certain, well known doctor made a special study of rheumatism and its kindred ailments. He originated Prescription C-2223 and used it successfully in treating thousands of rheumatic cases. C-2223 drives from the system toxic acids and poisonous waste matter which are usually the cause of inflammation, swelling and pain. All prescription drug stores have on hand generous size bottles of C-2223 which they will now sell to you on an absolute money-back guarantee. —(adv.)

LOUIS WOLHEIM, NOTED ACTOR, DIES

Dieting To Reduce for New Role Caused Death, Says Doctor.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 18.—(AP)—The story of Louis Wolheim has ended.

Death came to the great character actor of stage and screen today, closing a life which, if Wolheim had not lived it, might be set down as only an entrancing tale of fiction.

He passed away at the apex of his career after suffering from cancer of the stomach. At the bedside kneeled the companion of his life and his only survivor, his widow.

He was 50 years old, but for Hollywood he was too young to die. His famous portrayals as the "tough guy" in many pictures and stage productions had brought him to the zenith of his life in the world of make believe, and when death came there laid before him the greatest promise of his career.

Wolheim was one of the few in Hollywood who tumbled by accident into the life of the actor and long before his debut, fate had prepared him for his parts.

He was born in New York city on March 28, 1880, and for 38 years he lived the life of an ordinary man. He graduated in 1905 from Cornell University with a degree of engineering. His stocky build well befitted him for football and it was during a game with Pennsylvania in 1904 that the battered nose which later became famous on stage and screen was first misshapen.

Running with the ball as a halfback, he was tackled hard and his nose broken.

School life over, he became an instructor in mathematics at Cornell Preparatory school and followed amateur athletics.

In 1918 Lionel Barrymore, the noted actor, was dining in a New York cafe. He saw across the room, a broad-shouldered, pugnacious appearing man. The striking, bulldog features of the face caught the actor's eye and although he had never seen Wolheim before, he introduced himself and explained his visit.

Wolheim had an appearance that would suit admirably a part in a production, "The Judge," in which Barrymore was appearing, and after some persuasion the actor induced Wolheim to give up his teaching and come to the stage.

Success greeted him almost from the start. Few who saw the stage production "What Price Glory" have forgotten the hard-boiled Captain Flagg, or Wolheim in Eugene O'Neill's famous play, "The Hairy Ape."

In 1926 his success on the stage brought him film offers and he turned to the camera. The tough top sergeant in "Two Arabian Knights," his role in "The Racket" and the two-fisted veteran soldier of "All Quiet on the Western Front" were regarded as his outstanding work in the films.

Shortly before his death he had finished "Gentlemen's Fate," which is yet to be released and he had been cast as the managing editor in the "Front Page," which is in production.

Like another great character actor, the late Lon Chaney, Wolheim lived quietly in Hollywood. Although his friends were legion, he never was seen in society.

WOMAN SOUGHT IN GANG DEATH

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—(AP)—The slaying of Frank Marco, Chicago gangster of many aliases and rackets, launched police on an extensive search for his attractive blonde companion today.

After the discovery of his bullet-pierced and knife-scarred body yesterday, police identified him with the cooperation of Chicago authorities and by checking on a hotel room key found in his pocket. He was wanted for questioning in connection with the killings of Tony Lombardo, head of Unione Siciliano, and Jake Lingle, Chicago Tribune reporter.

PRISONER KIDNAPED FROM COURTROOM

CLEVELAND, Feb. 18.—(AP)—When Cleveland detectives want a man, they get him.

Today they kidnaped "Pittsburgh Hymie" Martin from a Pittsburgh courtroom, hid him in a big sedan and successfully made the 50-mile dash to the Ohio border, thence into Cleveland, where Martin is wanted for the slaying of William E. Potter, former city councilman.

He was rushed out of the court while his attorney clamored for time to appeal the judge's denial of a writ of habeas corpus, even before the denial was signed. Cleveland officials said there was no chance of Pittsburgh getting "Hymie" back again. They acted quickly to prevent further legal delays.

Sullivan Expects Passage Of Bonus Bill Unchanged

Writer Says Senate Will Rush Vote Without Amendments; Veto Anticipated.

BY MARK SULLIVAN.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—The course of the bonus bill is now clear for final enactment in the briefest possible time.

The amendments to the bill that will be proposed in the senate fall into two categories. Three of the amendments will express an attempt to make the burden on the treasury lighter. One amendment will propose that the privilege of borrowing on the bonus certificates be restricted to those veterans who are in need. A second will propose that the payments to the veterans be made in installments over six months or a year, so as to avert the immediate burden falling on the treasury. A third will propose a mechanism by which the veterans could borrow the stipulated sums on their certificates from banks so that the load would not fall on the treasury directly.

All three of these proposed amendments have the intent to ameliorate the difficulties of the treasury. All three almost certainly will be defeated. The mood of the senate is not to lessen in any way the benefits conferred on the ex-service men by the bill as it now stands after passage in the house. The bill as it now stands is the minimum that congress wants to do for the ex-service men. Any attempt to reduce it will find short shrift.

Another group of proposed amendments by the senate look in the contrary direction. They propose to enlarge the benefits to the ex-service men. One such amendment would charge no interest to the veterans or would lower the rate named in the bill as it now stands, which is 4 1-2 per cent. A second amendment in the interest of the veterans would have the government pay the veterans at once in cash the entire face amount of the certificates due in 1945, amounting to an aggregate of three and a half billion dollars. This is the real objective of the movement in behalf of the veterans as it was when the movement began.

As respects these amendments to enlarge the benefits to the veterans they as well as any other amendment favorable to the ex-service men would normally be adopted by the senate by a large majority. For a special reason, they probably will not be adopted now. They may not even be introduced. Senate leaders of the early movement to give the veterans the entire sum are now earnestly persuading their fellow senate spokesmen of the veterans not to introduce this amendment or any other.

The motives for abstaining are two. It is feared that if amendments enlarging the benefits are introduced they will be debated at length and will therefore endanger the bill as a matter of time. It is feared also that if the senate should attempt to enlarge the benefits, there would ensue deadlock between senate and house over their respective versions of the bill. This likewise would consume time and thereby endanger the bill.

A final fear has to do with the presumed necessity of passing the bill over a presidential veto. It is feared that if the bill were enlarged, the president's veto might be sustained. It is anticipated the president will veto the bill in any form in which it is likely to pass. The president has suggested changes which would make the bill less unsatisfactory to him. The president's suggestions almost certainly will not be followed. Assuming the bill passes in the form in which it now is, and assuming the president vetoes it, the bill will probably be passed over his veto by the necessary two-third of each chamber.

The net of it is that the bill will probably be adopted by the senate in practically the identical form in which it now is. According to general expectation, it will then be vetoed by the president. Thereafter it will be passed by both chambers over the president's veto with the required majority of two-thirds or more.

FOR SAFETY
a good tire is important
. . . But
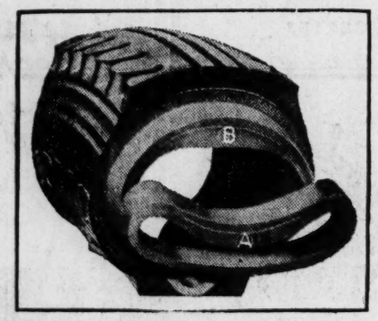
VITAL

*Air Container Tubes are made only by Goodrich. There Is No Substitute.



How the air container tube works in a Silvertown tire. (A) shows a cross section uninflated. When air is applied, the bridge of rubber underneath the cord insert (B) is placed under compression by being forced into shape. Any puncture is instantly sealed shut and sealed by compression. The patented cord insert makes the Air Container fit snugly and prevents shoulder separation.

Because the inner-tube holds the air, it is the real guardian of your safety when driving at high speeds. That is why we recommend Goodrich Air Container Tubes. *No matter what tire you use.

For Air Containers seal punctures on a running wheel, prevent flat tires, blowouts, premature failures, maintain correct, even air pressure and increase the mileage of any tire 30%.

Drive in and let us demonstrate this greatest safety development in tire history.

GENERAL JAMES G. HARBORD.

Frank R. McCoy, the fourth corps commander; Brigadier General George H. Estes, the Fort McPherson commander; Brigadier General Harold B. Fiske, commandant of the fourth coast artillery district; Brigadier General Herbert J. Brees, commandant at Fort Bragg, N. C., and Colonel Evan H. Humphrey, commander of Fort Oglethorpe.

General Harbord, with Mrs. Harbord, arrived Wednesday night at Fort McPherson from Augusta, where they have been on a short vacation. They are guests until Friday of General and Mrs. McCoy. No functions other than today's review are planned, General McCoy said Wednesday night.

General McCoy and General Harbord are friends of long standing, having served as lieutenants together in Cuba and the Philippines and through other grades at various military stations.

MRS. J. S. HEARD, JR., DIES AT RESIDENCE

Mrs. J. S. Heard, Jr., 25 years old, wife of the Fulton county bond clerk, died Wednesday afternoon at her residence, 576 Cresthill avenue, of pneumonia. Funeral arrangements will be announced by H. M. Patterson & Son, funeral directors, in charge.

A native of Atlanta, Mrs. Heard had spent the greater part of her life here. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Adams, who moved from Atlanta several years ago to Tampa, Fla., where their home is located at present. Her husband, J. S. Heard, Jr., has served as county bond clerk for about eight years and is a member of a pioneer Atlanta family.

Mrs. Heard was a member of the Westminster Presbyterian church and of Lakewood Chapter No. 162, Order of the Eastern Star. She is survived by her husband, her parents, a baby daughter and two brothers, S. D. Adams, Jr., and N. E. Adams, both of Tampa.

Cooler, Cloudy Weather Is Due In City Today

Cooler and cloudy weather but no rain is forecast for Atlanta today. C. F. von Herrmann, the government meteorologist, said Wednesday the clouds would be of the low-hanging variety, obscuring the sun most of the day.

Wednesday's temperatures ranged between 49 and 64 degrees. A maximum of 61 and a minimum of 45 is expected today.

THE FACT is simply this: PEBECO, the "iced" dentifrice, gives you something you can't get in any other way. Its taste you will never forget. The lovely lustre and sparkle of your teeth will always be a tribute to your judgment. The cool, clean sensation in your mouth will be a blessed relief to a naturally hot, sticky mouth and breath. The stimulating, tangy "bite" will convince you that THIS tooth paste is right on the job...the one you have been hoping you would ultimately find. A week's trial bears this out.—Advt.

World-Wide Campaign Opened To Bring Back Petticoat Fashions

BY WALLACE CARROLL.

MANCHESTER, England, Feb. 18. (AP)—A worldwide campaign to bring back the petticoat was opened this evening in the heart of the depressed textile area with all the glamor of the theater and the authority of fashion behind it.

Petticoats were the theme of the grand finale in Charles B. Cochran's "1931 Revue," which opened at the Palace theater tonight. All the women principals and the entire chorus displayed white silk net petticoats of the type which it is hoped all women will soon be wearing.

The petticoat display was encouraged by the British Fashions and Fabrics Bureau, the final authority on styles in England. Lancashire millowners also approved it, for it is estimated that if petticoats come back employment will be furnished for thousands of men in the Lancashire and Nottingham cotton mills and lace factories.

"Petticoats will thrill the imagination of women the world over," Edward H. Symonds, president of the fashion bureau, said at the opening of the campaign. "Mothers will derive considerable pleasure in renewing acquaintance with the modernized undergarment of bygone days, while daughters will, without doubt, find an alluring fascination in trying out something which is entirely new to them."

Capone Turns Verbal Machine Gun On Butler for Deportation Ideas

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 18.—(AP)—Al (Scarface) Capone turned a machine gun of words today upon Major General Smedley D. Butler, of the marines.

The Chicago "public enemy" was wrathy because of published reports that the general had said Capone would be deported when public opinion becomes aroused.

"The general," said Capone, "is ill-informed. He should know that the laws of this country protect an American-born citizen like myself and prevent the deportation of anyone who, like myself, was born in this country."

"General Butler says I am a criminal. The only charge that I know of or any law abiding authorities know of is of my being charged with vagrancy.

"I have been feeding between 2,500 and 3,000 people daily in Chicago for the last six months. If this is an act of a vagrant, I want to be classed as one.

"I leave the American people to judge as between General Butler and myself, and I am satisfied to abide by their verdict."

Capone, who several years ago served a jail sentence in Philadelphia for carrying concealed weapons and whose name has been mentioned in connection with Chicago's long line of gang murders, has been wintering at his high walled estate here.

if such a step would not interfere with the committee investigation by shutting off possible evidence. They were told by a spokesman for the committee that they had no objection to laying the case before a grand jury immediately.

At the close of the hearing, District Attorney Atkinson said they visited the capitol "for the purpose of discussing with the legislative investigating committee the advisability of instituting criminal proceedings in Davidson county at this time."

The two bond issues of 1929 totaling $50,000,000 furnished the vehicle for questioning Edgar Graham, comptroller of Tennessee, whose testimony developed into almost a sing-song of "I don't know." Toward the end, however, he began to agree with the committee that their deductions probably were correct, such as agreeing that the state funding board, of which he was a member, appeared on its face as having adopted "a flimsy excuse," for depositing money in the Bank of Tennessee that blew up with a bang and shook the entire state.

This admission came after a line of questioning by Walter Faulkner, committee chairman, over a resolution adopted by the funding board on August 14, 1930, designating the Bank of Tennessee as a repository for "bridge funds" because it had the "necessary facilities."

Graham said he didn't know what the "necessary facilities" were and that at the time he thought the bank only was being designated to handle the $245,000 allotted for the Jackson county bridge but he agreed the resolution could be construed to mean other bridge funds. The witness said he felt sure the funding board had only deposited the $245,000 and that the rest of the some odd $3,000,000 of state funds caught in the failure of the Bank of Tennessee had been placed there "by the highway department in the regular way." He said the Bank of Tennessee was selected because Jackson county did not have a bank large enough to legally handle the bridge money and that he thought the Bank of Tennessee was as strong as the rock of Gibraltar.

Seek Reason.

Joe V. Williams, committee counsel, and Scott P. Fitzhugh, speaker of the senate, spent two hours trying to draw from the comptroller the reason for issuing $50,000,000 in bonds all in 1929 when they were not needed and why all of the bonds were delivered to Lehman Brothers in New York when they had been bought by Caldwell & Company and affiliated interests in Nashville.

Graham said he agreed to an issue of $21,000,000 and six months later to another for $29,050,000 because the bonding people and bankers said they would be "glad to finance us for a year, but if they were going to have Tennessee securities on the market every few months they didn't want to handle them."

"Who made that statement?" asked Williams.

"I remember Paul Davis, of the American National bank, Rogers Caldwell and either Mr. Preston or the president of the First National bank at Chattanooga," said Graham. "I am positive of the first, but not of the last. They were all members of a syndicate. I felt that by floating large issues we would save state money."

He said the bid of Caldwell & Co. was accepted on both issues and that only one bid was received for the first issue while Lehman Bros. bid against Caldwell for the $29,050,000 issue. He explained that Caldwell's bid of 4.676 carried the restriction that the money would be deposited in banks to be selected by the state treasurer while the Lehman bid of 4.80 was free of restriction.

The witness said he didn't know how it happened that Governor Henry H. Horton and other state officials made a trip to New York at state expense and delivered each bond issue to Lehman Bros., after they had been sold to Caldwell and associates for delivery in Nashville.

"Was there any discussion why the state delivered them in New York to Lehman Brothers instead of to the firms in Nashville that bought them?" asked Speaker Fitzhugh.

"I don't recall it," said Graham.

program will be the restoration of legal and political stability.

Premier Aznar was expected to first of all consider the release of prisoners arrested after the revolts of last December and who are now crowding the jails. Indications were that even if amnesty were not granted he planned a policy of indulgence.

More serious are the political problems immediately facing him. Berenguer was forced from office last Saturday because he wished immediate elections for the cortes whereas his opponents asked for a constitutional convention that would decide, while the king was on "a holiday," the future political status of the country and whether it would become a republic or remain a monarchy.

It was said in authoritative circles that the new government expected to evolve a new election program to include first municipal, then district and finally parliamentary elections, the latter probably several months hence. Parliament probably would be converted into a parliamentary constitutional convention, but with more limited powers than the republicans, socialists, and left groups generally desire.

The new cabinet which probably will hold its first meeting tomorrow follows:

Premier, Admiral Aznar; secretary of war, General Berenguer; public works, Juan De La Cierva; treasury, Juan Ventosa; economy, Count De Bugallal; labor, Duke of Maura; interior, Marquis Hoyos; justice, Marquis of Alhucemas; foreign affairs, Count of Romanones; marine, Admiral Luis Rivera.

COMMITTEE VOTES SALE OF RENTALS FOR TEN YEARS

Boykin state income tax bill, after nearly an hour had been spent in argument on the question of how long the house wanted to work each day. Resolutions calling for afternoon sessions and for at least four hours of work daily were tabled eventually, but the house rescinded its action of Tuesday by adopting a resolution to meet next Monday. The previous decision was to take a holiday in observance of Washington's birthday. Just before adjournment the house voted again to convene today at 10 o'clock, disregarding a 9 o'clock resolution approved Tuesday.

The bill receiving senate approval Tuesday was a committee substitute for a measure sponsored by Senator Myrick, of the first district. One of its principal provisions is the limiting of certificates of operation for motor carriers in Georgia to seven years.

When the bill was called up as the first order of business today, Senator Zellars, of the thirtieth district, took the floor to speak for a substitute he had offered Tuesday. Many senators had not taken their seats, however, as discussion began, and Zellars immediately moved the previous question for a vote on the committee substitute.

Bus Measure Considered.

The other bus measure, introduced originally by Senator Whaley, of the thirty-fifth district, was considered section by section and action on it virtually completed before adjournment.

One of the clauses approved would make it necessary for drivers of all motor vehicles operated for hire to undergo both physical and mental examinations before being licensed. An amendment was adopted to provide that all vehicles, including buggies and wagons, must carry lights at night.

The section fixing the length of vehicles was changed to exempt trucks hauling pilings and other long pieces of lumber direct from the forest to the nearest rail or water shipping point. The senate voted down an attempt to eliminate the clause making the speed limit of vehicles under the bill 40 miles an hour. The section providing for arrest of violators of the act on sight or on warrant was stricken from the measure.

During debate on the Whaley bill

Governor Dies.

Governor Frank C. Emerson, of Wyoming, died Wednesday night after a five-day illness.

Senators Redwine, of the twenty-sixth, and Terrell, of the thirty-sixth, offered a resolution seeking an investigation of the funds available for highway construction, and authorizing appointment of a committee of three senators to get the desired information. The resolution went over until today under the rules.

Little Progress Made.

The house made little progress Tuesday in its section-by-section discussion of the income tax bill. The measure contains 68 clauses and the third one, fixing the schedule of rates, brought out a flood of amendments and vigorous debate that was still under way when the body adjourned.

The bill as introduced by Representative Boykin, of Lincoln, calls for a levy of 1 per cent on the first $5,000 of net income; 2 per cent on the second $5,000; 3 per cent on the third $5,000; 4 per cent on the fourth $5,000, and 5 per cent on net income in excess of $20,000.

The argument was precipitated with introduction of an amendment by Boykin, of Carroll, providing for a tax of 1 per cent on the first $5,000 and 2 per cent on all net income over $5,000. Nearly a dozen members spoke for and against this amendment but no conclusion had been reached at the time of adjournment. Various other tax schedules, both increasing and reducing the rates set in the bill, were placed before the house for consideration tomorrow when the debate is renewed. Under the present state income tax act the rate is only one-third of the federal tax.

The house Tuesday adopted a senate resolution to appoint a commission to represent Georgia in preparing for the Yorktown sesquicentennial celebration in October. A house amendment increased the membership of the proposed commission from 16 to 36.

Marshal Foch Declares British Army Strength Is Virtually Exhausted

Clemenceau Thinks British Outmoved French in Getting U. S. Troops—Lord Milner Heatedly Defends Pershing Agreement—Pershing Parries Agreement on Infantry Priority for Another Month—Foch Finally Declares He Favors an American Army.

CHAPTER XXXIX.

The question of the shipment of American troops, and particularly their allotment to the Allied armies, had assumed very great importance in the minds of the Allied leaders.

Accordingly, a session of the supreme war council was called at Abbeville May 1, 1918, and Prime Minister Clemenceau opened the meeting by referring forthwith to the previous recommendation of the council's military representatives as to the disposition of American troops.

"The military representatives," he began, "expressed the opinion in their joint note No. 18 that only infantry and machine gun units should be sent to France for the present. Since then the agreement between Lord Milner and General Pershing, signed at London April 24, 1918, has intervened. This agreement makes a change.

"It had been understood at Versailles that America would send 120,000 men per month, which the French and English armies would share equally. Under the Milner-Pershing agreement, it appears none go to France. The French have not been consulted. We might suppose that in compensation the American troops arriving in June would be given to France. But it now appears they are also to join the British. I wish to protest that this is not satisfactory.

"I am not discussing the figure of 120,000 men; I am prepared to accept that these men go to the British in May. I am asking to receive the same number of troops in June. There are close to 400,000 Americans in France at present, but only five divisions, or about 125,000 men, can be considered as combatants. That is not a satisfactory proportion."

Lord Milner arose, much incensed at M. Clemenceau's statement, which he considered quite unjust.

"M. Clemenceau has intimated," he asserted, "that there was something mysterious about the London agreement. I believe that an explanation is necessary. He appears to believe that the agreement we signed is a reversal of the supreme war council's decision. I know only of a joint note embodying the recommendations of the military representatives, but it is of no value without the approval of the governments.

"Besides, M. Clemenceau seems to be under the impression that half of the American troops were to go to France and the other half to England. I do not recollect any such decision. All that General Pershing and I have urged is that infantry and machine gunners should be sent to France. We had no intention of depriving France of any American troops. I do not know that anything has been said regarding their allotment on arrival in France. We simply wanted to hasten their coming."

Pershing Maintains Our Independence.

"In making the agreement with Lord Milner," I interposed, "I had in mind bringing troops as rapidly as possible to meet the existing situation. Lord Milner is quite correct in stating that there was no agreement as to the allocation of American troops either to the British or French armies. There is no agreement between my government and anybody else that a single American soldier shall be sent to either the British or French.

"There is in existence an agreement between Mr. Lloyd George and myself that six divisions should be brought to France. Mr. Clemenceau will remember that I spoke to him about going to London to arrange for the shipment of American troops to France, and that he approved because it would expedite their arrival. I also spoke to General Petain about it."

M. Clemenceau remembered my speaking of it, but disregarding his previous approval continued his objections, saying:

"We have been informed that nothing had been decided on at Versailles, but something has been decided on at London, and France was closely concerned in this. It was decided that six divisions should go to the British. Well, I will not argue about that. You announce to us artillery for the month of June.

"Where four are in alliance, two of them cannot act independently. Nothing has been provided for France in June.

"The appointment of General Foch as commander-in-chief is not a mere decoration. This post involves grave responsibilities; he must meet the present situation; he must provide for the future.

"I accept what has been done for May, but I want to know what is intended for June."

Mr. Clemenceau said the French had not received certain specialists they had asked for, and also quoted from the conversation I had held with General Foch with reference to sending over troops in May and June.

Mr. Lloyd George then said:

"I am of M. Clemenceau's opinion. The interests of the Allies are identical; we must not lose sight of that, otherwise the unity of command has no meaning. We must consider what is best for the common cause.

Cites Heavy British Losses.

"What is the situation today? The British army has had heavy fighting and has suffered heavy losses. All available drafts have been sent to France, and we shall send all who are available in May and June. This would be the case even if all the Americans who arrive in Europe during these months should be assigned to the British army.

"At present certain British divisions have been so severely handled that they cannot be reconstituted. General Foch will remember the number."

"Yes, ten," Foch answered.

"As we cannot again put them in line," Mr. Lloyd George continued, "they must be replaced by new units. The Germans are now fighting with the object of using up our effectives. If they can do this without exhausting their own reserves they will some time deal us a blow which we shall not be able to parry.

"In the meantime, I suggest that the decision for the allotment of the American troops for June be taken up when that month arrives. In May, in fact, either of our two armies may be hard pressed. That is the one which should be reinforced. It is not desirable now to decide how troops arriving in June should be allotted."

To this, Foch replied:

"It is undeniable that the British army is now exhausted; so let it receive immediate reinforcement in May. But lately the French have had grave losses, notable at Montdidier, and both during the last few days have been fighting shoulder to shoulder. So American aid is now needed almost as much for France as for Great Britain. Above this question of aid to the French or to the British is aid to the Allies.

"We are agreed that the American army is to reinforce the British army at once; in June we, too, shall need infantry and machine gun units. So let us make the agreement for June once by saying: the same shipment of infantry and machine guns as for May. If there is tonnage available we shall devote it, after that, to the elements necessary for filling up the American divisions. I am sure that General Pershing, with his generosity and his breadth of view, will grant the fairness of this view and will extend for June the agreement decided upon for May."

Whereupon Mr. Lloyd George gave support to the principle, saying that British recruits would not be available until August and he understood it was the same for France, when both would be able to furnish their own recruits. He then asked that the May program be extended over June, in which M. Clemenceau joined.

Pershing Insists on Own Army.

In reply, I said:

"I do not suppose that we are to understand that the American army is to be entirely at the disposal of the French and British commands."

M. Clemenceau said that of course this was not the intention.

Continuing, I said:

"Speaking for my government and myself, I must insist upon our intention to have our own army. The principle of unity of command must prevail in our army. It must be complete under its own command. I should like to have a date fixed when this will be realized. I should like to make it clear that all American troops are not to be with the British, as there are five divisions with the French now and there will be two more in a short time.

"As to the extension of the May agreement to June, I am not prepared to accept it. The troops arriving in June will not be available for the front before the end of July or the middle of August. So we have the whole month of May ahead before deciding whether an emergency is likely to arise in June. I have explained to Lord Milner and General Foch why I do not wish to commit the American army so long in advance. If need be, I shall recommend the extension into June. I can see no reason for it now."

Mr. Lloyd George spoke again, and said that as a representative of the British government he fully approved the principle of an American army.

"It would not be reasonable or even honorable," he continued, "to consider the American army as a reservoir from which we can draw. It is to our advantage to have a powerful American army as soon as possible to fight beside us, and as head of the British government I accept the principle. However, at present we are engaged in what is perhaps the decisive battle of the war. If we lose this battle, we shall need tonnage to take home what there is left of the British and American armies.

"What is our best hope of winning this battle?

"The decisive months will perhaps be those of September, October, perhaps later. If the American army could intervene at that time it would suit us all. I have no reason to believe that these two opinions are incompatible, but we should not wait until the end of May to decide, for questions of tonnage are involved which we must go into now."

He proposed that the question of continuing the May program into June be held in abeyance two weeks. He then brought up the question of the use of slower ships for troops, and thought 30,000 or 40,000 might be transported in these ships. Both Admiral Sims and I had already pressed that point with the government.

Foch for an American Army.

Mr. Lloyd George calculated that the British would be able to transport 150,000 per month as a maximum, and that we could bring over 40,000 to 50,000, which would allow us to include the auxiliary services required to complete our divisions and organize our own army. But he asked that priority in embarkation be given the infantry and machine gun units.

I approved this request up to six divisions, and stated that toward the end of May we could decide whether the program was to be continued into June.

Then General Foch announced that he, too, favored the formation of an American army.

"Nobody is more for the constitution of a national American army than I," he said, "for I know how much more an army is worth when fighting under its own commander and under its own flag. But now the needs are immediate; there is a battle to be won or a battle to be lost. I ask for the continuation of the May program.

"General Pershing asks that we transport the elements necessary for the constitution of his army; I am told that the tonnage will allow this; all the better; but in two weeks we shall all be dispersed, so we ought to decide today to continue in June what was decided on for May. I ask Lord Milner, as well as General Pershing, to join me after the meeting to sign an agreement."

Replying that I was glad to hear General Foch express himself so strongly in favor of an American army and that no one more fully appreciated the present situation, I said that it did not appear necessary for the council to decide today.

Tomorrow: Foch asserts rights as commander-in-chief, but Pershing won't give in on troop disposition.

Duel Is Averted By Cuban Apology To U. S. Attorney

HAVANA, Feb. 18.—(AP)—With the appearance in the Cuban press today of a Cuban navy officers' public apology to a prominent American attorney practicing in Cuba, the Associated Press learned that publication of the item averted a sword duel.

The affair had been kept under cover because Cuban law does not sanction duelling.

Dr. Wolf E. Klawans, the American attorney to whom the published apology was addressed, admitted he was the challenging principal in an affair which had been set for early tomorrow.

The other principal, Dr. Klawans admitted, was Captain Alberto de Carricarte, judge advocate general of the Cuban army. Captain Carricarte's signature was affixed to the apology.

The "point of honor" in the affair between the Cuban and the American, formerly of Baltimore, Md., was contained in a published criticism the former made with reference to a legal case in which the American attorney served as counsel for the defendant.

BUTLER TO RESIGN FOR LECTURE TOUR

CLEVELAND, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Major General Smedley D. Butler, marine corps officer, who has been in the limelight for a decade, will resign next fall to take the lecture platform, it was announced tonight by Louis J. Alber, manager of a lecture bureau here.

The announcement was made after General Butler conferred with Alber during a stop-over while en route from South Bend, Ind., to Buffalo, N. Y.

General Butler has been signed up for the season from October, 1931, to May, 1932, Alber said, adding that "he will resign his commission, but only with the consent of the president." He indicated official Washington had been notified of the intention to resign and said he expected no opposition would appear.

5 MILLION FOR GEORGIA IN DEFICIENCY BILL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Allocations for Georgia projects involving expenditure of approximately $5,000,000 were included today in the second deficiency bill received by the house from its appropriations committee.

Heading the list of allocations from the committee was $2,975,000 for the Atlanta postoffice, this limit having been increased from $2,650,000.

The bill carried $59,108,000 for exigencies in various government departments this year and $69,940,000 for public buildings throughout the country.

Other provisions in the bill included the following Georgia projects:

For Atlanta penitentiary, $113,945 for maintenance; $100,000 for construction and repair and $3,200 for water system and power plant.

Columbus postoffice and courthouse, $410,000.

Eatonton postoffice, $50,000.

Americus postoffice extension and remodeling, $100,000.

Paving of Missionary Ridge crest-road in Georgia, $118,615.

Macon postoffice and courthouse, extension and remodeling, $395,000.

Madison postoffice, $55,000.

Rossville postoffice, $70,000.

Sandersville postoffice, $70,000.

Thomaston postoffice, $95,000.

Thomson postoffice, $70,000.

Toccoa postoffice, $65,000.

Other provisions included:

Athens, Ala., postoffice, $90,000.

Attalla, Ala., postoffice, $70,000.

Auburn, Ala., postoffice, $90,000.

Cheraw, S. C., postoffice, $75,000.

Fort Lauderdale, Fla., postoffice, $175,000.

Greenville, Ala., postoffice, $75,000.

The bill did not allow the budget estimate of $150,000 for the Charleston, S. C., navy yard.

Shrine Mosque Charity Ball Aiding Kitchen

Hamilton McWhorter, state senator from Athens, will open the Community Kitchen charity ball in the Shrine mosque at 9 o'clock tonight as personal representative of Governor-elect Richard Russell, it was announced Wednesday by Henry B. Miller, director.

The ball, arranged for tonight and Friday night, will be opened tomorrow night at the same hour by Mayor James L. Key.

Sale of tickets was reported as indicating that a large attendance will be assembled for the occasion. The movement has the backing of supporters of the community kitchen, where meals are served daily to the city's needy for two cents. The entire net profits from sale of tickets to the charity ball will go to the kitchen.

Mrs. I. R. Banks has been named general chairman, Mrs. Arthur Hazzard, ticket chairman, and Mrs. Nat Kaiser, publicity chairman. Tickets are being offered to the public for $1. They will be availble at the charity ball headquarters, at the Nineteenth Hole golf course, 263 Peachtree street, until 5 o'clock Friday afternoon.

In addition to the dancing, the entertainment program will be featured by special vaudeville presentations and music by a 16-piece orchestra.

BYRLEY APPOINTED TO INSURANCE POST

John H. Byrley.

With the announcement Wednesday that the Minnesota Mutual Life Insurance Company, of St. Paul, Minn., a $200,000,000 organization, has entered Georgia, it was learned that John H. Byrley, formerly vice president of the Fidelity Mutual Life Insurance Company of Philadelphia, and well known in insurance circles, will become general agent for Georgia.

The Minnesota company is fifty years old, and one of the most conservative financial institutions in America. In entering the Georgia field, it was said, the organization has weighed all factors involved, and consequently the action expresses the conviction of its executives that this state's future outlook is bright.

Vet Hospital Bill Has Georgia Items

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—When the new veterans' hospital bill, carrying $12,500,000, is reported to the senate tomorrow, it will carry two items for Georgia. The most important of these is the appropriation of $280,000 for additional facilities at the present hospital at Augusta and the other for Atlanta, which is smaller and provides for the erection of several duplex houses, to be used as officers' quarters.

Since it is generally realized that the number of beds at the Atlanta hospital is insufficient, an attempt will be made on the floor by Senator Walter F. George to obtain an additional appropriation for Atlanta.

Detailed information on the views of General Frank T. Hines on the subject are now being obtained. It is realized that from 150 to 200 more beds are needed at this point, but whether the funds can be obtained at the present session of congress will be in doubt until the fight has actually been made on the floor of the senate.

Farm Board's Cotton Trading Probe Asked by Tennesseean

McKellar Says Organization Has Already Incurred Loss of $45,000,000 in Dealings.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Complaining that the federal farm board has incurred already a loss of $45,000,000 through its dealings in the cotton market, Senator McKellar, of Tennessee, today introduced in the senate a resolution providing that the vice president shall appoint a committee of five senators to investigate the entire procedure of the board in regard to cotton.

This committee would be empowered to sit during the congressional recess at such places as it may deem proper and would report its findings at the next session of congress. The full text of McKellar's resolutions follows:

Whereas, in hearing recently held before the appropriations committee of the senate, evidence was offered showing that the prices of farm products have constantly decreased since the institution of the farm board; and whereas as it developed at those hearings that the government was backing co-operative associations in cotton that were not entirely responsible financially; that only four of them were responsible financially; whereas it developed that the government had taken over through cotton stabilization corporations 1,300,000 bales of cotton which, in the opinion of all witnesses, constitutes a menace to the price of cotton in the particular way in which it is now being held; and

Whereas, it was shown that the cost of handling cotton by the co-operative associations was as great or greater than it was under the former system of dealing with this product; and

Whereas, it developed in said hearing that the cotton co-operative associations were using funds secured from the government with which to buy cotton futures and to engage in speculation on the cotton market; and

Whereas, it happens that an actual corner was created nearly a year ago in the cotton market, requiring several thousand bales of cotton which had already been shipped abroad to be returned to America; and

Whereas, it is admitted on all sides that the federal government already has a loss in the dealings of the farm board on the cotton market of something like $45,000,000;

Now, therefore, be it resolved: That the vice president shall name a committee of five senators, which committee shall investigate the subject of the farm board dealings with the entire cotton situation, such committee being hereby authorized and empowered to sit in recess at such times and places as it may fix and report its findings to the next session of congress in December.

For the purpose of this resolution the committee, or any duly authorized sub-committee thereof, is authorized to hold such hearings, to sit and act at such times and places, to employ such experts and clerical, stenographic and other assistance, to require by subpoena and otherwise the attendance of such witnesses and the production of such books, papers, and documents, to administer such oaths, to take such testimony, and to make such expenditures as it deems advisable.

The cost of stenographic service in reporting such hearings shall not be in excess of 25 cents per 100 words. The expenses of the committee, which shall not exceed $10,000, shall be paid from the contingent fund of the senate upon vouchers approved by the chairman.

EFFECTS OF NEW SARGON FORMULA ARE IMMEDIATE

"It Seemed To Revitalize My Entire System," Says Mrs. Shucraft.

Think of a medicine that is so strengthening and invigorating that it seems to pick you right up and put you on your feet from the first few doses. Not only that, but a medicine designed to enrich your blood, aid your digestion and make you feel better and stronger for months to come. Such a medicine is Sargon! Don't let bad health get the best of you. Face each day with new energy and vigor with the aid of this modern preparation. Take the case of Mrs. Lee Shucraft, 418 N. New Jersey St., Indianapolis, a prominent clubwoman:

MRS. LEE SHUCRAFT.

"Sargon is different from any medicine I've ever taken. It gave me so much more strength and just seemed to revitalize my entire system. This is the first time in ten years that I haven't suffered from indigestion and gas on my stomach after nearly every meal. I am also now free of a rheumatic condition in my left knee, which I was told was due to the toxic poisons of constipation. The Sargon Pills that I used with the liquid helped this by getting my bowels regulated perfectly. I can go up and down stairs and do my housework as good as I could twenty years ago and nobody knows how happy I am that I found this wonderful treatment."

Gas Meter Robbers Florida Crime Threat

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 18.—(AP)—Two men charged with robbing quarter gas meters were captured here today by an unarmed woman who held them until police arrived and took them into custody. Following an epidemic of gas meter robberies, a trap was set in an exposed meter which was previously raided so that when entered again an electrical warning would be sounded.

The warning sounded today and Mrs. Zepheniah Phillips rushed out to find two men there whom she fought and held while her daughter phoned for the police.

PERSHING CONDITION SOMEWHAT BETTER

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—(AP)—General John J. Pershing, who has been suffering with a severe cold, was sufficiently improved today to spend some time working at the desk in his room at the Metropolitan Club.

Army medical officers attending the general advised, however, that he not leave his room for several days because of the changing weather.

CHAIN GANG GUARD HELD FOR MURDER

LAFAYETTE, Ga., Feb. 18.—(AP)—A. D. Cooper, former chain gang guard, was under indictment Wednesday for the murder last December 13 of Hoke Cantrell, a convict.

The state and relatives of Cantrell alleged the prisoner was shot while handcuffed and heavily chained.

Cooper claims he shot Cantrell when the latter advanced on him in a threatening manner.

Cooper has been in the Walker county jail since the shooting.

Court attaches said the case probably would be called for trial next Tuesday.

Illinois Money Wizard, Broke, Faces Charges

BELVIDERE, Ill., Feb. 18.—(AP)—The business ventures that elevated Albert W. Benham from factory to financier plunged him into court today.

The erstwhile wizard of finance, whose dividends of 10 to 50 per cent aroused the countryside, was indicted by the Boone county grand jury on charges of operating a confidence game and obtaining money under false pretenses. A bench warrant was issued for his arrest by Circuit Judge E. D. Surtleff.

Benham was missing from his home but friends said he would return to face the charges.

Four indictments were returned on each charge and the court fixed Benham's bonds at $12,000.

State's Attorney Alexander Strom said more than 25 witnesses had been heard in the investigation into Benham's financial affairs.

After borrowing thousands of dollars on short-time judgment notes, Benham startled his clientele a week ago with the announcement that he was "broke." Even then there were some who expressed willingness to continue their investments.

Benham described his business as buying bankrupt stocks of merchandise at low prices and getting rid of them by quick sales.

Benham began operations two years ago, borrowing small amounts from his fellow workers in a factory here.

UNITED FRUIT HEAD ASKS COMMON SENSE

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Feb. 18.—(AP)—Common sense, hard work and carefully planned, progressive business policy are essential to the return of prosperity, said Victor M. Cutter, president of the United Fruit Company, in his address at the annual stockholders' meeting today.

"It is evident that the prosperity of our own country cannot in future be accomplished by splendid isolation," he said. "The recovery from the worldwide business depression will not be accomplished by means of local spending, tariff walls, or by artificial stimulants.

"The first step in the return to prosperity may well be found in more economical and wider distribution of products and the development of world markets."

Reviewing conditions in the republics of the Caribbean area, where the company has large interests, Mr. Cutter said the most impressive development during the past year was the increasing evidence of international co-operation among the countries.

REV. H. M. QUILLIAN TO BE BURIED TODAY

Funeral services for the Rev. Henry Milton Quillian, 79, for 53 years active as a minister in the North Georgia Methodist conference, who died Tuesday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Raymond C. Singletary, at Blakely will be held at 11 o'clock this morning at the First Methodist church. The Rev. S. P. Wiggins, the Rev. Samuel T. Senter and the Rev. M. L. Underwood will officiate and interment will be in Oakland cemetery.

Pallbearers will be Dr. Wallace Rogers, the Rev. E. H. Wood, the Rev. W. T. Hamby, Norman Mill, R. L. Avary and Addison Maupin.

Mr. Quillian had made his home at the Pickwick apartments here for the past few years and was visiting his daughter at the time of his death. He had held pastorates at leading Atlanta churches as well as in various other cities throughout the state.

THREE MEN ARE FINED AFTER DRUNKEN FIGHT

Arrested following an alleged drunken fight in a local hotel, three men were fined $17 each Wednesday afternoon in police court. The trio gave the names of Clarence Milner and P. J. Johnson, of Columbus, and J. T. Neel, of Atlanta. Officers said that currency totaling $590 was found hidden under rugs and in pillows in the hotel room. The three men first were docketed on suspicion, which later was changed to a charge of drunk and disorderly on the police court docket.

STEPHENSON PRAISES RAIL CONSOLIDATION

Banking Leader Declares Four System Combination Would Aid Business.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Rome C. Stephenson, president of the American Bankers' Association, said today adoption of the four-system plan of railroad consolidation instituted by President Hoover would "exert a favorable influence on business in general."

He told the Advertising Club that progress of the United States is inseparably connected with the welfare of the railroads.

"One of the measures which would help materially to put business back where it belongs," he said, "is approval of the four-system plan of railroad consolidation. Its adoption by the interstate commerce commission would tend to stabilize the transportation industry, facilitate operation and exert a favorable influence on business in general."

Railroads are facing a crisis, he added, suggesting they need unification as well as protective laws to meet competition from increased use of highways and waterways by other carriers.

He pointed out that the rapid growth of the railroads ended suddenly in 1920 and that since then there has been no new construction, but a slight decrease in mileage, while an increase in freight traffic has been accompanied by a one-third decrease in passenger business. Improvement in earnings during the last decade he attributed to efficient management.

CAROLINA MAJOR DIES BY ACCIDENTAL SHOT

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C., Feb. 18.—(AP)—Major Oscar L. Gruhn, 40, member of the field artillery board at Fort Bragg, accidentally shot and killed himself while cleaning his service revolver in the cellar of his home.

Headquarters at the army post, in announcing his death, said Major Gruhn was shot late yesterday and died 30 minutes later without regaining consciousness.

BAPTIST CHAIRMAN PASSES IN TEXAS

FORT WORTH, Texas, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Rev. Forrest Smith, for 15 years pastor of Broadway Baptist church here and chairman of the Baptist convention executive board, died late tonight of lobar pneumonia.

Rev. Mr. Smith came here September 1, 1915. It was his third pastorate since he received his bachelor of divinity degree 33 years ago from Southern Methodist Theological Seminary at Louisville, Ky. His first pastorate was in Louisville, N. C.

The pastor's boyhood was spent in Tennessee.

CREW OF STEAMER SAVED FROM ROCKS

SEAHAM HARBOR, England, Feb. 18.—(AP)—The crew of the steamer Hallmoor, which went ashore on Pin Cushion rocks last night during a fierce gale, were landed today by a breeches buoy.

The Sunderland lifeboat stood nearby all night unable to get alongside because of the high seas.

Paper Solves Bible Puzzle for Church

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Feb. 18.—(AP)—Approximately 2,200 delegates attending the congress here on world missions of the Presbyterian church in the United States received a cablegram from a Nanking, China, mission station that they could not interpret because of lack of an Old Testament.

The message, filed in Nanking at 6 o'clock last night and received here at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, said:

"Greetings, Isaiah 54:2."

Only New Testaments could be found at the gathering. However, a complete Bible at a newspaper office revealed Isaiah 54:2 as follows:

"Enlarge the place of thy tent, and let them stretch forth the curtains of thine habitations; spare not, lengthen thy cords, and strengthen thy stakes."

SUNSHINE MELLOWS

Heat Purifies

LUCKIES are always kind to your throat

The advice of your physician is: Keep out of doors, in the open air, breathe deeply; take plenty of exercise in the mellow sunshine, and have a periodic check-up on the health of your body.

Everyone knows that sunshine mellows—that's why the "TOASTING" process includes the use of the Ultra Violet Rays. LUCKY STRIKE—made of the finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—THEN—"IT'S TOASTED"—an extra, secret heating process. Harsh irritants present in all raw tobaccos are expelled by "TOASTING." These irritants are sold to others. They are not present in your LUCKY STRIKE. No wonder LUCKIES are always kind to your throat.

DEFEAT OF BLOSSOM FOR U. S. POST SEEN

Both Georgia Senators Expected To Oppose Nomination.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—What has been one of the most spirited fights for a federal office in Georgia, that for the post as United States marshal at Macon, seems certain to come to a head this week through the sending of a nomination to the senate by President Hoover.

This matter was taken up by J. T. Rose when he was in Washington recently, although he denied to the press here that he had even mentioned the matter to Attorney-General Mitchell. Both Mr. Rose and James W. Arnold, who was here at the same time, have been making a determined fight to have the position, of which Sam Purvis is now incumbent, given to George I. Blossom, of Macon.

Recent developments, however, make it practically definite that Blossom will not be named, or if he is, that he will not be confirmed by the senate. This results from the fact that both Georgia senators are ready to oppose any such action. Their attitude is based, it is learned, on charge of political activity on the part of the candidate, who was federal census supervisor for the Macon district last year.

It is alleged that while he was holding office he solicited campaign contributions from civil service employes in direct violation of the federal law on the subject. The money asked, it is alleged, was for use in the campaign of Dr. H. J. Carswell, republican, of Waycross, to defeat Representative W. C. Lankford in the eleventh district of Georgia.

While both United States senators, being democrats, are not usually consulted in matters of patronage, they have expressed themselves to the attorney-general as being totally opposed to Blossom. They are also believed to have called the attention of the head of the department of justice that the record which has been made by Purvis is a most creditable one and that he deserves to be renominated. Such action, however, would meet with great displeasure from Messrs. Rose and Arnold, who are out to get the incumbent's scalp. His term expired in December.

Other candidates who have been mentioned are H. H. Nichols, Putney and J. M. McDonald, Americus, both of whom have considerable backing and who might be confirmed if nominated.

JOSIAH T. ROSE DENIES RECOMMENDING BLOSSOM

A report from Washington that he was insisting on the naming of George L. Blossom, of Macon, as marshal of the middle district of Georgia to succeed Sam Purvis, was denied Wednesday by Josiah T. Rose, collector of internal revenue and leader of the Georgia republicans.

"I have not recommended anyone as qualified for marshal, because a man's qualifications for that job must be determined by the department of justice," Mr. Rose said. "Several men who aspire to the marshal's job in the middle district are men of standing in their communities, and among these is Mr. Blossom.

"I have given to the department of justice information of facts about Mr. Blossom and other candidates for marshal, but I have not expressed any opinion as to the qualifications of any of them."

LEAF GROWERS MEET IN SOUTH GEORGIA

VALDOSTA, Ga., Feb. 18.—Community meetings in the interest of the proposed tobacco marketing association are being held in south Georgia this week.

H. B. Durden, A. K. Sessoms, E. D. Rivers, J. C. Ulmer and County Agent R. E. Miller are taking part in the work. They are assisted by Chilton Elliott, representative of the federal farm board, and C. G. Garner, of the Georgia State College of Agriculture.

Valdosta Audit.

VALDOSTA, Ga., Feb. 18.—Auditors will begin the annual check of the city business next week, preparing a report to be submitted to the council at the meeting in March.

Georgia Man Loses $362 By Using Stove as Safe

BRUNSWICK, Ga., Feb. 18.—(AP)—The stove, reasoned T. A. Lanier, chain store manager, was just the place to hide his day's receipts of $451. The money was neatly covered with ashes, and Lanier went home.

When next he opened for business, he kindled a merry blaze—and bethought himself too late that the stove was temporarily a safety deposit box. He managed to save some in checks and silver, but $362.25 curled lazily through the chimney and out into circulation once more.

GEORGIA POSTOFFICE APPOINTMENTS MADE

Tate, Sam Tate.
Thomson, Laurens G. Dozier.
Union City, E. Stella Barrett.
Zebulon, Robert Barron.

It is understood from the two Georgia members of the senate that in the main these are reappointments and that there have as yet been no charges filed against any of these nominees which would be likely to delay confirmation.

EMPIRE CLUB AIDS RURAL WAYNE COUNTY

ATHENS, Ga., Feb. 18.—An organization that aids in the social and spiritual development of rural Wayne county, as well as carrying inspiration for better farm and home management is found in the Empire Agricultural Club.

"This club's influence cannot be measured in dollars and cents," County Agent J. H. Chaffin said in his report to the Georgia State College of Agriculture. "It is not so much the interest the older folks take in the club that thrills me, but it is the way these young people are taking hold of the programs of the club and putting them over. They need an outlet for their energy and ideas and the club supplies it."

Through the club many farmers and their wives had their first opportunity to attend a banquet "just like city folks have." That was the last day of 1930, when a table was made ready and plates laid for 65 people. Not all members could be present, but many came to see what it was all about.

Organized in 1927.

The Empire Club was organized in 1927 through the effort of Mrs. L. P. Puckett and a group of her friends. Plans of organization were worked out and Mrs. Puckett was elected president, in which capacity she has since served. The secretary, Miss Lee Ollie Nichols, and the vice president, C. H. Mills, one of the master farmers of 1927-28, have also served since the club was organized.

Two master farmers of Wayne county, the state senator, A. J. Nichols, a member of the county board of education and former agricultural agent of the county; the tax collector of Wayne county, one merchant and the late I. S. Bennett, who was representative from Wayne, and the Rev. J. Lytle Jones, all have been or now are members of the club.

Other distinguished members include W. H. Morrison, a leading farmer of the county, and J. N. Duncan, who introduced the big stem Jersey sweet potato. There are four fathers and mothers who have sons that belong to the club. The sons enter heartily into the spirit of the club.

Meetings are held on the first Friday of each month. At the end of the year a banquet is held, when one or two outstanding men who are either engaged in, or vitally interested in rural activity, are invited to speak. Other features of the program include a rural drama by local talent and music rendered by members.

Seek Demonstration Agent.

The addition of a home demonstration agent is the objective of the Empire Club for this year. A home beautification program will also be sponsored and worked out with the cooperation of Professor W. H. Harvey, landscape specialist of the state college.

Four-H Club work has been sponsored, and Jethro Duncan, a local club boy, won a trip because of the interest shown by adult members. The club has given leadership scholarships to both boys and girls.

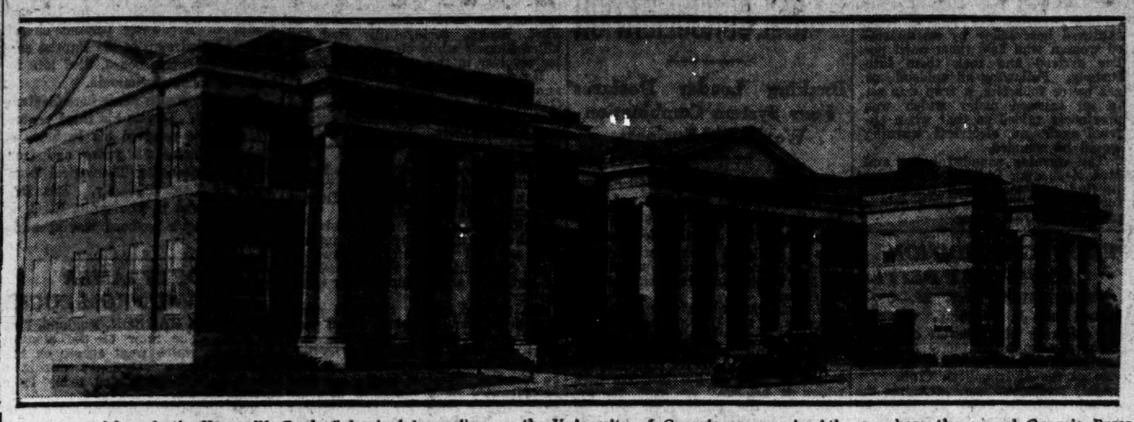
The social side of life is not neglected, for meetings are held in homes of the members, where each host and hostess plans varied entertainment for their guests.

Mr. Chaffin reports that many other communities have made inquiry about the Empire Club.

Flower Show.

MONTEZUMA, Ga., Feb. 18.—The Montezuma Garden Club will hold a flower show of bulbs and other spring flowers at the clubhouse next Tuesday.

Press Institute To Be Held at School of Journalism



Pictured here is the Henry W. Grady School of Journalism on the University of Georgia campus in Athens, where the annual Georgia Press Institute will be held, beginning tonight and extending through Saturday. Dr. Charles Herty will be the principal speaker at the opening session.

State Deaths And Funerals

MRS. GEORGE W. BARNES.

WAYCROSS, Ga., Feb. 18.—Funeral services were held here Wednesday for Mrs. George W. Barnes, 74, beloved Waycross woman, who died Monday after a long illness. Mrs. Barnes was a pioneer of Waycross, having spent practically half a century here. She came here from North Carolina.

The rites were held from the First Presbyterian church, of which she was one of the oldest members, conducted by the Rev. Louis C. LaMotte, pastor. Pallbearers were: P. H. Milton, J. M. Cox, J. A. Tomberlin, R. M. Spencer, Dr. W. M. Folks and W. A. McKnight. Honorary pallbearers were elders of the First Presbyterian church, including C. J. Paine, J. S. Elkins, J. H. Gillon, H. A. Harris, A. G. Miller, J. D. Mitchell, W. O. Smith, J. T. Watt and T. L. Watt.

Mrs. Barnes is survived by her husband, religious leader of this city; a daughter, Mrs. J. M. Fesperman, of Waycross; two sisters, Mrs. Sue Foil, of Charlotte, N. C., and Mrs. Frances McNulty, of Colorado Springs, Col.; four grandchildren and several great grandchildren.

MRS. E. S. LAW.

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Feb. 18.—Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon from the Thomasville Presbyterian church for Mrs. E. S. Law, 81 years of age, who died at the Archbold Memorial hospital here Tuesday morning. She had been in ill health for a long time and a patient in the hospital since June, 1929. She was born in the western part of Thomas county and was, before her marriage, Miss Mallie Lester, member of one of the prominent families of this region. The Rev. T. F. Callaway, pastor of the First Baptist church, officiated at the services, and interment was in the Laurel Hill cemetery.

O. W. TAYLOR.

MACON, Ga., Feb. 18.—O. W. Taylor, 59, former foreman of the car department of the Central of Georgia railroad, and for the past 30 years a resident of Macon, died at his home here Wednesday after an illness of two years. Mr. Taylor spent practically all of his life with the railroad industry, at various times conductor for the Seaboard and the Atlanta, Birmingham & Coast railroads.

GROVER C. JORDAN.

WAYCROSS, Ga., Feb. 18.—Funeral services were held here Wednesday for Grover Cleveland Jordan, 36, prominent planter of Ware county, son of the late D. A. Jordan, and a brother of Crawley D. Jordan, Ware county tax collector. Mr. Jordan died Monday night after he was stricken suddenly at the home here of a sister, Mrs. T. C. Smith.

Besides his widow, he is survived by a son, G. C. Jordan, Jr.; five daughters, Geneva, Juanita, Grace, Mary and Ruby Ann; his mother, Mrs. Lena Jordan; four brothers, Andrew J. Jordan, Jim Jordan, Crawley Jordan and Ed Jordan, all of Waycross, and six sisters, Mrs. J. L. Bennett, of Bainbridge; Mrs. Newnan Rowland, of Waycross; Mrs. Maud Newnan, of Waycross, Mrs. T. C. Smith, of Waycross; Mrs. Leonie Davis, of Waycross, and Mrs. J. Ward Sweat, of Waycross.

The rites were held from the Jordan church, conducted by the Rev. Mr. Guthrie, of Beach, Ga.

WALL T. THOMPSON.

QUITMAN, Ga., Feb. 18.—Funeral services for Wall T. Thompson, prominent businessman of Tampa, native of Quitman, will be held here Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock from the home of his mother, Mrs. W. T. Thompson. Mr. Thompson died in Tampa Wednesday morning following a brief illness of pneumonia.

He is survived by his widow and two children, Charles and Tattnall, of Tampa, and his mother, Mrs. W. T. Thompson, of this city; two sisters, Miss Lila Thompson and Mrs. Lottie Williams, and a brother, Peyton Thompson, of Waynesboro.

ANNIE RUTH SEWELL.

MONTEZUMA, Ga., Feb. 18.—Funeral services were conducted from the Baptist church at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning for Miss Annie Ruth Sewell, 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Sewell, who died Tuesday morning following an illness of two weeks with pneumonia. She was a member of the senior class of the Montezuma High school, and boys of the senior class were the pallbearers and high school students attended in a body.

The services were conducted by the Rev. B. E. Donehoo, pastor of the Baptist church, and Dr. J. A. Thomas, pastor of the Methodist church, and interment was in Felton's cemetery.

Besides her parents she is survived by two brothers, Paul and Hoyt, and three sisters, Thurza May, Bertha and Kate, all of Montezuma.

E. T. REDDING.

VALDOSTA, Ga., Feb. 18.—Funeral services were held Wednesday morning at Lake Park for E. T. Redding, who died at his home Tuesday morning.

Mr. Redding was 67 years of age, a native of Dixie, in Brooks county. For 20 years he was employed by the Georgia, Southern and Florida division of the Southern railway.

Recently Mr. Redding suffered an attack of his heart and his condition became gradually worse.

The funeral services were conducted by the Rev. L. S. Cochran, pastor of the Methodist church at Lake Park.

Mr. Redding is survived by his widow, one daughter and two sons, including Mrs. C. A. Robertson, of Gainesville, Fla.; Elliott Redding and Eugene Redding, of Lake Park.

ROBERT L. CRANDALL.

FORT VALLEY, Ga., Feb. 18.—Funeral services for Robert L. Crandall, who died in Orlando, will be held here Friday at 2 o'clock from the St. Andrews church. The body will arrive Thursday and be taken to the home of Mrs. Jack Crandall. He is survived by his widow, formerly Miss Mamie Hansen, of Long Island; a daughter, Miss Emmy Lou Crandall; his mother, Mrs. E. N. Crandall, of San Antonio, Texas; a sister, Mrs. R. G. Forsyth, and a brother, George N. Crandall, of Goshen, Indiana.

Service Cross Awarded Georgian for Heroism

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—(AP)—The war department Wednesday announced award of the distinguished service cross to Sam McDonald, World War veteran, of Thomaston, Ga., for "extraordinary heroism in action near Ancerviller, France, May 3-4, 1918."

McDonald was a sergeant in the 167th infantry, forty-second division.

Probation Officers Now Employed In Thirty-Seven Georgia Counties

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—"Twenty-seven counties in Georgia have probation officers," states Judge Solon Davis, of the juvenile court of Muscogee county in a report on probation work in Georgia published in the recently issued 1930 Year Book of the National Probation Association.

"Georgia," according to Judge Davis, "has 19 probation officers doing probation work with adult offenders and 31 juvenile court probation officers. It has 129 courts exercising juvenile court functions. In five or six of these courts the judges are salaried."

The president of the National Probation Association is George W. Wickersham, chairman of Mr. Hoover's commission on law observance and enforcement, and the general secretary, Charles L. Chute.

The year book contains the latest authoritative information on crime prevention, juvenile courts, domestic relations courts and probation.

Thirty-six leading judges, probation officers, psychologists and other court workers are among the contributors to the Year Book of the National Probation Association.

Herty To Be Chief Speaker At Press Institute Tonight

Miss Emily Woodward To Tell of Origin and Purpose of Georgia Association.

ATHENS, Ga., Feb. 18.—Dr. Charles H. Herty, famous Georgian, inventor of the Herty turpentine cup, the use of which prolongs the life of pine trees, and the discoverer that long leaf pine trees do not contain rosin and are, therefore, good for making paper, will be the principal speaker at the opening reception of the Georgia Press Institute at the Henry Grady School of Journalism in Athens Thursday night.

Dr. Herty is endeavoring to establish an experimental plant for making wood pulp in Georgia. He has a fund of $50,000 for setting up the plant, which would be semi-commercial, but has need for $100,000 for running it five years. At the end of that time the plant would be turned over to some institution.

A native of Georgia and a graduate of the University of Georgia, Dr. Herty has received honorary degrees from Johns Hopkins University, University of Pittsburgh, Colgate University and the University of Georgia.

He is a past president of the American Chemical Society, and a member of a number of science organizations.

Music at the reception will be provided under the direction of Professor Hugh Hodgson, head of the music department at the university. Chancellor Charles M. Snelling will welcome delegates, and the response will be made by Louie L. Morris, editor of the Hartwell Sun and president of the Georgia Press Association.

"The Origin and Purpose of the Georgia Press Association" will be the subject of an address by Miss Emily Woodward, editor of the Vienna News and formerly president of the association. The program will start at 8:30 o'clock.

The institute, sponsored jointly by the Henry W. Grady School of Journalism and the Georgia Press Association, is designed to assemble members of the fourth estate for addresses, lectures and round table discussions of journalism and other matters of contemporary interest.

Other speakers on the institute program this year are:

Claude G. Bowers, editorial writer of the New York Evening World, author of "Jefferson and Hamilton" and "The Tragic Era," and keynote speaker at the national democratic convention in Houston in 1928, who is on Saturday's program.

Dr. Harley L. Lutz, professor of finance at Princeton University, who recently made a study of Georgia's tax situation. He speaks Friday.

Sherwood Anderson, novelist and newspaper publisher, who is on Friday's program.

Dr. Charles W. Kennedy, professor of English at Princeton University and president of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, who will speak Saturday on "College Sports."

Director H. F. Harrington, of the Medill School of Journalism, Northwestern University, and author of several textbooks on journalism, who will lecture on journalism Friday and Saturday, and who will head the instructional staff of the institute.

Dean S. V. Sanford, of the university, who speaks at the luncheon Friday, given by the Atlanta Journal, on "A Changing Education."

T. W. Reed, registrar, secretary and treasurer of the university, who speaks at the luncheon Saturday, given by The Atlanta Constitution, on "Henry W. Grady and Georgia Journalism—Yesterday and Today." Mr. Reed knew Grady personally.

Miss Jane Judge, literary editor of the Savannah Morning News, who is on Friday's program with the subject, "Women's Interest in the Newspaper."

Mark F. Ethridge, managing editor of the Macon Telegraph, a Saturday morning speaker, whose subject is "The Importance of the Editorial Page."

Chancellor Charles M. Snelling, who will extend the official greetings, and Louie L. Morris, editor of the Hartwell Sun, and president of the Georgia Press Association, who will give the response.

Major John S. Cohen, editor and president of the Atlanta Journal and national democratic committeeman from Georgia, who will present Claude G. Bowers Saturday.

James B. Nevin, editor of the Atlanta Georgian, who speaks Friday on "How the Georgia Press May Aid Higher Education."

John Paschall, managing editor of the Atlanta Journal, who will preside at the Journal luncheon Friday.

Major Clark Howell, Jr., business manager of The Atlanta Constitution, who will preside at The Constitution luncheon Saturday.

Professor M. H. Bryan, of the University School of Commerce, who will present Dr. Lutz to his Athens audience.

Jack Williams, editor of the Waycross Journal-Herald and vice president of the Georgia Press Association, who will preside at the Saturday morning session.

Teachers of journalism on the program Friday are Professor John E. Drewry, University of Georgia, formerly president of the American Association of Teachers of Journalism; Professor Raymond B. Nixon, Emory University; Professor Edward C. Crouse, University of Georgia; Professor Virginia Garner, Wesleyan College, and Professor Willie Snow Ethridge, Mercer University.

Georgia newspapermen who will lead round table conferences Friday afternoon are J. J. Thomasson, the Carroll County Times; John Crouch, the Gainesville Eagle; Quimby Melton, the Griffin News; M. L. Fleetwood, the Cartersville News-Tribune; O. W. Passavant, the Newnan Herald, and R. E. Hamilton, the Dalton News.

Music for the opening reception will be under the direction of Professor Hugh Hodgson, head of the university music department.

Vets To Ask Hoover To Macon Convention

MACON, Ga., Feb. 18.—(AP)—All Macon citizens have been asked to co-operate in making the annual convention of the Rainbow division veterans here July 14-16, a success, according to General Walter A. Harris, general chairman of convention plans. Committees to handle various features of the convention have been named.

The committee on publicity and invitation, headed by W. T. Anderson, will be asked to urge the attendance of President Hoover among other distinguished guests.

General Douglas McArthur, commander of the Rainbow division in 1918, and at present chief of the general staff, will be invited.

THOMAS K. SCOTT, 81, PASSES IN AUGUSTA

AUGUSTA, Ga., Feb. 18.—(AP)—Thomas Knight Scott, 81, from 1893 to 1913 general manager of the Georgia railroad, died at his home here Wednesday. Funeral services will be held Thursday.

Mr. Knight was born in Meigs county, Tennessee, and entered the railway service in 1871 at Mobile. He also served at Montgomery, Pensacola, Fla., and Anniston, Ala.

He is survived by his widow and three daughters.

Georgia News Told in Brief

Arrived and Sailed.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Feb. 18.—(AP)—Arrived: None.

Sailed: Dagali, Nor., Sagua; City of Montgomery, Boston via New York; Rawleigh Warner, Jacksonville.

Fire Chief Re-elected.

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Feb. 18.—John F. Porter has been elected chief of the city fire department by council, and Harry A. Linton was named as assistant chief, with Oscar Davis as lieutenant. Chief Porter was also designated to act as city building inspector for another 12 months.

City Budget Fixed.

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Feb. 18.—Thomasville city council has adopted a city budget for the year of $91,140, which is an increase of $2,000 over last year.

New Hunting Lodge.

FOLKSTON, Ga., Feb. 18.—Virgil Parker, prominent contractor of Waycross, has been awarded the contract for the construction of a hunting lodge at Coleraine, seven miles south of here. The contract was let by Dan L. Hebard, who owns the major portion of the Okefenokee swamp.

Granted Building Permit.

WAYCROSS, Ga., Feb. 18.—W. J. Moody has been granted a permit for the construction of a filling station and grocery store at the corner of King and Wilkerson streets.

Fire Destroys Home.

LOUISVILLE, Ga., Feb. 18.—Fire destroyed the home of Walter W. Farrer, four miles south of here, early Wednesday. Only a few of the household furnishings were saved.

Baby Found on Porch At Home in Rome

ROME, Ga., Feb. 18.—(AP)—Opening her front door after a night of torrential rain, Mrs. Bessie Cochran spied a bundle on the porch. Unwrapping wet clothes and a rubber apron she found a baby girl about two weeks old.

The infant's face and feet had been exposed to the elements. Mrs. Cochran hurried to a hospital, where it was said the baby would suffer no ill effects.

There was no clue to its parentage.

TWO GEORGIANS FINED IN FLOGGING CASE

BRUNSWICK, Ga., Feb. 18.—(AP) Tom Stutts and his father-in-law, H. F. Furlong, were fined $100 each Wednesday when they pleaded guilty in city court to a charge of rioting in connection with the flogging last September 23 of G. R. Little, of Brunswick.

Attorneys for state and defense agreed to the procedure and cases against Cecil Furlong, W. W. Moran and Neal Johannesen, under bond on the same charge, were dismissed.

The case grew out of the flogging of Little, who was charged by the defendants with making an improper remark to the wife of one of the men.

He was taken from his home and beaten. The five men were charged with the offense.

ARMED NEGROES ROB MACON TRUCK DRIVER

MACON, Ga., Feb. 18.—(AP)—His face bruised and bloody from jabs with the muzzle of a shotgun, Arthur Parrish this afternoon handed $10 over to two negroes who stopped his truck on a narrow road between Payne City and the Case-Fowler Lumber Company, he reported to the police.

Parrish, salesman for a baking company, was driving from Payne Mill toward the lumber yard about 4 o'clock. He came to a rough little bridge, and slowed down the one-ton truck for a safe crossing, he said.

Two negroes hopped from a clump of woods beside the lane and ordered him to stop, he reported. He stopped. One of the negroes poked a shotgun into the cabin of the bakery truck and jammed it in Mr. Parrish's face, he said.

COLLEGES FOR FIREMEN PREDICTED BY CHIEF

Expert Advice, Experience Needed, Says D. W. Brosnan, of Albany.

MACON, Ga., Feb. 18.—(AP)—Fire Chief D. W. Brosnan, of Albany, vice president of the International Fire Chiefs' Association, was the main speaker at the Rotary Club luncheon today.

Dr. Walter Anthony, pastor of the Mulberry Street Methodist church, was presented as a new member.

With record as fire chief in Albany, Ga., unexcelled in the county, Chief Brosnan stressed the importance of fire prevention and salvage, rather than fire fighting.

"In all fires experienced, 75 per cent of the loss is due to improper fire fighting and lack of salvaging," the chief said.

The chief said the time is coming when fire colleges will be established so that firemen may attend short courses and receive expert advice and experience in fire fighting.

"I don't mean to give them a university course. A fireman doesn't need one, but he does need to know more about the business he has set about to do," Chief Brosnan said.

Bankruptcy Meeting.

VALDOSTA, Ga., Feb. 18.—Creditors of Harry Goldstein, of Thomasville, have been notified of bankruptcy proceedings, and a meeting will be held February 23.

ASTHMA

Get Breath at Once

"Never got such quick relief from Asthma until night I used KONDON'S Catarrhal Jelly," writes Mrs. N. McCarthy, New York. "KONDON'S gave mother her first night of free breathing in years," writes Miss R. T., Pittsburgh. Just put KONDON'S in nose. Gives you your breath at once. Ends gasping, suffocation, tightness in chest. Lie back, sleep fine without fear. KONDON'S prescribed for 40 years by doctors because it opens breathing passages so quick. KONDON'S at all druggists.

Sold 300 carloads of coal by Long Distance Telephone

Recently the Holmes-Darst Coal Company of Knoxville, Tenn., wished to move a large quantity of coal quickly and economically. They looked over their list of prospects, called six by long distance telephone and sold 300 carloads of coal. The total cost was about six dollars. St. John Reynolds, sales manager, also states that the increasing tendency toward hand-to-mouth buying has caused them, as it has other wholesalers, to adopt a systematic and continuous use of the long distance telephone to supplement the efforts of traveling salesmen.

Mr. Reynolds' experience is typical of that of hundreds of other sales managers in practically every line of business, who tell of profitable results secured from a systematic use of the long distance telephone in selling.

Perhaps you, too, can develop your business by telephone. Call the telephone Business Office and let us explain the different plans used by others in telephone selling.

A DEMOCRATIC DUTY.

Evidently there will be no stabilization of either the stock markets, the grain and cotton markets, or of business confidence in general, until the threat of an extra session of congress is dissipated. At this juncture of economic conditions over the country there is no menace greater dreaded than that of a prolonged extra session of the nearly politically balanced new congress.

In recent times the congress engages in the discussion and in legislation upon so many subjects intimately and profoundly affecting the normal conduct of business in all lines that when the congress is in session the country is in constant doubt and dread. Capital hesitates, industries proceed warily, labor works uncertainly and the general public goes to market only by the urge of necessity.

Instead of the democrats in congress aiding any tactic to provoke an extra session they should resolutely resolve to serve the country best by resisting and, if possible, defeating any maneuvers to make such a session necessary.

The democratic party, looking to its great opportunity of next year in the presidential campaign, needs all the popular prestige and confidence that it can command. It can command those essentials of victory no more wisely and surely than by acquiring the credit of preventing an extra session of congress this year.

THE CRISIS IN SPAIN.

The king of Spain finds himself caught in a political jam that Jeopardizes the monarchy and his hold upon his crown and throne. It may easily happen to him as it has to some of his forebears of the kingdom that he will have to come off his royal perch and pull his freight for temporary or permanent exile.

Spanish turbulence has its cycles and they turn up changes of dynasty, dictatorships and experimental republics of brief careers. The present political agitation in Spain is peculiar, however, in that it has a common purpose to dump King Alfonso, but is divided between desires for a republic on the one part and a wish to maintain a constitutional monarchy on the other part.

As between these bifurcated opposing forces Alfonso has a delicate and desperate part to perform. He fears to accede to the demand for a constitutional convention to reform and popularize the government. A similar demand led to the constitution of 1876 and resulted in the royal family hastily taking up safe quarters in Paris. So Alfonso has a wholesome fear that a new constitution in this squally 1931 might make it necessary and wholesome for him to change his boarding house.

Having, however, the sympathy and counsel of the British throne and government, with other royal relatives of the James I line, he may prove canny and diplomatic enough to compromise the situation so as to continue to enjoy crown and compensation while the political insurrectors do the governing—for a while.

POLICE RADIO AID.

The action of council empowering the police committee to equip the department with a radio system is interesting.

The criminal element in Atlanta has got our inadequate police force almost stopped in its tracks by the number of the lawbreakers, their audacity and the use of automobiles for quick and safe flight. The citizens have become nervous and outraged by the dangerous situation. They are entitled to all possible protection from criminal attacks and want it in whatever form and at whatever cost is necessary.

The proper and adequate equipment of the department with a station and cruising radio system may be equal to adding a hundred extra men to the force. Every patrolman will have his efficiency more than doubled by the quickness in broadcasting crimes, getting descriptions of the criminals and their cars, and the lookout he can instantly make for the fleeing outlaws.

With an extension of the radio alarm system to surrounding territories it should soon make Atlanta perilous ground for the operations of holdup artists, bandits and other flagrant outlaws. At present they find the city a profitable and fairly safe field in which to operate, but with the radio system in expert operation the metropolitan area can be made a policed island from which safe escape for a criminal will be difficult and infrequent.

THE INESCAPABLE ISSUE.

Some weeks ago The Constitution warned southern democrats that there will come in the party's national convention next year a finish fight between the democratic friends and opponents of the eighteenth amendment which commits the nation to prohibition.

Events of the week in the United States senate, featured by speeches from democrats who are for the amendment and others who are against it, show that The Constitution correctly forecast the critical and pungent issue that the party will have to face next year and upon which it will be forced to take a definite position.

It will be most unfortunate to both parties if, in the meantime, the congress does not have the wisdom and courage to submit to the states, whether to their legislatures or to conventions, and preferably the latter, a substitute for the eighteenth amendment under which the good of prohibition may be preserved and the crowding evils that have sprung out of it may be reduced.

Whether to continue manifestly futile efforts to enforce prohibition, as written in the constitution now, or try a more promising policy, has grown into a universal problem throughout the nation. Common sense and the interests of public order and social safety demand a new revelation of public opinion. The way to get that is to submit the alternative amendment—the sooner the better.

THE LIGHTS OF HOME.

Few news stories of recent weeks have told, in a mere dozen lines, a more dramatic, heart-moving episode than that from a small town in Illinois, carried on the front page of The Constitution of last Monday.

The story was of a youth, missing from home four years who, returning, attempted to hold up the corner grocery store before he again entered his father's house. The grocer fired at the masked robber and wounded him. Next morning the dead boy was found, within sight of the lighted window of his own home, with marks in the ground indicating he had vainly struggled to reach the simple beacon of hope.

Such a story is packed with pathos. It sets the mind to wondering and compels imagination to fill in the gaps. Was it the boy's first crime? Did he seek, through theft, to secure a little money to testify that his years away had not been altogether wasted? Was he trying, in desperation, to hide poverty from his family and salve a wounded pride that hated the idea of coming back, penniless, a failure?

In any event the boy, of course, did wrong. His death can be blamed to none but himself. The pathos of his vain struggle, wounded, to creep into the shelter of the home nest, cannot cover the evil thing he did.

It is a pity he did not remember, before the crime was committed, that story of the ancient prodigal whose father forgave all "for he that was lost is returned." Home asks not how much the returning wanderer has, it only opens wide its arms and sings the triumph song, "My son is home again."

Is President Hoover trying to sneak the states' rights doctrine away from the democrats?

If a government loan without security or interest isn't a dole, what is the Anglo-American name for it?

The Association Against the Prohibition Amendment should apply for one of those drouth relief loans.

Among the novelties yet to appear is the marriage ceremony by radio. It is overdue already.

Several marine disasters have been averted recently. One of them was threatened to Smedley Butler.

Chairman Raskob doesn't want any sympathy from the national democratic committee; he wants those simoleons that are due him.

President Hoover is due now to know how it feels to be told to "Hands up!"

Smedley Butler is going onto the lecture platform. There he can talk the air blood-red and get paid for it.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

Ludwig's Autobiography.

As German critics had predicted, Herr Emil Ludwig came out with an autobiography on his fiftieth birthday. He entitled it "Gifts of Life" and presents the world not only with a full and very frank account of his career, his marriage and his home, but with an entirely new and truly delightful method of writing autobiographies. He begins with an account of his own very noteworthy father, a famous oculist of Breslau, whose Jewish birth prevented the full recognition he deserved. But he ends with a chapter from the diary of his own young son, written in the year 1980. This 60-year-old gentleman, asked by an American university for copies of the Ludwig works no longer available, which seem worth digging up for his centenary, finds one at last up in the garret.

In 1980 things may be said which no self-respecting man would ever write about himself in 1930. Since in this book he maintains that the success of his biographies is due to concentration on details the rest of the world has ignored, it is possible that the ironic self-analysis of this last chapter may enhance the prophet's value in his own country.

Young Ludwig says, speaking of his father, Emile: "For the whole of an afternoon, on which he pretended to be working hard and told us he was obliged to do so for our daily bread, he was in reality wandering all over the house arranging cigarets according to their brand, or flowers according to their species. For years he pulled the curtains to every day; they were either drawn too far or too little. He could not eat if his fork were placed crookedly. The straightness of garden paths was his special care." There are such details as his superstitions and his little games: "He never could tear up a visiting-card, either his own or anybody else's. He could not write tomorrow's date and was dependent, if in a car, upon whether the next light showed on the left or on the right, and the number of his hotel room.

"My mother must have suffered often. He would make bets with himself in a hotel bedroom that he could change his shirt with the door open before anybody walked down the corridor. He was always preoccupied with dates, and seemed to possess a mystic calendar and as he could always calculate when he would be ready with a book he always finished too soon. He never could stand any pause, and when a chapter was finished wrote the number and title of the next on the new page, so as to pretend he was in the middle of it."

Financier's Advice.

More people seem to be guided by fancy than by reason in the conduct of their business and life, if one is to believe an English economist who has just written a book under the name of Angas. Angas cites the case of a London financier who made an immense fortune on the stock exchange, and who told his son: "My boy remember always that a human being is more inclined to be hopeful than to be discouraged. But I advise you to be guided rather by your moments of pessimism and to keep down your optimism." This is not to be taken as a rule for investment, but as a guide on the conduct of life in general. If the worst is not always certain, yet it seems true that one makes fewer mistakes in judgment of men and things through pessimism than through optimism.

The same English capitalist had another set of precepts, which he believed, had paved him the way to wealth and power. Here are the main points of his advise to young businessmen: "Be exacting, but patient." "Be cool and pessimistic." This does not mean that one should not be affectionate or social among friends. To sit and laugh alone is a sign of bitterness. "Laugh with your friends." "Do not under any circumstances be dragged along by the crowd."

This is good advise, but extremely difficulty to carry out. It requires firmness of character and power of discernment. One cannot expect to be always right in the face of the crowd that goes the other way.

"Never get excited." Not so hard on cold-blooded Englishmen, perhaps, but for others "of lesser breed without the law" to try it may mean heart failure or explosion. "After a period of intense activity, stop working, rest a while, but before resuming work assume an observant attitude for a while." Lastly there is this: "Don't let success get to your head. Keep cool and you will reap more success still."

FLORIDA GAMBLING SHIP AGROUND NEAR TAMPA

TAMPA, Fla., Feb. 18.—(AP)—The former gambling ship, the Monte Carlo, was aground today on a mud bank off the end of Davis Island, harbor officials said. During a heavy wind Monday night the vessel dragged its anchor but came to rest on the flats 100 feet off the bulkheading. The ship was towed here from the Mexican Gulf near St. Petersburg after expected patronage failed to arrive and the boat was found drifting toward shore. Its manager said the ship would be left where it was until summer, when it was to be taken to Atlantic City. He expected high tide to float the stranded steamer at some future time.

LOOKING AND LISTENING

BY SAM W. SMALL.

Broadcasting From the Den Where My Eyes and Ears Have Their Job.

Ladies and gentlemen of the "Looking and Listening" addicts, this is being broadcast from the "potlikker and corn-pone" sanctum where I earn that kind of truck—"and here's Sam!"

The first piece of news I want to lodge under your hair is that at the Georgia Press Institute, at the University at Athens, on Saturday, Hon. Claude G. Bowers, editor of the New York Evening World, keynoter at the last national democratic convention, and author of that splendid and perpetual history of "The Tragic Era," is to be heard in one of his pungent and highly instructive addresses.

* * * *

A Hundred Per Cent Democrat.

Claude Bowers, let me assure you, is a Hoosier-bred democrat of high visibility. From boyhood he was trained on that soil and in that atmosphere which grew such memorable Indiana democrats as Hendricks, McDonald, Turpie, Voorhees, Ike Gray, John Kern and Tom Marshall.

Thirty-five years ago I came to know Bowers in connection with Indiana politics and we were participants in some of the hot campaigns waged in that state. Bowers never faltered or flinched in the sterling and courageous advocacy of that brand of democracy that used to make the party a fighting and victorious force. And today he is one of the best fitted democrats I know to tell the party leaders how to be winning democrats in 1932.

Pity Atlanta Can't Hear Him.

I consider it a distinct deprivation that the engagements of Bowers will not permit him to come to Atlanta to address the legislature and Atlantans at large.

His appearance here would pack the city auditorium to the ceiling.

I do not believe that anywhere in the nation have the people read with more relish and approved more unstintedly "The Tragic Era" book than here in Atlanta. We have exhausted the reserve edition of The Constitution that contained my review of it and still I get numerous letters asking verifications of many of the revelations contained in it. Since Pike's "Prostrate State," now long out of print, no work has so completely shown up the radical rascalities of the reconstruction era as has the Bowers book. For it the southern people owe him a heavy debt of gratitude.

Admiral Byrd Will Be Here.

Next, ladies and gentlemen, let me remind you that tonight week, Thursday, the 26th, that most daring and famous polar explorer, Rear Admiral Richard Evelyn Bird, descendant of ancient Virginian heroes, statesmen and social constructors, will be here to tell at the City Auditorium the story of his world-amazing adventures.

He is the intrepid and conquesting American Icarus who flew across both poles of this peculiar spheroid that God set whirling in space so many millions of years ago that arithmetic "gives it up." Neither pictures nor print can visualize to you the high lights and hazards of those flights in the arctic and the antarctic as can the words that come from the lips of the hero of them both.

Certainly no lover of the heroic and the picturesque will miss Dickey Byrd next Thursday evening.

Man of a Machine-Gun Mouth.

Next on my program, to appear here on March 5, is that marine major general of nationwide popularity, Smedley Butler.

Smedley has recently stood in the public eye ten cubits high as a victim of his own machine-gun mouth that seldom discharges without drawing bad blood and bawlouts.

From his sensational stunts which follow in every capacity to which he is assigned you wouldn't image that Butler was Quaker born and bred up, but he was. One of the finest men in congress that I ever knew was Smedley's noble father, so long chairman of the house naval committee. He was chock full of fighting spirit—hence Smedley!

Smedley is an all-'round, all right American soldier, in spite of his impulsive disregards of red tape and conventions. So don't miss hearing him when he comes to "Blow the Lid Off!"

Last of All, But Not Least.

The bell is about to ring me down, but last, but not least, let me tell you that our premier movie impresario, Carter Barron, is presenting at the Fox theater, the finest thing of the season.

Most of you, like myself, are stuck fast in fascination for the superb voice and acting of Lawrence Tibbett. Reinforced by the charm and accurate acting of Grace Moore, they are giving in "New Moon" one of the most heart-enthralling pictures ever put on the screen.

There is a great mass of screen stuff that gets no responsive reaction from me at all. The very titles of some of it keep me as far from the theater as possible, but when I can see Tibbett, for instance, in "The Rogue Song" or the "New Moon," I will leave my "potlikker and cornpone" cold to get there early and miss not a whisper of the whole scenario.

HOLLYWOOD IN PERSON

BY MOLLIE MERRICK.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Feb. 18.—(NANA)—Death, that dark director, has closed another life story today. Louis Wolheim, famous strong man of the movies, played the last sequence as he lived—smiling fearlessly.

Friends of the actor heard early this morning that he had succumbed to the illness which had necessitated an operation a few days ago. His illness had been brief. His attitude to it characteristically nonchalant.

When his intimates noticed with considerable concern that he had lost 30 pounds in three weeks, he told them he had reduced preparatory to accepting a role which called for a slender man. This morning, Doctors Norman Sprague and Clarence Hopkins, who attended Wolheim, named the cause of death as cancer of the stomach, which had necessitated the operation and would have required a second one had Wolheim survived.

The tremendous courage of the man is only equalled by that of Lon Chaney, who played up to the last moment in full knowledge that his days were numbered—who worked with death at his elbow and who insisted that nobody else be allowed to share the burden of that dread knowledge with him.

Louis Wolheim's personality has been one of the strange paradoxes of cinema histroy. He was 50 years of age yet looked about 40. Born in New York, he was a famous college athlete, a football hero and for many years professor of mathematics at Cornell University before the motion picture profession drew him away from his academic career.

Movies saw in him a lovable bad man. He was the villain with the broad streak of humanity—the tough guy with a heart of gold—the gruff one with the sentiment of a woman. It is perhaps this characterization of the sentimental, hard-boiled guy which will stand out as his greatest screen portrayal. Sergeant Kat in "All Quiet on the Western Front"—an unforgettable characterization—the perfectly drawn portrait of a man whose face belied his spirit. When the great roles of cinema history are compared, few will hold up with this one, this most subtle unfolding of a complex character.

Few people know that Louis Wolheim hated the very things which brought him fame. He disliked the broken nose—result of football games—which gave him a menacing look until one searched the depths of those kindly eyes. He had a great longing to appear just once before the public as he really was, one of the kindliest, most lovable and cultured men the screen has ever known.

Some time back he conferred with local plastic surgeons about his nose. He wanted the bridge restored to its original shape. He learned from producers that he would lose value with them should he do this; so he sacrificed the ambition of his heart to the needs of the profession.

The screen has plenty of handsome men without personality. Louis Wolheim with his broken nose, his kindly eyes, his tremendous magnetism, was worth a mint to any director.

Personally I shall always remember him in the role of the convict pal in "Condemned." To me the greatest death scene ever made was that one when Louis Wolheim, having given his life for his friend, is drowning and comes up through that muddy water, for the third time, to smile an unforgettable smile of love and loyalty before the seas blot him out forever.

He died that way. Smiling. Hiding his heartbreak and his knowledge of what was to happen from his wife and his niece who sat at his bedside until the last. Telling his friends he was dieting. Smiling in the face of their concern. Smiling . . . with death in his heart. Louis Wolheim—a fine actor, a good friend, a great man.

He goes to join a group of his intimates, for never in the history of Hollywood have so many of the famous gone across the shadow-line in one year's time. Milton Sills, also a mathematician with whom Wolheim sat many long evenings far into the night, talking of things the lots of Hollywood would never comprehend. Lon Chaney, master of the unusual characterization who numbered Wolheim among his friends. Mabel Normand, who made cinema history and who wrote, all unknowing, one of the most sparkling autobiographies in the "Book of Life." Howard Hawkes, famous director who megaphoned for him in the old days and who fell from an airplane in the height of his fame.

Health Talks

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

TONSILLECTOMY BY DIATHERMY OVER THERE.

Last April an English doctor, Walter Collins, reported in the London Lancet his experience in the removal of tonsils by diathermy. He had employed this method in 150 cases, adults mainly, and he believes the method has every advantage of ordinary surgical tonsillectomy and none of its disadvantages. Dr. Collins believes diathermy is not suitable for children under 14 years of age, since to them a general anesthetic is not so alarming as the appearance of the diathermy apparatus.

In this country some of the more skilled specialists, doctors who know the art of managing children and gaining their confidence and co-operation, have found diathermy quite satisfactory for the extirpation of the tonsils on children as young as five or six years. Of course only the exceptionally well bred child can have diathermy treatment.

For adults Dr. Collins says no general anesthetic is required. It is sufficient to spray the throat with a local anesthetic.

The whole treatment lasts only a few seconds. The British surgeon says it is advisable to complete the tonsillectomy in two, three or four stages or treatments at intervals of a week or more. The patient should be examined at the end of a month, and again after the lapse of three months; should any fragment of lymphoid (tonsil) tissue have escaped destruction, it is easily disposed of at this time, with a touch of diathermy.

Collins has his patients use a simple antiseptic mouth wash after meals, but absolutely forbids gargling.

Following each such treatment the portion of tonsil that has been coagulated or desiccated shrivels and gradually sloughs away.

No secondary bleeding occurred in the 150 cases. It was never necessary to hospitalize a patient.

In England perhaps they have never been quite so radical, not to say rabid, about the removal of tonsils as we have been in this country. From the growling and snarling and gritting of teeth I fancy my plain and unchallenged assertions about the tonsillectomy scandal in this country have not been quite in vain, yet there is still room for a lot of improvement in the "accepted" way of dealing with bad tonsils in America. Especially does the rank and file of the medical profession here need to stir out of its dumb apathy in respect to this modern method, and at least acknowledge that it is a good alternative for patients who, for one reason or another, cannot undergo a general anesthetic or risk the shock of surgical tonsillectomy even under local anesthesia. The fact that some of the would-be leaders have conducted a vain campaign to discourage diathermy in throat surgery, despite its adoption in brain surgery, goiter surgery and urology, is a poor consolation for the inept nose and throat men who have failed to equip themselves to provide this boon for handicapped patients.

Here is an opportunity for many a good doctor—there are still cities without a throat specialist who is able to extirpate tonsils with diathermy. And the intelligent public is more and more demanding this modern treatment.

ANTI-NIGHT WORK MOVE GAINS FORCE

79 Per Cent of Textile Industry Now Joined in Movement.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—(AP)—George A. Sloan, president of the Cotton Textile Institute, said today that 79 per cent of the cotton mills in the United States, including 72 per cent of night runners, have indicated that they will discontinue night employment of women and minors by March 1.

Mr. Sloan said that the members of the Cotton Textile Institute executive committee are confident that the recommendation for discontinuance of night work will succed by March 1.

"Each day as we approach March 1 it becomes more clearly evident that the industry will reach the goal in the present voluntary movement to discontinue night employment of women and minors in cotton mills by that date," Sloan said. "As the matter stands today 79 per cent of mills in the United States, including 72 per cent of night runners, have indicated they will conform to this recommendation, which has the support of the president of the United States, many other federal and state authorities, newspaper editors in practically every mill center, and a large preponderance of mills engaged in night work.

"Members of our executive committee, including southern and northern mill leaders, who met here last night, are now confident that the recommendation will succeed."

A goal of 80 per cent was set by the institute to participate in the agreement by March 1.

DUNKERS OF NORTH THOUGHT BEHIND LONG'S HERESY

is being used as a cat's-paw by the powerful dunking interests of the north to bring Dixie into disrepute.

I scarcely need remind you that I come of an old crumbling family myself, one of my great-grandfathers having crumbled a gigantic cornpone, as big as a watermelon, into a 10-gallon bucket of potlikker and polished the whole off in five minutes on the main street of my home town. "Anybody who dunks," he used to say to me "is a sissy."

I hope I shan't have to say anything further on this subject.

From Mrs. Cornelia Barrett Ligon, in Galveston, Texas, came a message of support for the crumblers. "Stand up for southern rights," she telegraphed to The Constitution. "Crumble cornpone in potlikker always."

LONG HIMSELF IS CRUMBLER, SAYS NEW ORLEANS WRITER

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Hermann B. Deutsch, staff writer of the New Orleans Item, in an open letter to Governor Huey P. Long today on the potlikker question, broke his peace and recalled that the governor used to crumble his cornpone in the brew, whereas the governor now says he dunks it.

He recalled a compact made between the governor, Leon Weiss and himself in the lunch room of the Hotel Heidelberg in Baton Rouge during the recent regular session of the state legislature to popularize potlikker "to the gastronomic salvation of the suffering masses of the United States."

"Then," said Deutsch, "when first you preached to me the doctrine of regeneration by potlikker, you did not dunk, you crumbled.

"Can it be, sir," asked Deutsch, "that following the bestowal upon you of the silk and velvet hood of a doctor of laws you have gone as completely collegiate as Harold Teen, who daily graces our comic page and also is an ardent advocate of the dunk?

"I kept my peace, sir, when the issue of your green silk pajamas was raised," said Deutsch. . . . But in the matter of dunking corn bread I must speak."

CAIRO, Ga., Feb. 18.—W. H. Robinson, president of the local Chamber of Commerce, makes the following contribution to the potlikker controversy:

"We notice from today's press dispatches there is considerable agitation between The Constitution and Governor Huey P. Long as well as others who have come in for a say regarding cornpone and potlikker. So, living in wiregrass Georgia all our lives, right among the real collard greens, we wish to say here and now the only way a Georgia Cracker, when at home, eats potlikker is by crumbling the pone. We know what we're talking about, for we shipped 200,000 pounds of collard seed from here every year and a revolution is going to be started if you, Long, or anyone else tries to change this collard green potlikker crowd. We know our potlikker."

CHIEF JUSTICE AFFIRMS JUDGMENT FOR CRUMBLING

Walter C. Hendrix, attorney, chairman of the Fulton county commission, an ardent cornpone and potlikker fan, said it isn't so much the method as the quality and quantity with him. "I admire either method, just so I get a big portion. I'm for the way I can best get the most of it," he declared.

"Anybody," asserted Commissioner Paul S. Etheridge, "who would dunk the cornpone in the potlikker couldn't possibly be kind to grandchildren. Personally, I eat the pone with the greens, and let others have the potlikker, but if, by any chance, I should take the potlikker and cornpone together, I would crumble the pone, by all means."

"Dunkers," ruled Chief Justice Richard B. Russell, of the Georgia supreme court, in a dietary decision handed down Tuesday, "are liable to get indigestion. Cornpone should be crumbled into the potlikker because that method makes it more easily digested. It's like making Scotch porridge or oatmeal. The cornpone should be mixed with the potlikker so the liquid will combine with the solids and make the dish more readily assimilated by the stomach. It is a great diet, the principal benefit coming from the iron which is dissolved from the greens into the liquid. I am very fond of cornpone and potlikker, and indulge in it frequently. Judgment (for crumbling) affirmed."

County Commissioner Walter B. Stewart, who was raised on cornpone and potlikker, admits of both dunking and crumbling. "The potlikker is best when dumplings are cooked in it, and after cooking, cornpone is crumbled into it and a big piece of cornpone is used for dunking. The bigger the better," said Mr. Stewart.

Charles J. Haden, capitalist, of 1521 Peachtree, N. E., regards the mixing of cornpone and potlikker as a great way to merge two fine Georgia products. "Crumbling wins my vote, every time," he said.

Tubby Walton, exponent of southern cooking and a walking advertisement for his own cafe, likes potlikker with cornpone crumbled into it. "That makes it non-skid," said Tubby. "I don't like cobblestones, therefore I do not like dunking. I ought to know something about cornpone and potlikker—I've eaten flocks of it. It shore gives you horsepower."

Potlikker does not have an ardent supporter in Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of Georgia School of Technology, but cornpone and fish—"Boy, bring on another order—cornpone and fish, with the finny part of the diet fresh from the stream and frying pan 'would make anyone fight their dearest friend,'" Dr. Brittain said. "However, if I did like the taste of potlikker and was addicted to it, I should crumble the pone according to the best traditions of the south. Dunking belongs to the Dutch. I am certain, from the derivation of the name, that dunking came from the Dutch, and I, for one, hope it stays with them."

Colonel Fred J. Paxon, of Davison-Paxon Company, beloved Atlantan, confessed himself at a loss on the subject of potlikker. "I do not know what dunking means," he said. "My wife said this morning that it just shows my ignorance from a domestic standpoint. If I had been reared properly, she said, I would know all about cornpone and potlikker. Mrs. Paxon is from Troup county, and she said that cornpone and potlikker are quite a delicacy. It is good either way, according to her."

"Potlikker should be drunk as a cocktail, and the cornpone eaten without either crumbling or dunking," said Matt G. Perkins, publisher of the North Side Home News, a community weekly newspaper. With that statement, he was catalogued as being beyond the pale—two pales, in fact.

BONEHEAD CLUB PLANS TO SETTLE ISSUE SATURDAY

Legislation on the subject of cornpone and potlikker will be enacted at a mock session of the general assembly of Georgia and Atlanta borough council at 7 o'clock Saturday night when the Bonehead Club meets at the Capital City Club, Edgar Watkins, Jr., keeper of the sacred archives, announced Wednesday.

R. A. McGill, chief bonehead, will issue a proclamation calling the unusual session of the legislature and council to pass on the cornpone and potlikker etiquette question.

"Personally, I have an open mind in the matter," said Mr. Watkins. "But, whatever the club does is sure to settle the question one way or the other, once and for all. Lobbyists for either dunking or crumbling will be admitted if they bring their own potlikker."

A number of legislators and members of council are expected to attend the meeting. The Bonehead Club is noted for the ridicule and jokes it piles upon the heads of the dignified and gets away with.

AUTHORITY ON ETIQUETTE REFUSES TO TAKE SIDES

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—(AP)—To dunk or not to dunk cornpone in potlikker is a question to which Emily Post, world authority on etiquette, says yes and no.

She refused tonight to take sides with either Governor Huey Long, of Louisiana, who dunks his cornpone, or with those who oppose him on the ground the only right thing to do is to crumble it.

"I can't set down rules that conflict with neighborhood customs," she said. "The only thing I can offer is 'when in Rome, do as the Romans do.'

"If Governor Long stands steadfastly by dunking, those who oppose him ought to dunk when they dine with him. But when he dines with the exponents of crumbling, he ought to crumble.

"It's better not to be uppish about it, though. The only thing I really care about is rudeness of the host or hostess. Their business is to see the guests enjoy themselves. If it is going to make somebody unhappy to have to dunk, let him be allowed to crumble."

It's Hard To Make an Old Vine Attach Itself to an Old Tree

By Robert Quillen

Should people marry early or late?

The president of a great American school for girls says early marriages are unwise.

The objection to such marriages usually is based on two assumptions: First, that young people aren't wise enough to know what they want, and, second, that the children of young mothers are not equal to those borne in maturity.

Both assumptions are plausible, but neither is sound.

As a matter of fact, young people are the only ones who do know what they want. They want perfection, and they see it in one another.

It is true that those who marry young and thereafter see little of one another are in danger of growing apart as their tastes mature, but those who live in normal intimacy of marriage tend to become more like one another as they develop the settled ways of maturity. The fact of youth gives them a pliancy and a capacity for adaptation and adjustment that older people have outgrown. They learn from one another and conform to one another. They compromise.

The successful marriage is a union of lovers, and youth is the time of love. Only the young love blindly.

With maturity comes caution and discretion. Old love is canny and makes a good bargain. The opinion of the neighbors is considered. Costs are counted. And such marriages are not true matings, but mere unions of convenience and expediency. They afford little happiness, for they lack the ingredients of which happiness is made.

The true love of youth is the best assurance of a happy marriage. It isn't critical or hard to please. Inexperience makes it blind until the force of habit makes blindness no longer necessary.

The ideal time to marry might be when the man is 30 and the woman 25 if nothing mattered except economic security and mental and physical perfection, but 30 and 25 are beginning to be critical and calculating and suspicion has taken the place of faith. It is too late for ecstacy and not yet time for the saving grace of philosophy.

The time to marry is when both are young—when their education is finished and they have learned to earn their living. Their youth doesn't matter if they can keep the wolf from the door and their love is real.

As for the argument that young mothers bear imperfect children, observe that the world is ruled by men whose mothers were wed at 18.

It isn't age that makes a tree bear good fruit; it is the quality of the tree.

"AE" Will Lecture In Atlanta March 4

George W. Russell, known throughout the literary world as "AE," and agricultural poet, painter and economist, will deliver a lecture on the subject of the Irish literary movement when he comes to Atlanta March 4, it was announced Wednesday by the Fine Arts Club, which is sponsoring Mr. Russell's appearance. Tickets to the lecture, which will be held at the Piedmont Driving Club, may be obtained from Mrs. M. Hines Roberts, 1268 Piedmont avenue, N. E.

It was announced that Mr. Russell will talk about his friends, W. B. Yeats, the Nobel prize winner of several years ago; George Moore, George Bernard Shaw, Lord Dunsany, James Joyce and others.

Under the pseudonym "AE," Mr. Russell has become a world figure. When he began to write under the pen name of "Aeon," the printer was unable to read his writing and set up the diphthong with an interrogation mark for the rest. Thereafter Mr. Russell used only the first two letters of the pen name.

LEGION COMMANDER SAVANNAH VISITOR

SAVANNAH, Ga., Feb. 18.—(AP)—Suffering from the after effects of an attack of pneumonia with which he was seized three weeks ago in Indianapolis, Colonel Ralph T. O'Neil, of Tokepa, Kan., national commander of the American Legion, arrived here this evening from Columbia, S. C., to enjoy Savannah's sunshine for a couple of days. He was accompanied by Russell Cook, Indianapolis, director of Americanism, Mrs. Cook, and Frank E. Samuel, Indianapolis, assistant adjutant.

VICEROY, GANDHI SUSPEND PARLEY

British and Indian Leaders Halt Conferences To Seek Advice of Aides.

NEW DELHI, India, Feb. 18.—(AP) Mahatma Gandhi and the viceory of India had another three-hour conference today, their second, then adjourned further conferences so that both could consult their associates.

Neither discussed the matters they had talked about and no definite date was announced for resumption of their conversations but it was believed that there would be another meeting Friday or Saturday.

Several members of the congress party working committee have come to the capital to talk with Gandhi and the viceory probably will communicate with Captain Wedgwood Benn, secretary of state for India, and with Ramsay MacDonald.

Suspension of the conferences was interpreted as an indication that the two men had brought up questions so important that neither felt competent to pass on them independently.

The congress party was inclined to view the conferences with some pessimism, holding that if Gandhi and Lord Irwin had reached even a partial agreement both would have been eager to announce it.

MYRICK SEEKS SENATE PROBE OF BURNING ISSUE

senate. There are senators who voted to begin the sessions here at 9 o'clock who seem to be unable to get here on time. Their tardiness makes it impractical for the senate to proceed with its regular order of business and, while we wait for the late ones to show up, I know of no more pleasant or profitable way for this body to spend its time than investigating the relative merits of dunking and crumbling."

Thinks Flavor Preserved.

Pressed for his reasons for favoring dunking, Senator Myrick said that the consumption method espoused by the Louisiana governor was preferable for the reason that dunking preserved the original flavor of the potlikker better than crumbling. He announced, after his senate speech, that he would begin research work today in order to present adequately to his colleagues his reasons for taking the side of Governor Long.

President W. Cecil Neill, a warm friend of potlikker in any form, expressed a preference for crumbling but thought that at times, as for instance, when the appetite disapproved of a mushy substance, the dunking method would pass muster.

Representative Adkins, of Calhoun county, advanced probably the most unique argument on both sides of the question.

"It all depends," he said, "on the temperature at which the potlikker is removed from the pot. If the likker is hot, dunking is to be preferred. If lukewarm, or cold, then crumbling is preferable."

Veteran Crumbler Speaks.

Senator Seaborn Wright, probably the oldest crumbler in the upper house, came out unreservedly for crumbling.

"Years and years before you were born, son," the senator explained, "I used to go down to the mess hall of the slaves on my father's plantation and there, at the knees of my negro mammy, I first learned the art of crumbling. I shall never subscribe to the Long heresy."

Colonel John T. Boifeuillet, one of the familiar figures of the legislature, said that he crumbled his corn pone into the potlikker for the same reason that he crushed crackers to put in oyster soup. Any other procedure, he said, was indefensible.

Representative Bennett, of Clarke county, voted for crumbling and said he would sit in the halls of the general assembly until corn planting time before he would ever vote to dunk corn pone in potlikker.

"It is one occasion," said Representative Hamp McWhorter, of Oglethorpe, "when I know that my position will be unanimously sustained by the good people I have the honor to represent. I shall vote for crumbling."

$300 'Nice Decorations' Found Worth $50,000

CHICAGO, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Mrs. Jason F. Whitney, of Evanston, could have a neat little profit of some 16,667 per cent in case she ever wanted to dispose of the "nice decorations" she purchased from a Chicago dealer, art experts said today.

The "nice decorations" were identified by Maurice Goldblatt, connoisseur, as authentic paintings of the Flemish master, Rubens, and estimated that they were worth in the neighborhood of $50,000.

DAVIS IS NAMED SENATE COUNSEL

Democratic Leader Will Represent Solons in Power Tilt With Hoover.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—(AP)—The senate will be represented by John W. Davis, democratic presidential candidate in 1924, in its court contest with President Hoover over the right of Chairman Smith, of the power commission, to his office.

Davis will come to Washington in a few days to open the unprecedented legal proceedings which are expected to add another chapter in the history of constitutional clashes between the executive and legislative branches of the government.

Selection of Davis assures a spectacular court test with the former presidential candidate on one side and possibly Attorney-General Mitchell on the other. Final decision probably will be rendered by the supreme court.

Davis was chosen by a subcommittee of the senate judiciary committee composed of Senators Norris, republican, Nebraska; Walsh, democrat, Montana, and Steiwer, republican, Oregon. Walsh, the leader of the senate's contest with the president, announced the selection of Davis and his acceptance.

The dispute between the senate and the president over Smith's nomination arose from the dismissal of two employes of the commission whom many senators regarded as "valuable public servants."

It was charged they were allowed to go because of their attacks on valuation claims of power companies. One of the employes was later reinstated.

The senate reconsidered the nominations of Smith and Commissioners Garsaud and Draper. The latter two were reconfirmed but the senate rejected Smith's nomination despite President Hoover's refusal to admit the legality of the action.

Davis, on behalf of the senate, will file proceedings in the District of Columbia supreme court.

He will file the suit in the name of Leo A. Rover, local district attorney, as required by law. Rover has agreed to the use of his name, although he will represent the other side of the case. He is under Attorney-General Mitchell, who advised President Hoover the senate's action was not legal.

Sheik Love Still Moves At Breakneck Speed

Love among the sheiks still moves as fast as in the days of the silent movies.

Sheik Mahmud, of the Wahabis of Arabia, went to Mostar, Jugoslavia, recently. On the afternoon of his arrival, he met and fell in love with a comely maiden. In the evening, they were married. The sheik shut his bride up in a room at an inn and went forth to celebrate in a manner befitting his high station in life.

When he returned, he found his bride had fled with a younger man. The next morning, Sheik Mahmud had the marriage annulled.

ALABAMA BUS BILL BRINGS HOUSE FIGHT

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Feb. 18.—(AP)—Heated debate today was provoked in the house of the Alabama legislature as two bills designed to regulate bus and truck operations on public highways were called up for consideration, but the first passed 62 to 18, as parliamentary moves to delay consideration were defeated.

The bill by Representative Beebe, of Baldwin county, fixes the size, weight and speed of trucks and buses operating on the highways, limiting their speed to 35 miles per hour. The bill also provides maximum weight and size regulations.

The fight on the administration by the younger members of the senate flared anew as Representative St. John's bill to transfer collection of corporation registration fees from the secretary of state to the tax commission came up.

WELFARE BODY NAMES EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Appointments Made by the Rev. C. R. Stauffer, New President.

Members of the new executive committee of the Family Welfare Society were announced Thursday by the Rev. C. R. Stauffer, newly elected president, as follows: Horace Russell, Kendall Weisiger, R. K. Rambo, R. A. Magill, J. C. Malone, Mrs. S. F. Boykin and A. S. Nance.

L. J. Elsas was designated as chairman of the finance committee.

With announcement of the appointments, Dr. Stauffer called a meeting of the new executive committe for Friday afternoon at 12:30 o'clock at the Daffodil restaurant, when plans for a new year of work in the society's field of human service will be discussed and Atlanta's needs and organization for the task will be appraised, according to the outline of the session.

Besides Dr. Stauffer the following were announced as elected as officers of the society for 1931: Mr. Elsas, first vice president; Mr. Malone, second vice president; Mr. Magill, treasurer, and Miss Ada Woolfolk, executive secretary, and these members of the board of directors:

Kendall Weisiger, Mrs. Harry L. Greene, Dr. David Marx, Roy LeCraw, R. K. Rambo, S. C. Dobbs, Jr., Marck C. Pope, Jr., Charles N. Marshall, Dr. W. L. Gilbert, B. Graham West, F. A. Jordan, Horace Russell, Dr. W. W. Alexander, H. Reid Hunter, A. Steve Nance, Herbert D. Oliver, Mrs. Leonard Haas, John M. Slaton, Jr., R. A. Clark, Charles N. Walker, Goodloe Yancey, Edgar Watkins, Jr., Clark Howell, Jr., J. C. McMillin, E. R. Paris, Judge Garland Watkins, E. R. Partridge, Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, Dr. Comer M. Woodward, C. H. State Board Denies Clemency To 'Trigger Woman' and Aide

GLENN DAGUE AND IRENE SCHROEDER.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 18.—(AP)—The state board of pardons today refused to recommend to Governor Pinchot the commutation of the death sentences to Mrs. Irene Schroeder and W. Glenn Dague, convicted slayers of Highway Patrolman Brady Paul. The two are sentenced to die in the electric chair next Monday. The one chance remaining for the condemned pair is a direct appeal to Governor Pinchot. In the past, however, the custom of the chief executive has been to follow the recommendation of the pardon body.

SOUTHERN ICE GROUP ELECTS GEORGIANS

CHARLESTON, S. C., Feb. 18.—(AP)—Allen Rushton, of Birmingham, grandson of one of the founders of the Southern Ice Exchange, was elected president of that organization today as it ended its forty-second annual convention.

H. W. Caldwell, of LaGrange, Ga., was named vice president, and Walter F. Coxe, of Atlanta, was re-elected secretary and treasurer.

J. A. Smith Entitled to $5,000, Court of Appeals Rules.

J. A. Smith, who obtained signatures to an option on the basis of which the borough of Atlanta contracted to pay $410,000 for the Perkerson tract as a municipal park, acted as a private citizen and was entitled to the $5,000 he collected as a commission, it was decided Wednesday by the Georgia court of appeals in sustaining a decision of the lower court in the premises.

Suit was instituted against Smith by J. B. Huckeby and members of the Sylvan Hills Improvement Club, who contended that Smith was chairman of a committee from the club and acting as its representative in obtaining the option signatures. The lower court held Smith was entitled to his commission and the higher court sustained the decision.

Purchase of the Perkerson tract has resulted in return of several indictments in the borough graft probe, but no member of council has been convicted on any of the counts involving the purchase. Former Alderman Charles M. Ford resigned from council after he was found guilty of receiving a portion of the $20,000 commission the Perkerson heirs paid to get the sale through council. He later admitted that he received some of the commission and named several council members and private citizens with whom he claimed he divided it.

First battle for Cut Prices fought in 1884

ON January 20, 1884, when Dr. Joseph Jacobs fought his first price battle for the people of Atlanta, the Atlanta Constitution carried this notice:

"Don't pay 500% profit on your medicines. If you desire to obtain your drugs, medicines, etc., at reasonable prices you must make a decided stand and absolutely refuse to buy an article owned or controlled by the "Campion Ring," who are seeking to raise the price of an article—next to food—the most important to existence. We are glad to sell our goods at reasonable prices. JACOBS INDEPENDENT DRUG STORE, Marietta and Peachtree Streets."

The well-remembered fight Dr. Jacobs won for cut prices against the "Campion Ring" nearly fifty years ago was considered a wonder achievement and his store was hailed as the first cut-rate drug store of the South. Ever since that eventful time progressive drug store methods have been introduced always through Jacobs.

Sixteen Jacobs drug stores attest the decided stand Atlanta people have made in favor of Jacobs fight for fair prices. They evidence the appreciation of those who value the convenience of charge accounts, city-wide delivery, nationally advertised products at lower prices and prescriptions filled with exacting care by registered pharmacists.

The same genius that inspired the bouyant spirit of Dr. Jacobs to found this constructive business continues in his son who keeps the faith. The Jacobs policy early established to provide the purest of drugs, the highest quality goods and to divide the profits with the people has proven the golden rule in drug store business and has caused Jacobs to outlast those of lesser service to the public.

TELLERS' COUNTERS

. . . The increased number makes for increased customer-convenience

One of the first things to impress you in our new Main Banking Offices at Five Points is the commodious lobby and the large number of tellers' counters—of the modern "cageless" type. Now, with more counters to serve our customers, speedier service is assured, for our tellers do their work quickly as well as accurately. Our arrangement of tellers' counters is just one of many features of the new banking office that have been designed from the standpoint of customer-convenience.

With Investment and Trust departments centralized in conjunction with all other departments of the Main Banking Office, you will find it increasingly satisfactory to do business at the "First National." And you will find a continuance of that friendly interest and cooperation which we have endeavored to exhibit in the past.

Jackets Upset Tide, 23-19; A. A. C. Swamps LaGrange 'Y,' 80-31

JONES, GOLDEN ARE TIED BY SARAZEN, SMITH

JACKETS UPSET ALABAMA FIVE; A.A.C. BEATS 'Y'

Tech Wins, 23-19; Clubbers Set Record in 80-31 Triumph.

By Herb Clark.

Georgia Tech's basketball squad smashed another bubble on the court at the Flats Wednesday night, handing Alabama's championship Crimson Tide quintet a 23-19 defeat in one of the wildest and wickedest exhibitions seen locally this season.

Yes, sir. Georgia Tech, the riddled riddles, upset Alabama. And that, Watson, is NOT elementary.

Outplayed—the score of 10 to 8 does not quite indicate just how much so—in the first half, those uppity Jackets came back in the second half to stage a whirlwind rally. And for almost the final two minutes of the game they gave an expert passing show which culminated in a vain but indicated shot and gave Alabama time but to rush wildly down the court—not even enough to shoot.

The defeat was the second of the season for the Tide. Georgia's Bulldogs hold the only other decision over the Crimson, whose record now stands at 9-2—.818. Tech's is now 7-7—.500.

The defeat was merited. Rather, the victory was earned. Alabama did not play bad basketball by any stretch of any imagination. With the Laney Brothers, Inc., and young Fred Wambsganss pointing a pass attack which clicked quite noble, thanks, and tall Johnny Joyce handling the center assignment right well and shooting his share of the points, the Crimson was a good ball club.

It was only by means of a last-ditch defense that the Jackets were able to stay within striking distance through that first half. The Tide surged ably down the court—and Tech took the ball. But Tech could not hold that ball for long enough to do any real and lasting good; could not shoot with any degree of accuracy. By dint of feeding the ball to "Ginny" Wages a moment before the half ended, the Jackets pulled up from 8-4 to 8-8; then Kimbrough sunk a nifty to snatch the lead back to the side of the ledger it had graced since hostilities had opened.

The second half opened quite poorly for the Jackets. The count mounted to 12-8. Matters took a turn for the better as Tech passes began to find willing hands and Tech shots gaping nets. The count was tied at 12-12. Captain Malcolm Laney turned loose a well-aimed beauty to make it 14-12. Roy MacArthur sifted through, leaped to make it 14-14. And Bill Perkins, set a good example, followed it. Tech led, for the first time, at 16-14. Little Wamby scored for Alabama to keep things in a jam. MacArthur counted a foul, Walton Laney followed and again there was no difference. Joyce worked the pivot play from the foul line to give 'Bama back the lead. Tech hearts fell. Tech feet fell next. Wages inspired the racket with an overhand looper.

Tech men stood as Perkins dropped one from close in. Tech throats burst as Gooding swept into the clear and dropped his shot for a 23-19 count. Tech's gym was close to the shattering point for two long minutes as the Jackets passed that ball bewilderingly among themselves, accurately, swift as light, until Payne was finally left with the shot. He missed. The Tide gathered for one final effort, only to be halted in mid-court by the whistle.

It was a basketball game, gentlemen. Tech won, and split its honors almost equally among the squad. Alabama lost—gamely fighting a great fight—and divided its laurel as well.

A. A. C. Five Swamps LaGrange "Y," 80-31.

BY ROY WHITE.

Atlanta Athletic Club's basketball team established a new scoring record Wednesday night when the LaGrange Y. M. C. A. quintet was overwhelmed, 80 to 31, on the club court. The new mark was three points better than a record set in 1921 against Spartanburg, when Rufus Bass and Johnny Westmoreland were in their prime.

Virlyn Moore, Jr., who is rapidly rounding into a real star, was the outstanding star for A. A. C., scoring 18 points. Moore was "right" Wednesday night and shot field goals from all parts of the court with amazing accuracy. Captain Cy Bell, center, and Frank Player, another young star, shared second honors with 12 and 14 points respectively.

Despite the record of 80 points, the game was not so one-sided. LaGrange fought hard all the way but the lightning speed of the A. A. C. team was more than the visitors could cope with.

The club went into the lead in the first minute of play and continued to increase the margin. The club led by more than double LaGrange's score when a reserve team was sent into the fray. The reserves kept up the offensive drive and when the half ended Coach Bean's team was leading, 37 to 19.

It was the semi-final game on the 1931 card of the Atlanta Athletic Club and served as a warning to the Georgia Bulldogs, who meet the club Saturday night in Athens, in the closing game on the A. A. C. card. The Bulldogs are leading the Southern conference at present.

Bobby Goes After a Long One---The Champion Looks On

WAYWARD BOYE BOSWELLED BY Ed Danforth

Scenting the odor of potlikker and cawn-pone on the breeze to say nothing of the smell of verbal powder, Wayward Boye, leader of the famous Sugar Riot of 1900, rushed into our suite of offices on the fourth floor of The Constitution building last night.

Author's Note—Perhaps you never heard of the Sugar Riot of 1900. For shame! Who can forget that triumphant uprising of a delegation of democrats in convention at New York when they were served what the menu declared was "Southern corn bread" and the stuff had sugar in it. The hunting room at the Astor was wrecked. It was the most notable southern victory since the first Battle of Bull Run.

Well, anyhow, Wayward, in common with a lot of other com—I mean everyday folks—has gotten all worked up over the issue Julian Harris raised with Huey Long over the matter of dunking vs. crumbling cawn-pone in potlikker.

"Who ever heard of dunking anything in cawn-likker," spluttered Wayward, crossing his words and failing to dot a couple of black eyes.

I corrected his sentence for him and leaned back to weather the shower of words.

"Who ever heard of dunking cawn-pone in anything?" Wayward went on. "Cawn-pone won't dunk. It has a hard outer crust that is impervious to anything except possibly the brand of cawn-likker that is being sold nowadays. If cawn-pone is made right it takes a good set of store teeth to crack the outer layer. Besides it is impolite to dunk. They do that to doughnuts around Thoity-Thoid street and Broadway.

Intense excitement prevails in restaurant circles all over America since the potlikker-cawn-pone civil war started. Chefs are puzzled as to what, in the first place, is "potlikker" and what, in the second place, is "cawn-pone." Our staff photographer in Chicago snapped two of them in the Morrison hotel hunting through a cook book for recipes. They did not find a thing on the subject.

"No, suh, the only way to eat cawn-pone and potlikker is to crumbled the bread into it. Just like we used to do oyster crackers in soup before we married The Law.

"Now, if you are going into the matter of what to eat with potlikker I might say that crackling bread is away ahead of ordinary cawn-pone. But for a real mess of victuals take three or four cold biscuits and crumble them in a bowl of potlikker. That is easy on the gums and soothing to the inner man.

"Let me tell you now, you can't be too careful about your potlikker either. I remember one time I was in Stamford, Conn., on business and, seeing that snap beans were on the menu at a little restaurant, I ordered some of the potlikker. I had the dickens of a time explaining to the waiter I was not trying to violate old No. 18. Finally he got me and brought in a bowl

TILDEN DEFEATS KOZELUH EASILY

"Big Bill" Too Much for Foe in First Match at New York.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—(AP)—William T. Tilden II tonight defeated Karel Kozeluh, professional tennis champion of the world, in straight sets in the first match of a cross-country tour. The scores were 6-4, 6-2, 6-4.

The little Czech, acclaimed my many the finest stroking player in the game, was no match for the game of Big Bill, who was blazing away with all his old, blinding speed.

A crowd estimated at 14,000 gave Tilden a great ovation as he sent an ace spinning across the net, to tip the white cloth sideline and end the match and then ran to the net to shake hands with his victim.

There was a plentiful sprinkling of stiff shirts in the front rows at the garden, facing the green cloth court which had been stretched across the concrete floor. In the main the crowd was as well mannered as any that ever filled the standium at Forest Hills, but again they broke forth in cheers during the progress of some of the prolonged rallies—an unpardonable breach of tennis gallery etiquette.

The lapses from grace brought no devastating scowls from Mr. Tilden tonight. He was earning his bread and butter instead of chasing a Davis cup and he committed no overt acts toward those who furnished those necessities.

The sidelights and the big lights that customarily swing down the prize ring were the only illumination in the garden while the match was on, the crowd receding back into the blackness—a sea of white faces and shirt fronts.

The first two games probably were the most exciting of the 28 that were played, the first one being deuced twice before Kozeluh finally broke through to win his own service. After the close second game, however, it was only the games when Kozeluh was serving that furnished any excitement, Big Bill not losing a service and frequently taking his service without loss of a point.

The crowd was later announced as 14,000 and the receipts $37,000.

Tilden and Hunter, the old Davis cup partnership, defeated Kozeluh and J. Emmett Pare, of Chicago, in a doubles match. The scores were 9-7 and 6-4.

An earlier match between Hunter and Pare was shoved off the courts when they had not finished at the time the big match was to start. Hunter won the first set, 6-2.

Penn Star Enters Gotham Indoor Run

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—(UP)—Carl Coan, of the University of Pennsylvania, will compete in the mile run of the Knights of Columbus indoor games to be held here March 14, it was announced today.

Coan recently defeated Ray Conger, of the Illinois A. C., running the mile in 4:13, one second slower than the world's record. It was Conger's first defeat in 13 starts at the mile in three seasons.

Ray Conger, Leo Lermond, Dr. Paul Martin of Switzerland, Gene Venzke and George Bullwinkle also will compete in the K. of C. mile.

Max's Golf Game Gets 'Not Yet' From Caddy

Schmeling Shows Links Possibilities in East Lake Round, However.

By Ralph McGill.

"WELL, I guess I wouldn't say 'at this heah Mistuh Smelling is a good golfuh yet, but he can be."

"He stan's too close to his ball for one thing. An' he shanks his approaches. I guess he does 'at less better than anything else."

Robert Morehead, East Lake caddy who carried Max Schmeling's bags Wednesday morning, was answering questions put by newspapermen who had watched the world's heavyweight champion finish 18 holes of golf.

"HE can hit one from 'at tee," said Robert Morehead. "It's de best thing he does. He can really bust one."

"Did the champion cuss in German?"

"No, suh, once when Mistuh Jacobs make a par on same hole with Mistuh Smelling, Mistuh Smelling say, real quiet, 'Son of a gun.'"

Schmeling, it seems, went out and shot a 63 on the tough first nine at East Lake but then found his game and finished with a 49 on the last nine. Which is cutting off the old strokes.

Quite Different.

HE came in for lunch. He had milk, toast and a chop. Nearby business men who had put in a hard morning at the desk were bearing down on soup, meat, vegetables and the like.

Schmeling then went out and followed the 18 holes played by Jones, Golden, Sarazen and Smith.

"Golf is a great workout for anyone," said Horton Smith when told at lunch that Max Schmeling had just come in from a round of golf.

"Should Help."

"GOLF should help a boxer," said Smith. "I would think it would help develop a punch and that it would enable him to develop his timing. There is a lot of difference between hitting a golf ball and a man but then a boxer is working for one spot and timing his blows. Golf should tune him up."

Autograph hunters were seeking out Schmeling. And then it developed that we all have our weaknesses. Schmeling had his manager getting the autographs of the four golfers.

"Can you beat it?" asked Joe Jacobs. "The boy is nutty about golf and golfers."

Good Impression.

SCHMELING continues to add to the good impression he made in his appearance here Tuesday night in an exhibition. He is quiet, reserved and well-mannered. He seems eager to please, never tires of introductions and appears happy at the attention paid him.

The big fellow will give W. L. Stribling quite a battle. The battle of June won't be a sure thing for the Georgian as many have thought. This Schmeling isn't just a pushover. He can step around.

Schmeling gets out today to fulfill an engagement in Savannah tomorrow night. Joe Jacobs thinks that the legal ruling in Savannah which ruled that the commission had no legal

FLU HAMPERS GEORGIA DRILL

ATHENS, Ga., Feb. 18.—Still unable to get their forces moving in the accepted manner, the Georgia Bulldogs had a long afternoon of it today as Coach Harry Mehre prepared them for another scrimmage here Thursday afternoon.

With 15 working days already behind them the Bulldogs are far behind their last year's schedule, when they were advancing along the route to smoothly working steadiness which enabled the Georgia coaches to get a good start the following September.

Their ranks somewhat depleted by the ravages of flu, the Bulldogs worked through two hours of a long afternoon today as the six-man coaching staff meted out individual instruction in the arts of football. Several members of the squad are bedridden as a result of a slight epidemic of flu, which, however, has not touched the majority of the squad.

Three complete backfields are all that can now be mustered from the 22 backfield men who reported to Coach Harry Mehre at the start of the spring training. Some of the boys have dropped out temporarily with scholastic troubles and flu; others have just dropped out.

The line, also somewhat decreased in number since the first week, still has 25 candidates.

Another scrimmage comes off Thursday afternoon and the fourth will climax the week's work Saturday afternoon.

Sally Directors To Meet Friday

MAX SCHMELING IN LARGE CROWD TRAILING MATCH

More Than 2,000 See Four Stars Play for Charity Here.

By Ralph McGill.

any golf galleryite should. There was much curiosity as to the big fellow's presence. He would not advertise it. He marched along, trailed by his manager, Joe Jacobs, and few recognized him.

With the crowd marched members of the Junior League with baskets of sandwiches and cigarets, ministering to the inner man as he weakened in the long trudge about the 18 holes. It was a great show the Junior League put on. They put it on in perfect style, making it one of the best handled golf matches that old East Lake course had seen.

It was not great golf that the foursome produced. That wind which made the lake look so beautiful did things to the new golf ball. So did the wet turf. As a result some of the drives and quite a few of the approaches were somewhat sour. And some were shorter than usual. The new ball was making itself felt, all right.

WINTER RULES.

They were playing winter rules and on the shorter winter tees. This shortened up one par-four hole to a par three and reduced the par 72 to 71.

There were quite a few pick-ups and the cards had to be estimated in spots. Working on the theory that a man who picked up off the green would have taken one to get on and two putts to get down, and that a player picking up on the green under 15 feet would require but one putt, the cards were figured as completed.

Under this system Bobby Jones finished with a 74, which isn't bad golf at all but not quite what Bobby usually plays. Johnny Golden had a 72 and Sarazen was low with a 71, par for the winter course. Smith was highest of all with a 75.

The cards:

Par, out	434	453	435	—35
Par, in	434	455	443	—36—71
Jones, out	444	445	445	—38
In	434	464	344	—36—74
Golden, out	454	453	434	—36
In	434	454	444	—36—72
Sarazen, out	444	443	436	—36
In	434	454	443	—35—71
Smith, out	434	553	635	—38
In	434	455	453	—37—75

There were just three birdies on Bobby Jones' card. He scored one on the long fifth, a 590-yard par 5 hole. He had another on the long 15th, getting a birdie 4. And his birdie on the 16th put him ahead.

Johnny Golden and Gene Sarazen played the steadiest golf of the afternoon. Sarazen was perhaps hitting his shots better than anyone of the foursome. They did no spectacular things but played workmanlike golf which brought them in with the best scores of the match.

LEAD CHANGES.

The lead twice changed hands. Most of the way Bobby and Golden were under pressure. Horton Smith took the lead for his half of the foursome on the second hole, ramming down a good long putt for a par three while the others were one over, Golden two.

Johnny Golden carried most of the burden in the first nine while Jones was getting the range. He kept the score down to its one-up status on three occasions, getting his par on one and a birdie on another to hold back the charging Smith and Sarazen.

And on the 9th he slipped in his second birdie in sucession to square the match. The 9th saw Jones short of the green with his second. Sarazen had a six, his drive getting into the lake and his second skipping gayly across the water but stopping short. Smith and Jones had fives.

STEADIER PLAY.

The second nine saw steadier golf. The wind, however, had increased its tempo and the ball was harder to steer through it. The gallery was undaunted, crowding the greens closely and taking their chances on dodging any drives or approaches which might go wrong in the wind.

They were all even par 4s on the 10th, found their par 3s on the 11th, par 4s on the 12th and 13th and almost par 5s on the 14th, Jones being in the trap and short on an approach for a 6.

Jones' brilliant 20-foot putt on the 16th was a breath-taking, cheer-inspiring play. The gallery gave its first really great cheer then.

GREAT GOLF.

Sarazen's play on the 18th was beautiful golf. His tee shot was off to his right, missing the green, skimming over the heads of the gallery and landing in the rough. Jones' tee shot was in the trap at the left of the green and Smith was short in front. Golden was the only one on and his ball hung on the tuft of grass at the left edge of the green.

Sarazen, apparently the worst off, pitched on with plenty of backspin on the ball. It took a chair very calmly indeed right near the cup. Golden approached, as did Smith. Golden holed his out after Jones chipped on. And then Bobby went for that 30-foot putt that would have won. It went straight along until at the very lip of the cup, when it turned its head like a shy young thing and stayed out.

Sarazen had barely missed a 15-foot putt on the 17th to square the match. He took no chances with this one, tapping it in about 12 feet to halve things up for the evening.

ENJOY MATCH.

The visiting pros enjoyed the match unusually well, the declared. They spoke highly of the course and of the privilege of playing in Atlanta with Bobby Jones on his home course. They donated their services to the Junior League, taking only their bare expenses.

Before the match Mrs. John Knox

PLANS PROGRESS FOR TRACK MEET AT CHAPEL HILL

Second Conference Indoor Program Promises To Be Interesting.

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., Feb. 18.—Plans are rapidly shaping up for the University of North Carolina's spring athletic carnival, which is to be held March 7.

Under the guidance of Athletic Director R. A. Fetzer the southern indoor games proved such a success last year that it was decided to make the event an annual affair.

Several new events have been added and a new class has been formed for nonconference institutions. As a result indications already are that four new teams are sending entries this year—William & Mary, Richmond College, Presbyterian College and Guilford. Alabama will be a newcomer in the conference division. Tulane, Georgia, Georgia Tech and Washington and Lee have already sent word that they are coming back, and the other conference institutions represented last year are expected, too, to make the meet draw a record number of record performers from high, prep and college teams all over the south.

Weber To Assist With Ballet Here

Henry Weber, wrestling promoter, being idle while the basketball tournament gets ready to take over the Auditorium, is turning his attention to other pursuits. Tonight he will help his old friend, Senia Solomonoff, with the Ballet Russe at the Atlanta Woman's Club. Both men are from Vienna.

BULLDOGS CLOSE WITH TENNESSEE

Georgia Five Stakes Lead Hopes Against Vols Tonight.

ATHENS, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Georgia's hope for leadership among Southern conference game teams at the close of the regular season will be at stake tomorrow night as the Athens Bulldogs tackle Tennessee at Knoxville. This is the last conference game of the year for Georgia, which now leads the Dixie loop with 14 wins and a single loss.

In a previous encounter Georgia was hard-pressed to beat Tennessee by three points. When in top form the Vols offer one of the most dangerous teams in the south, as was shown by their surprising victories over Alabama and Duke.

In the only other circuit game booked for the night, Sewanee starts its three-day invasion of Virginia against Virginia Military Institutte at Lexington.

Non-conference games pit South Carolina against Davidson at Columbia, Centre against Georgetown at Danville, Ky., and Mississippi College against Union of Tennessee at Clinton, Miss.

right to bar Schmeling will have a nation-wide effect.

Good Ruling.

The ruling was that only a native of New York may be barred by another state commission working with the New York commission. Schmeling could not be barred in Savannah.

And Joe Jacobs is also going back to Columbus with Schmeling—the place where Mike McTigue was given three decisions in the fight with Stribling.

"I like the south," he said "I've always liked Atlanta. I was in here a lot during the war I told Max he'd like it. And he does."

Helen Waring Gets First Hole-in-One

PINEHURST, N. C., Feb. 18.—(UP)—Helen Waring, 20-year-old New York golf star, scored her first hole-in-one here today on the 149-yard 11th hole of the No. 1 Pinehurst course. She used a No. 6 iron.

Miller To Continue As Deacon Coach

WAKE FOREST, N. C., Feb. 18. (UP)—Pa. Miller, head football coach at Wake Forest College, has announced he will remain here another year. He previously had declined to discuss reports that he might accept a position at Rutgers.

U. S. B. BEATEN IN FIRST ROUND BY RUSSELL '5'

Commercial and Marist Open Today's Program at Decatur.

Russell High opened the North Georgia Interscholastic Conference basketball tournament with a well-earned 17-to-15 victory over University School for Boys Wednesday night on the Decatur court. Decatur defeated Clarkston, 25 to 15, in an exhibition game, Newnan having withdrawn, leaving Decatur without a first round opponent.

Eliminations will continue today with a double-header scheduled for both afternoon and night. Commercial will play Marist at 2:30 o'clock in the first afternoon game, while R. E. Lee, of Thomaston, and Marietta will complete the card.

In the night games, Fulton will play Russell at 7:30 and Griffin and Decatur will furnish the climax for today.

It was a "rubber" game between University and Russell, both having won one each in two previous league games, and was one of the best of the year.

Russell started the scoring early in the game but could not keep up the attack and were holding the long end of a 10-to-4 count at the intermission. Although they were unable to score consistently, Russell played a good defensive game and prevented University from scoring but one field goal in the first half.

Camp and Schenck played the best game for the winners, while Heeke and Cavan played well for the losers.

In the second game Decatur, after a slow start in the first half when only nine points were scored, came to life in the second half and won an apparently easy victory. Decatur was leading, 9-6, at the half.

Johnson and Smith scored all the points for the losers. McCay and Flynt played best for the winners.

Quitman Tourney In Third Round.

QUITMAN, Ga., Feb. 18.—Six games were played here this afternoon and night in the second round of the annual eleventh district basketball tournament. The winners will play again Thursday in the quarter final round.

In today's games, Waycross defeated Wanona, 30 to 20; Homerville defeated Hazlehurst, 30 to 17; Screven defeated Kingsland, 57 to 10; Waresboro defeated Nichols, 25 to 10; Blackshear defeated Mystic, 28 to 13, and Quitman defeated Barwick, 17 to 11.

The large number of teams entered in the tourney prevent each team playing daily until a number have been eliminated.

Pairings for tomorrow follow:

Douglas vs. Hahira, Dixie vs. Jesup, Baxley vs. Brunswick, Morven vs. Pearson, Alma vs. Ocilla, Waresboro vs. Blackshear, Adel vs. Screven, Waycross vs. Quitman.

THE SPORTLIGHT

By Grantland Rice

Looking Ahead.

FOREIGN athletes, with their eyes fixed upon the coming Olympic games at Los Angeles, might as well take notice of two recent performances made by young American talent.

One is the indoor high jump at 6 feet 7 inches by Spitz, of N. Y. U., and the other is the 4.13 mile by Coan, of the University of Pennsylvania.

There may not be many of these around, but there won't have to be many. Both have more than a year of development ahead and by that time, with any improvement at all, will be hard to beat. These two turns are especially noteworthy as they come from eastern universities, while so many late achievements have come from the athletes of the far west.

The future of these two young stars will be closely watched, for it has been a rare occasion when any pair as young and as unsung as these two have done anything nearly as well.

Just what limits they may reach is something for the future to show. But the material is there for two new records, since such performances are never matters of luck.

No fluke jumper reaches 6 feet 7 and no fluke miler does 4:13.

Recently, in a stiff wind, Tommy Armour played the 6,800-yard south course at Boca Raton in 67 strokes, using the new ball. This Boca Raton test is one of the best that golf has to offer, which is at least proof that the new ball is not as destructive to scoring as some might think. This, in acknowledgement of the fact that Tommy Armours are somewhat scarce.

Home Runs and the Seams.

HOME-RUN hitting may now have its seamy side, the same as the ball the heavy hitters are swinging at.

With a better gripping surface the average good pitcher should be able to make a curve break faster, and if this should happen the noble art of paddling the whey out of a baseball will hit a slump.

The Babe says he will be able to hit the new ball as far as the old and this is true—when he connects solidly. But he won't be as sure of connecting solidly with a fast breaking curve to hit, and neither will Hack Wilson or Chuck Klein.

These hard, free swingers will step into a shoal of strikeouts unless they reduce the wallop to a certain extent. The seamy grip should bring new ambition to pitchers who have been losing confidence at a heavy rate. And there is nothing quite so upsetting to the morbid athlete as complete loss of the old morale.

The new seam may return such classics as "pitches masterly ball," "hop to his fast one," etc., that were almost extinct.

Hold-Out Drawbacks.

HOLD-OUTS and club owners come in for no little spoofing and few take the matter seriously, but one trouble is that often a flock of trouble follows, involving both the athlete and the ball club.

Cleveland figures that Wesley Ferrell's spring abdication two years ago cost at least five games. Dazzy Vance got away badly two years ago for the same reason. The financial adjustment is nearly always made, but it is often made too late. If the ball player is forced to sign for a smaller salary than he thinks just the chances are he will lack the keenness of a satisfied player.

Bill Terry, of the Giants, and Ferrell, of Cleveland, will undoubtedly be signed before the season starts, but if there is too much delay all sides are injured. For these are two of the most valuable ball players in both big leagues. As a rule there are two sides to every argument, the same as a plank.

The Fastest Game.

IT TAKES only a brief look at, for example, the Canadians in action, to understand that hockey is the fastest game played where only human feet are employed.

The continued speed of a Morenz is well beyond anything a star at football, basketball, baseball or tennis can show.

Star hockey players are among those who must start early and get the habit in younger years. It is no habit to be adopted later on in life, if one is to mingle in the best hockey society.

There is still some doubt as to where the next war will break out, but there is even more doubt as to where Schmeling and Stribling will meet and who will be named to give Sharkey a workout. Either nobody knows, or the mystery is to be retained again for a while as part of the ballyhoo. In the meanwhile the nation at large hopes to be able to stand the nerve-shattering strain.

entertained the members of the foursome and others connected with the match at a delightful luncheon at the club.

The Junior League obtained a substantial sum from the match. League officers are Mrs. Clark Howell, president; Mrs. Turner Jones, first vice president; Mrs. Henry Grady, Jr., second vice president; Mrs. Bisnet Marye, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Parks Huntt, recording secretary, and Mrs. Joel C. Harris, Jr., treasurer.

Chairmen who headed the various committees putting on the match were Mrs. John Knox, chairman; Mrs. Allison Thornwell, co-chairman; Mrs. Charles Freeman and Mrs. Glen Ryman, tickets; Mrs. Turner Jones, publicity; Mrs. John O. Chiles, concessions; Mrs. Robin Adair, police, and Mrs. Eugene Harrington, score cards.

The score cards were unique and original, containing the signatures of many famous in the sporting, business and theatrical world. The entire match was handled perfectly and with a faultlessness which bespoke much work and planning on the part of the chairmen and their committees.

"Jigger" Black Sold To Mobile Marines

MOBILE, Ala., Feb. 18.—Bill "Jigger" Black, second baseman of the Birmingham team for the past two seasons, has been acquired by the Mobile club, according to a statement given out by President Byrd Douglas. Black hit .256 last season with Clyde Milan's outfit. Stock is after the services of a high-class catcher and shortstop.

FORT M'PHERSON IS BEATEN, 4 TO 2

AUGUSTA, Ga., Feb. 18.—(UP)—Augusta's polo team won a 4-to-2 victory over Fort McPherson, of Atlanta, here today to make it two straight for the scheduled series.

The teams stood 2 and 2 until the sixth chukker, when Charles Stanley, former University of Oklahoma star, and James H. Minnick, Sr., each scored.

'Gators Announce 1931 Football Card

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Feb. 18.—(AP)—Announcement was made here last night by Athletic Director Edgar Charles Jones that the University of Florida would meet the University of California in a football game at Los Angeles next Thanksgiving.

The game will give the 'Gators two intersectional games next season, Syracuse University having been scheduled for October 17.

Scheduling of the game with California came to the campus tonight as a great surprise, since the complete list of engagements for next season already had been announced some months ago.

To keep within the ten-game schedule, it was necessary for Florida officials to negotiate with the Citadel, previously scheduled for the season opening contest. Jones said the Citadel had "graciously consented to withdraw in order that we might take advantage of this opportunity."

The California contest will follow five days after the annual Florida-Georgia Tech encounter at Atlanta.

As Florida's revised schedule now stands:

October 3—North Carolina State at Raleigh.
October 10—North Carolina University at Gainesville.
October 17—Syracuse at Syracuse, N. Y.
October 24—Auburn at Jacksonville.
October 31—Georgia at Gainesville (Homecoming).
November 7—Alabama at Birmingham.
November 14—South Carolina at Tampa.
November 21—Georgia Tech at Atlanta.
November 26—California at Los Angeles.
December 5—Kentucky at Jacksonville.

Two Track Meets Hold Fans' Interest

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—(UP)—Interest in indoor track and field athletics for the remainder of this week in the east will be centered in the New Jersey A. A. U. championships to be held at Newark tomorrow, and the Metropolitan Association A. A. U. games at Brooklyn Saturday.

Paul Keller, the French 800-meter champion, will compete in the 1,000-meter event of the New Jersey games.

The 1,000-yard event is the Metropolitan games feature. Gene Venzke and George Bullwinkle are prominent entries.

Canzoneri, Kaufman Will Meet Monday

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Feb. 18.—(UP)—Tony Canzoneri and Joey Kaufman will meet in a 10-round bout here next Monday night, it was announced today. Canzoneri's lightweight title will not be at stake, as they will fight over the limit.

VANCE DECIDES TO TALK TERMS; SEES BIG YEAR

Dazzler Says "Holdout Business" Bad for Player and Club.

OCALA, Fla., Feb. 18.—(AP)—Dazzy Vance, veteran pitcher for the Brooklyn Robins, doesn't like "this holdout business," and he is going back home to Homosassa Springs tomorrow to talk term with "Uncle" Wilbert Robinson, his manager.

The Dazzler was here today attending a meeting of the state road department to see about getting a highway extended to Homosassa Springs where he owns a hotel.

Vance said he is one of the two regular Robins who have not signed their 1931 contracts—the other being Babe Herman—but he doesn't consider himself a holdout.

In fact, Dazzy said, "this holdout business is a bad thing" both for the player and the club. He indicated he would sign his contract without much palavering.

He said he spoke from experience of two years ago, when he held out for more pay and had a bad year, because he did not get in the proper amount of training.

"We are going to give 'em a battle this year," the old side-wheeler said enthusiastically. "We need another left-handed pitcher, and if one comes through like Phelps did last year we will be fixed."

Because he is "way behind on my fishing" Vance said he did not plan to report with the other Brooklyn batterymen when they start training at Clearwater next week. He will join the camp shortly after signing a contract, however.

Navy Tank Star Sets Two Marks

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 18.—(AP)—Ray Thompson, Baltimore Middie, shattered two naval academy records, a national collegiate record and aided in setting another Navy mark today, as the Navy Tank Men defeated Rutgers, 42 to 29.

Thompson accounted for 12 points, five for first place in both the 50 and 100-yard dashes and two more by sharing the eight counters won in the relay. In setting a new national collegiate record of 23.1 seconds for the 50-yard dash he came within one-tenth of a second equalling the world's best recognized time.

In the 100-yard dash Thompson was matched with Georgia Kojac, star of the Rutgers team and until today undefeated for two seasons, led by almost a yard at the finish, and put a new record of 53.2 seconds on the books.

Leg Operation Keeps Paul Waner Confined

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Paul Waner, senior member of the Pittsburgh outfielding and hitting firm of Waner & Waner, underwent an operation for an infected left leg at St. John's hospital here today. Dr. Robert F. Hyland, who performed the operation, said Waner would be in the hospital for an indefinite period.

Waner said his leg became infected just above the ankle after he was bitten recently while swimming at Miami, Fla. He said he did not know what bit him. Waner had been scheduled to report at the Pirates' Paso Robles, Cal., training camp February 28, but Dr. Hyland said it might be late in the training season before he is able to start work.

GENERALS WIN.

UNIVERSITY, Va., Feb. 18.—(AP) Washington and Lee nosed out Virginia cagers, 20 to 18, tonight after the Cavaliers had cut down an 8-point advantage to tie the score. Gene Martin tossed in the winning basket for the Generals less than a minute before the game ended.

Metzger Makes Short Stop Here

Fred Metzger, Notre Dame's 154-pound All-American guard of last football season, arrived in Atlanta late last night for a one-day stop-over on his way to Florida for a short vacation.

The chunky little star planned to get in a round of golf this morning before leaving again this afternoon.

J. P. C. QUINTET PLAYS TONIGHT

City Rivals Meet at 8:30 on Progressive Club Court.

The Atlanta Junior Chamber of Commerce and Jewish Progressive Club quintets will renew their rivalry at 8:15 o'clock tonight on the J. P. C. court in the final meeting of the two this season. A preliminary game between the J. P. C. Reds and an amateur team will be played at 7:30 o'clock.

In the first game between the two, the Junior Chamber quintet won by one point in an extra period of five minutes. It was one of the best games of the season on the Progressive court.

The Progressives will lineup with Friedland and D. Speilberger at forwards, Finkelstein at center and H. Speilberger and Rosenberg at guards.

Although the line-up has not been definitely announced, it is likely that the Junior Chamber will start with English and Cook at forwards, Waxelbaum at center and Morris and Leffler at guards.

Red Sox Announce Roster Is Complete

BOSTON, Feb. 18.—(AP)—The Boston Red Sox announced its 1931 roster complete today with the receipt of signed contracts, those of Catcher Harold Ruel, Pitcher Horace Lisenbee and Second Baseman William Regan. The Red Sox will leave tomorrow for its training camp at Pensacola, Fla.

FOUR TOURNEYS OFFER CROWNS IN CONFERENCE

Basketball, Boxing, Indoor Track Meets, Wrestling Set Soon.

Late February and early March find Southern conference athletic championships slated in four branches of sport—basketball, boxing, wrestling and indoor track.

Tournaments in two of these sports are sponsored by Virginia institutions. The University of Virginia is host to the boxers at Charlottesville February 27 and 28, while Virginia Military Institute offers the site for the wrestling championship on March 6 and 7.

The court tournament is to be held here from February 27 through March 3, and the indoor track title event is set for Chapel Hill, N. C., March 7, with the University of North Carolina as host.

In defense of its 1930 basketball championship, Alabama probably will encounter its stiffest opposition from Georgia, Kentucky and Maryland, judging on a basis of present conference standing.

The Tarheels of North Carolina loom as the outstanding threats to the other three champions. Florida, beaten in its only conference meet by Virginia, must take North Carolina, Tulane and Louisiana State, in addition to the Charlottesville Cavaliers in the boxing ring.

Carolina, boasting its best wrestling team in recent years, also stands out as a real contender for the crown now held by Virginia Military Institute. Duke, Washington and Lee and Virginia Polytechnic are three other dangerous teams.

Last season Washington and Lee barely beat out North Carolina in the inaugural of the indoor track event. Both teams have strong squads back this season and the Tarheels appear as the team to race the Generals down the stretch.

March also will see the conference swimming tournament, set for Atlanta, March 28. Georgia Tech will defend its 1930 laurels.

By MUSE'S

Matinee idols will cease to be in a class by themselves this year. All of us will be grandly groomed.

* * * *

One peep into Muse's and a man peps up and soon pops out in all his glory. The new Spring Muse styles spring one wonder after another with "how inexpensive" the exclamation you exhale along with "how excellent!"

IT HELPS TO HEAR THIS ALL DAY

Deluxe styles, the very latest, are so very reasonably priced and offer so much for the money that you doff the old and don the new in one grand enthusiastic gesture—suddenly realizing that you can dress-up to your heart's content without going through a set of financial gymnastics.

* * * *

The new Muse-Manhattan Spring shirts not only show you the answer to the widely discussed topic "Just what is the difference between a Winter shirt and a Spring shirt?" but offer you the greatest quality-shirt-buy in a generation. Luxurious Manhattans at $1.95—the new two-collar-to-match styles and the favored collar attached models are introduced at $1.95—(with the top-price shirt in the Muse Spring array, which means the finest shirt on the world's bill-of-fare, $5).

The glad, gay, bright solid colors revealed in new crepe ties shown in Muse's number four window today are the fine style note for spring—and, as you will observe, a most exceptional value. This superb quality (the tie is hand-made and is jacquard silk lined) would have been $2.50 a spring ago. A tie of luxury, and a style to rush to—it is shown at $1.50 today.

* * * *

In this bright-tie window you will see several interesting top pocket handkerchiefs. These are colorful, genuine French linens, with hand rolled edges. The latest thing in top pocketing—and, for all their luxurious dash, they are but 50c. (There hasn't been a handkerchief buy this pronounced since memory goeth not to the contrary!)

"Dress yourself into success" is the cheerful chant of the modern movement; dress well, to give yourself confidence, and the world confidence in you—and with Muse's style presentation at hand and the price-revelation a pronounced reality, Atlanta may overnight show up as the best dressed and most impressive city on the calendar. Proceed to Muse's.

Being a full-fledged southerner with many years' experience with this table delicacy, I speak with authority in saying that the corn pone is 'dunked' to the depth of three and a half inches each dip. CHICAGO GUNMEN KILL PLUMBING INSPECTOR

Albert Courchene Is Shot to Death Prior to Inspecting Job.

CHICAGO, Feb. 18.—(AP)—A stream of machine gun bullets poured out a potion of death today for Albert Courchene, 55-year-old city plumbing inspector.

He was a victim, police said, of racketeers in the plumbing trade.

Six months ago Courchene was suspected of killing two business agents for the plumbers' union. A coroner's jury freed him. Of late he had led an insurgent movement to unseat the ruling officers of the union.

Courchene was cut down as he stepped into a South Side house to inspect a plumbing job. Two men drove slowly past in a small sedan bearing no license; a window opened, a sub-machine gun poked its nose out and pedestrians and plumbers at work in the building dived out of range as the deadly rat-tat sounded.

The plumbers' union has been under investigation by the state's attorney's racket bureau for some time.

Imperial Potentate Esten A. Fletcher, of Rochester, N. Y., accompanied by an official party, arrived in Atlanta Wednesday to visit local Shrinedom. In the above photograph (left to right) are shown Potentate Fletcher and R. N. Fickett, Jr., potentate of the Yaarab temple, who accompanied the visiting party to Atlanta from Jacksonville. Staff photo by George Cornett.

After a day of entertainment by officers of the Yaarab temple of the Shrine, Imperial Potentate Esten A. Fletcher, of the Ancient Arabic Order of Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, and his party will leave this morning for Birmingham on an official visit to Zamora temple of that city.

With Imperial Potentate Fletcher were Noble William J. Parker, of Damascus temple, Rochester, N. Y.; secretary to the imperial potentate; Past Potentate Charles S. Owen, of Damascus temple, Rochester; Noble George D. Hart, of Damascus temple, and Colonel and Mrs. R. W. McCuen, potentate of Cairo temple, Rutland, Vermont.

The visiting party was escorted to Atlanta from Jacksonville Wednesday by Past Potentate Thomas C. Law, of Yaarab temple. They were guests at breakfast at the Atlanta Biltmore hotel, which also was attended by the welcoming party, consisting of Illustrious Potentate Richard W. Fickett, Jr.; Past Potentate William A. Fuller, and Nobles Henry H. Green, Brad Byrd and Otis Price.

Luncheon was tendered the visitors at the Atlanta Athletic Club by Court No. 91 of the Royal Order of Jesters, of which Imperial Potentate Fletcher is royal leading man. Also attending the luncheon were Noble Wilden E. Joseph, of Columbus, Ohio, recorder of Aladdin temple and royal treasurer of the Jesters, and Noble A. O. Thomas, Columbus, Ohio, banker and auditor of Aladdin temple.

Wednesday night the visiting guests were entertained at a dinner in the Georgian room of the Biltmore hotel by Potentate Fickett, the officials of Yaarab temple and their wives. Following the dinner a ball and reception were held in the Egyptian ballroom of the Shrine mosque.

FEDERAL JURY INDICTS SIX FOSHAY OFFICIALS

Charges Not Made Public, Said Centered About Use of Mails.

ST. PAUL, Feb. 18.—(AP)—The federal grand jury today indicted Wilbur B. Foshay, president of the W. B. Foshay Company, and six former officials of the now defunct Foshay companies. While the specific number of counts and charges were not made public, it was understood they centered about use of the mails in selling Foshay securities.

Others indicted are: H. H. Henley, executive secretary and vice president of the Foshay company.

R. J. Andrus, president of Public Utilities Consolidated Corporation, a Foshay concern, and vice president of the Foshay company.

H. E. McGinty, secretary and treasurer of the Foshay company.

Palmer B. Mabry, assistant secretary of the Foshay company.

H. F. Welch, also assistant secretary of the company.

C. W. Salisbury, a vice president of the company.

The indictments came at the close of a two-day investigation of the Foshay case by the grand jury.

Underwood Goes to Attend Hearing on His Nomination

Subcommittee To Air Protests at Friday Meeting. Dozens of Georgians Indorse Nominee.

E. Marvin Underwood, Atlanta lawyer, nominated by President Hoover to be judge of the federal court of the northern district of Georgia, left for Washington Wednesday to attend a hearing on his nomination Friday before a senate judiciary subcommittee.

Mr. Underwood will be present at the hearing in response to an invitation from Senator Felix Hebert, chairman of the subcommittee, which has before it protests against confirmation of Mr. Underwood filed by S. J. Lummox, Mrs. J. E. Andrews and S. J. Walker, president of the Walker Investment Company.

It was said Wednesday that Mrs. Andrews would not attend the hearing to support her opposition to Mr. Underwood and that efforts to locate Lummox had failed. There is no S. J. Walker nor a Walker Investment Company listed in the latest city directory or telephone directory.

Washington dispatches Wednesday said that hundreds of telegrams from leaders in state and civic life had been received by the subcommittee indorsing Mr. Underwood and urging his confirmation. It also was stated that inasmuch as both the president and Attorney-General William D. Mitchell have known Mr. Underwood personally for many years they judge themselves better qualified to determine Mr. Underwood's qualifications for the judgeship and little is expected to come of the protests filed against him.

DOZENS OF GEORGIANS LAUD UNDERWOOD CHOICE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—With a third protest against the confirmation of E. Marvin Underwood by the senate to be federal judge of the northern district of Georgia received here, the attacks made on the nominee have been more than balanced by dozens of telegrams and letters received from Georgia in his support. These have come to the two Georgia senators and been turned over to the sub-committee in charge of the matter, of which Senator Herbert, of Rhode Island, is chairman.

The latest complaint came from S. J. Walker, president of the Walker Investment Company, of Atlanta, and is said to have been one of a general nature, which questions the fitness and qualification of Mr. Underwood for the position.

It begins to look as though the protest hearing would end in more or less of a fizzle. Mrs. J. E. Andrews, head of the Atlanta Women's Civic Council, has wired Senator Hebert that she will be unable to appear. T. J. Lummox, a second protestant, cannot be located by the telegraph offices in Atlanta.

On the other hand the indorsements being sent on in favor of Mr. Underwood are many in number. The most important of these came from Albert Howell, president of the Atlanta Bar Association. He wired that the nomination "meets with the approval of the vast majority of the bar and the people of this district" that "he is in all respects qualified and equipped for the position."

Cardinal P. J. Hayes Passes Through City

En route to San Antonio, Texas, to attend the bicentennial celebration to be staged in that city March 4, Cardinal Patrick Joseph Hayes, one of the four American cardinals of the Roman Catholic church, passed through Atlanta Tuesday in his private car.

Cardinal Hayes signified his intention of stopping over several days at Biloxi, Miss. Accompanying him on the trip are George MacDonald, marquis of the papal court, and Monsignor Donahue. During his stop here Tuesday the cardinal expressed himself as well pleased with the recent radio address of Pope Pius.

COMPANIONATE UNION RECTOR RESIGNS POST

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—(AP)—The resignation of the Rev. Eliot White from the staff of Grace Episcopal church because of his militant advocacy of companionate marriage stirred the ecclesiastical world today.

The Rev. Dr. W. Russell Bowie, rector of the church, one of the most fashionable in the city, issued a statement saying that Mr. White's resignation had been accepted and that his name had been removed from the church calendar.

"Grace church, in view of its exceptionally high standard for marriages which take place in the parish," he said, "is definitely unwilling that the name of the parish should be linked with the idea of so-called companionate marriage in any way that confuses these positive standards. . . ."

MISS ETHELIND NORTH WEDS GREER ROBERTS MARCH 28

Reception To Follow Ceremony at St. Mark's

Cordial social interest centers today in the announcement of the wedding plans of Miss Ethelind North, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. North, and Greer Zachry Roberts, son of Mrs. Frances McCalla Roberts, whose engagement was recently announced. The marriage will take place at a brilliant ceremony Saturday evening, March 28, at 7:30 o'clock, in the presence of a fashionable gathering of Atlanta society. The ceremony will be performed by Dr. S. H. C. Burgin, pastor of the church.

The bride-elect will be given in marriage by her father, Mr. North, and she has chosen as her maid of honor her younger sister, Miss Frances North, popular sub-deb. Her older sister, Mrs. O. R. Cunningham, of Richmond, Va., formerly Miss Beatrice North, of Atlanta, will act as matron of honor, and her little daughter, Ann Cunningham, niece of the bride-elect, will be flower girl. The ringbearer will be little Boykin Bennett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bennett, of Chattanooga, Tenn., and grandson of Mr. and Mrs. S. F. Boykin.

Other Attendants.

The bridegroom's sister, Miss Frances Roberts, will be the first bridesmaid, and other bridesmaids will include: Miss Hazel Stamps, of Atlanta, who is a student at Sweet Briar College in Virginia; Miss Frances Lyon, of Atlanta, and Miss Alice Mitchell, of Yakima, Wash., who was a schoolmate of Miss North's at National Park Seminary, and who visited her last summer.

Mr. Roberts has chosen as his best man, William T. McCollister, Jr., and the groomsmen will be: Dexter Jordan, of Columbus, Ga., cousin of the bridegroom; William J. Davis, Jr., Ray Moore and Lawrence McCullough.

The ushers will be: C. W. McCalla, Jr., of New York city, uncle of the bridegroom; Lyman Hilliard, Duncan Peek and Henry Garner.

Reception Follows.

Following the ceremony a reception will be given by Mr. and Mrs. North at their home at 10 W. Andrews drive, and receiving with them will be Mrs. Frances McCalla Roberts, mother of the bridegroom; Mr. and Mrs. O. R. Cunningham, of Richmond, Va., and members of the wedding party. Assisting in entertaining the guests will be Misses Eugenia Roberts, sister of the bridegroom; Mary Crenshaw, Marguerite Myers, of Tifton, and Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Kilgore. After the reception Mr. Roberts and his bride-to-be will leave for an extensive motor trip to points of interest in Florida. Upon their return they will make their home at 945 Virginia circle, N. E.

Prenuptial Parties.

Mrs. Robert Garvin Brown will be among the first to entertain Miss North prior to her marriage, and she will be hostess at a bridge party Saturday afternoon, February 21, at 2:30 o'clock at her apartment at 2909 Peachtree road. The following guests have been invited: Misses Frances North, Frances Roberts, Eugenia Roberts, Mary Crenshaw, Marguerite Myers, Frances Lyon, Adelaide Tigner, Virginia Pairo, Mrs. Britton Knox, Mrs. Wallace W. Kilgore and Mrs. G. P. Carmichael.

Saturday evening, March 14, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Kilgore will entertain Miss North and Mr. Roberts at a bridge party at their home on Peachtree road. Mr. and Mrs. Kilgore will be assisted in entertaining their guests by their parents, Dr. and Mrs. T. J. Collier.

Miss Mary Crenshaw will be hostess at a party honoring Miss North and Mr. Roberts Thursday evening, March 16, at her home in the Mayflower apartments on Peachtree road and Twenty-sixth street.

Other parties will be given for this popular couple prior to their marriage, and among those entertaining will be: Mrs. Frances McCalla Roberts, Mrs. S. F. Boykin, Miss Frances North, Mrs. O. R. Cunningham, Miss Anne Cunningham, Miss Frances Lyon, Miss Marguerite Myers and Mrs. G. P. Carmichael.

City Hall Girls' Club Plans Party

City Hall Girls' Club will give a benefit bridge luncheon Saturday, February 21, at 1:30 o'clock in Rich's tea room. Table reservations may be made through the president, Miss Grace West, or any other member. Other officers of the club are Miss Ann Coggins, vice president; Miss Julia Elliott, secretary, and Miss Sara Cleveland, treasurer.

Decorations will be suggestive of George Washington's birthday, and luncheon will be served at 1:30, and the bridge game will begin immediately after lunch. Elaborate prizes have been donated to the club and each person attending the bridge-luncheon will have a chance at these prizes. Friends of the club who have attended previous bridge parties will be especially interested in this announcement, as they will remember the unusual parties given in the past. Committee on arrangements includes Miss Julia Elliott, Mesdames Anne Dickson, Billie Dean, Neil Printup, Etta Rhamstine and Louise Vaughan.

Miss Julia Bradshaw Weds F. H. Rahr in Athens, Ga.

ATHENS, Ga., Feb. 18.—The outstanding social event of the season, centering statewide interest, was the marriage of Miss Julia Ashton Bradshaw, daughter of Mrs. William Francis Bradshaw and the late Mr. Bradshaw, of Paducah, Ky., and Athens, to Frederic Hill Rahr, of Rutherford, N. J., solemnized Wednesday evening at the First Presbyterian church at 8:30 o'clock. Dr. Eugene L. Hill, pastor of the church, was the officiating minister at the beautiful nuptials.

Southern smilax festooned the long windows of the historic church and formed a graceful network of greenery overhead, being caught to the electric chandeliers. The middle aisle was outlined by shepherd crooks, entwined with smilax, and caught with a cluster of calla lilies, tied with streamers of tulle. The side aisles had seven-branch candlesticks, with twinkling lights, ornamented with the same decorations of greenery and lilies.

The altar, elevated several feet, had a background of Woodwardia ferns interspersed with innumerable tapers in cathedral candlesticks, outlining the choir rail. The white marble altar was banked with the same delicate ferns, centered with a huge basket of calla lilies showered with sweetpeas. Tiers of tapers fringed with smilax added to the radiant setting, with the exquisite clusters of lilies and lights completing the gorgeous setting.

Bridal Party.

A program of appropriate musical selections was rendered by Hugh L. Hodgson, of Athens and Atlanta, one of the south's most brilliant pianists. The group of charming young women attending the bride were Mrs. Thomas Tillman, of Valdosta, matron of honor, and the bridesmaids were Misses Mary Orr Smith, Katherine McKnight and Marguerite Wheeler, of Paducah, Ky., and Claire Hanner, of Atlanta. Little Agnes Rosena White was the junior bridesmaid, and Hughes Spalding, Jr., of Atlanta, junior groomsman. Rosena McDonald, of Paducah, Ky., was the flower girl. The groomsmen were Western Adams, of Framingham, Mass.; James Maine, of Boston, Mass.; Gerald Paine, of Scranton, Pa., and Thomas Tillman, of Valdosta. The matron of honor and maids wore gowns of cream lace with orchid slippers and carried arm bouquets of Butterfly roses showered with lavender sweetpeas.

Agnes Rosena White and Rosena McDonald wore Kate Greenway dresses, the former in cream and the latter in pale yellow. Agnes carried an old-fashioned bouquet in the pastel shades and Rosena an orchid muff adorned with rosebuds and sweetpeas. The ushers were John White Morton, Audley Morton, Chancellor Charles M. Snelling and John Welch, of Athens; Fred J. Fuller, of Nashville, Tenn., and Edward H. Hillard, of Louisville, Ky.

Lovely Bride.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, James White, Jr., and the groom was attended as best man by his father, Chester E. Rahr, of Brookline, Mass. The lovely bride was a vision of beauty in her exquisite gown of white velvet made on long straight lines entrain, with real lace sleeves and embroidery of seed pearls. She wore an imported veil of rose point, lace draped over tulle, which was caught to her dark hair with clusters of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of orchids, showered with valley lilies and sweetpeas.

A brilliant reception followed the ceremony at the handsome colonial home of Mrs. Bradshaw, considered one of the show places in the south. The long drawing room with Florentine mirrors and family portraits adorning the walls, was graced with great baskets of calla lilies showered with acacia, and valley lilies placed on the two mantels and at intervals around the stately room where the bridal party stood to receive the guests. The birde's table in the dining room was overlaid with a white satin cloth. From the center an improvised fountain played over a sunken garden, illuminated with lights, covered with pink tulip shades. The table was fringed with a border of Butterfly lilies showered with sweetpeas.

The charming bride has had every education advantage and has been a belle and beauty in the college set here and throughout the south, and is the only child of Mrs. Bradshaw and the late Mr. Bradshaw. The groom is an only child also and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester E. Rahr, of Brookline, Mass., already established in the social and business life of Rutherford, N. J., where they will be at home after the 15th of March.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Chester E. Rahr, of Brookline, Mass.; Dr. and Mrs. Frank Boyd, of Paducah; Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Fuller, of Nashville; Mr. and Mrs. Ryan Devereaux, of Washington, D. C.; Captain and Mrs. Hall Jeschin, of Washington, D. C.; Miss Anne Devereaux, of Washington; Miss Claire Hanner, of Atlanta; Edward H. Hilliard, Louisville; Mr. and Mrs. Pryton Thompson and Miss Haydee Thompson, of Waynesboro, Miss.; Marie Allis and Frank Meher, of Boston; Mr. and Mrs. Julius T. Garlington, Miss Virginia Torrence and Miss Mary Middleton, of Atlanta; Miss Winifred Royce, Scranton, Pa.; Mrs. John D. McDonald and Miss Rosena McDonald, of Paducah; Mrs. Edwin Cole and Mrs. Raymond Cole, of Atlanta.

College Park Club Plans Flower Show

A spring flower show to be held in April was planned at a meeting of the garden committee of the College Park Women's Club held at the home of Mrs. Charles D. Center Tuesday morning. Tulips, iris and a garden variety of flowers will be displayed. The exact date of the show will be announced later.

At the meeting held in January the members were requested to bring a potted plant to be shown and judged at this meeting. Mrs. D. R. Nesbit was awarded the prize for the best exhibit. Mrs. Center gave each member present a trowel as a souvenir, after which tea was served.

Black Cat Club To Sponsor Dance

Black Cat Club will sponsor a script dance at the Candler hotel in Decatur Saturday evening, February 21, from 9 until 12 o'clock.

Officers and old members of the club are: Miss Nana Wolfle, president; Miss Mary Anderson Brown, vice president; Miss Mary Ellen Bennett, secretary; Miss Christine Wolfle, treasurer, and Misses Evelyn Barnett, Barbara Metz, Sara White and Mesdames James Alsobrook, George Conrad, Calvin Stewart, Forrest Hill, Chase Van Valkenburg, Archer Avery, Don Frakes, William Garrett Burckel and Robert Davis. New members of the club, recently elected, are: Misses Irene and Alice Garretson, Hilda Muench, Mary Evelyn Martin, Harriet Howard and Eleanor Hopkins. The club extends invitation to its friends to attend the dance.

Music Circle Meets.

The February meeting of the Thursday Morning Music Circle will be held at the home of Mrs. Eugene Allensworth, 1217 Oxford road, today at 11 o'clock. Mrs. W. C. Horne will be hostess with Mrs. Allensworth.

The subject of the program will be "Modern Music." Mrs. Joe McMillin, leader for the morning, will be assisted by Mrs. M. E. Patterson, who will give a short talk on modern music. Mrs. Bonita Crowe and Mrs. Paul Lewis will render piano numbers. Miss Senta Mueller, violin selections, and Mrs. Floyd Jennings, modern vocal compositions.

The circle will register 100 per cent with the Atlanta Music Club approving the plan to bring only the best in music to Atlanta. The roll call will be answered by a current musical event.

Tacky Party.

A tacky party will be given in St. Paul's recreation room, corner of Grant and Sidney streets, S. E., tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock. Admission, 10 cents. The public is invited.

RICH'S . . . A Southern Institution for 63 Years . . .

Arbitrates the "Potlikker and Cornpone" Controversy Now Shaking the Solid South!

—Governor Huey P. Long started it . . . Julian Harris, of The Atlanta Constitution, took it up . . . and now Rich's will meet this strictly South ern issue squarely and fight it to a finish!

Potlikker and Cornpone Will Be Served with Every Meal in Rich's Tea Room Thursday . . .

—Delicious potlikker . . . made from Georgia's finest greens and delectably flavored with succulent boiling meat . . . accompanied by old-fashioned Southern cornpone . . . bearing the unmistakable imprint of a colored mammy's hand . . . will precede every meal served in Rich's Tea Room Thursday. There will be no charge for this ambrosial treat!

Cast Your Vote . .

Do You Dunk?

—This is the method Governor Long advocates. There will be voting slips on every table in the Tea Room Thursday. Check your preference!

Or Do You Crumble?

—Many loyal Southerners contend this is the only honorable way to uphold this Southern tradition. The Atlanta Constitution stands strongly for crumbling!

BY THE OUTCOME OF THIS ISSUE THE SOLID SOUTH STANDS OR FALLS! VOTE THURSDAY!

Miss Preston Weds Athol M. Houk At St. Luke's

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Douglas Preston, daughter of Mrs. N. L. Preston Davis, to Athol M. Houk, Jr., was quietly solemnized at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon at St. Luke's Episcopal church, with the Rev. N. R. High Moor officiating in the presence of the immediate families.

The church was artistically decorated with palms, ferns and cut flowers arranged in pedestal baskets. At intervals on the altar were seven-branched cathedral candelabra with white tapers.

Mrs. Gordon C. Brock, twin sister of the bride, was matron of honor, and wore a gown of green chiffon, fashioned along Princess lines, and worn with a picture hat to match. She carried a bouquet of Richmond roses.

Miss Katherine Zachary, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor, and was gowned in yellow chiffon and wore a black hat, and carried a bouquet of orchids.

Arthur Gould acted as best man for Mr. Houk.

The bride entered with her mother, Mrs. Davis, by whom she was given in marriage. She wore a becoming ensemble of skipper blue trimmed in gray and worn with a small gray hat. Her bouquet was of bride's roses and valley lilies.

Mrs. Davis was gowned in black chiffon, worn with a black hat, and her flowers were Parma violets arranged in a shoulder bouquet.

After the ceremony, Mr. Houk and his bride left for points of interest in Tennessee and upon their return will be at home at 896 Parkway drive.

The bride received her education in Mountain Ranier, Md., and National Park Seminary in Washington, D. C., and for the past four years has resided in Atlanta, where she and her twin sister have been very popular in the younger set. Her mother was formerly Miss Norma Lee Matthews, of Athens, daughter of Mrs. L. C. Matthews, of Birmingham, and the late Mr. Matthews, of Athens. Mrs. Houk's father was the late C. F. Preston, of Richmond, Va., and Atlanta, who was with the general freight department of the Southern railway for 18 years.

Mr. Houk is the only son of Mrs. Athol Houk, of Atlanta and Miami. He is a graduate of Tech High school, and is associated with the Stromberg Electric Company in Atlanta.

Marionette Program.

A program of the Cornelia Cunningham Marionettes will be given in the auditorium of the Ponce de Leon school, of Decatur, Friday evening, February 20, at 7:30 o'clock, the funds accruing therefrom to be applied to the P.-T. A. of the school.

Wears Sports Ensemble

A colorful and brilliant array of new spring fashions will distinguish the extravaganza which comes to the Paramount theater all next week under the sponsorship of the Young Matrons' Circle as a benefit for Tallulah Falls school. Miss Helena Callaway is shown here wearing one of the sports ensembles that forms a part of the gorgeous array brought on from New York especially for this event by J. P. Allen & Co., who will furnish all costumes for the show. The Fashion Revue will be the bright particular attraction at the Paramount throughout the week, sharing honors with two exceptional motion pictures, Otis Skinner starring in "Kismet" Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, while "Viennese Nights," a charming musical comedy, will hold the boards Thursday, Friday and Saturday. The Constitution is co-operating with the R. B. Woodyard System and the Paramount theater in presenting this artistic extravaganza. Kenneth Rogers, staff photographer, made the photograph.

Alumnae-College Days Planned at Wesleyan College

MACON, Ga., Feb. 18.—Friday and Saturday, March 6 and 7, will be designated as alumnae-college days at Wesleyan College, the college playing hostess for those two days to the alumnae at the handsome new college home in Rivoli in Macon. The event marks the second anniversary of alumnae-college days at Rivoli and an elaborate program has been planned, including a series of luncheons, teas and dinners, in addition to meetings and addresses. A large number of prominent alumnae will assemble and will be entertained in the dormitories of the school.

The program opens with a luncheon Friday, March 6, a feature of which will be the presentation of the grand seal of the Confederacy by Mrs. John Perdue, of Atlanta, prominent Wesleyan alumnae, and state U. D. C. officer. From 3 to 4 o'clock Miss Eleanor Neill will speak in Tate building, her subject being "The Adolescent—An Ambitious Attempt to Understand Him." "Georgia's Cultural Background" will be discussed by Dr. R. L. Wiggins and Dr. T. H. Jack, of Emory University, will be the speaker for the evening, choosing as his subject, "The Democratic Tradition in America." His address will be followed by an informal demonstration by the physical education department, under the direction of Miss Ernestine Grote.

Saturday's program will include a number of interesting features, as "Astronomical Slides," by Professor Claude Gruce; "What Lies Beneath Us," by Dean Leon P. Smith; "Science and the Modern Woman," by Professor J. M. Almand, and "Shakespearean Heroines," by Professor G. W. Gignilliat. Luncheon will be served at 1:20 o'clock, followed by an alumnae council meeting in the student parlors from 2 to 4 o'clock. The Wesleyan students will be hostesses at tea at 4 o'clock and at 8:30 o'clock in the evening, Robert Goldsand will give a piano recital in the conservatory chapel, the recital closing the program.

Oakland City Garden Club To Plant Tree

Oakland City Garden Club voted at its February meeting held Thursday at the home of Mrs. A. C. Cawthon, on Avon avenue, to plant a Japanese cherry tree Monday, February 23, in memory of George Washington, first president of the United States.

Nelson Crist, landscape architect of Hastings Seed Company, made an instructive talk on "Pruning Roses and Shrubs." The calendar on garden work for February was presented by Mrs. Lela Turner. A display of spring blossoms was made by each member offering flowers from her own garden as the February activity.

All the standing committees made good reports, which indicates that the garden club members are interested in their gardens, even though they are still dormant.

Mrs. C. L. Miller and Mrs. S .W. Stewart were visitors and those present were Mesdames J. B. Stewart, J. W. White, A. P. Morgan, R. L. Harwell, A. C. Gray, A. B. Hopkins, E. C. Gill, Joseph Bomar, C. B. Betsill, Guy Bomar, E. M. Price, J. S. Stevens, Leila Turner, O. C. Huff, E. M. Fain, I. A. McMurray, F. M. Polson and Miss Inc.: Callahan.

The March meeting will be held with Mrs. Lela Turner at 655 Maryland circle in Adair Park.

Wilson-Wheaton Rites Took Place In July, 1930

GRIFFIN, Ga., Feb. 18.—Mrs. Frederick E. Wilson, of Griffin, announces the marriage of her daughter, Mary Mills, to Gordon Douglas Wheaton, the ceremony having been performed in Alabama in July, 1930. The bride is the only daughter of Mrs. Wilson and the late Colonel Wilson, United States army. With her father and mother, she made her home in some of the most interesting army posts throughout the world. For the past several years the family has lived in Griffin, Colonel Wilson having been retired and made commandant at the High School R. O. T. C. until his death. Mrs. Wilson was formerly Miss Mary Banks Mills, of Griffin, a representative of one of Georgia's most noted families. The lovely bride is a young girl of gracious charm and personality and has been an admired favorite in social circles over the state and south.

Mr. Wheaton is the younger son of Mrs. Will H. Wheaton and the late Mr. Wheaton, for many years clerk of the superior court of Spalding county. His mother was formerly Miss Lily Staley, of Charlottesville, Va., and like his bride Mr. Wheaton is a scion of widely known southern families. He received his education at the University of Georgia in Athens, being a member of the Kappa Alpha fraternity and a soloist with the Glee Club. Mr. and Mrs. Wheaton are making their home with her mother, Mrs. Frederick E. Wilson, at 415 West Taylor street, in Griffin.

Take CARDUI a medicine used by women for over 50 years

for "stuffy" HEAD COLDS

. . . try this Vapor-Steam treatment . . .

When the air-passages are "stopped-up," and breathing is difficult, melt a spoonful of Vicks in a bowl of boiling water and inhale its steaming medicated vapors. Five minutes is usually enough to clear away the clogging mucus and relieve that "stuffed-up" feeling.

This is just one of a number of "extra" ways of using Vicks. Of course, there is no better way to get Vicks long-continued stimulation and inhalation effect than to rub it on throat and chest for ordinary colds. However, some colds need stronger vapor action, while others require stronger stimulative action through the skin.

For instance, in treating deep chest colds it is very helpful to redden the skin over the chest with hot wet towels before applying Vicks. This increases the stimulative effect, so essential in treating most colds, especially those in the chest.

It is this ability to furnish the most effective treatment for the specific condition accompanying different types of colds, that makes Vicks ideal for all cold troubles.

Warning!

Accept no "just as good," or so-called "improvements" on Vicks. 187 such "imitations" have been tested by our chemists and found inferior in quality or strength. Unless checked, colds often develop serious complications. Take no chances. Insist on the original, full-strength, dependable Vicks.

Take no chances in sanitary protection Specify Kotex

Kotex stays soft; it deodorizes; and it is marvelously absorbent.

YOUR health, your comfort, your ease of mind demand the best sanitary protection. That is why you should be sure to specify Kotex.

Kotex is the original manufactured sanitary pad. There is nothing like it. Nothing like its softness, its absorbency, its truly remarkable comfort.

Lasting softness

It is not only soft at first, but it stays soft. It is guaranteed to last longer, to stay soft longer than any other sanitary pad. You can adjust Kotex to your individual needs. Also, it can be worn on either side with equal protection, no possibility of embarrassment.

Kotex filler—Cellucotton (not cotton) absorbent wadding—absorbs five times more than surgical cotton. Five times more! Think of that! And it absorbs laterally, away from the surface, not just in one concentrated spot. These are two of the many reasons why our leading hospitals use Kotex for their women patients.

Truly inconspicuous protection

Kotex is rounded and gently tapered, to make the pad fit better. It is inconspicuous, even under snug, smooth-fitting gowns. Buy a box of Kotex today.

Kotex Company, Chicago, Illinois.

IN HOSPITALS . . .

1 The Kotex absorbent is the identical material used by surgeons in 85% of the country's leading hospitals.
2 Kotex is soft . . . Not a deceptive softness, that soon packs into chafing hardness. But a delicate, lasting softness.
3 Can be worn on either side with equal comfort. No embarrassment.
4 Disposable, instantly, completely.

Regular Kotex—45c for 12
Kotex Super-Size—65c for 12

Gen., Mrs. McCoy Honor Commanders

FORT McPHERSON, Ga., Feb. 18. Major General Frank Ross McCoy and Mrs. McCoy will entertain at dinner at their quarters this evening in honor of the post commanders of the fourth corps area who arrive Thursday morning to confer with General McCoy. Covers will be placed for Major General G. Harbold and Mrs. Harbold, of New York city, who are the guests of General McCoy and Mrs. McCoy. Brigadier General George H. Estes and Mrs. Estes, Mrs. Harold B. Fiske, General Herbert J. Breese, Colonel Louis M. Nuttman, Colonel Harry Knight and Mrs. Knight, Mrs. James B. Golden, of Front Royal, Va.; Colonel Walter F. Bates and Mrs. Bates, Colonel Clyde C. Abraham and Mrs. Abraham, Major Maxwell Weaver and Mrs. Weaver, Major Francis Fuller and Mrs. Fuller, Major Harry H. Maloney and Mrs. Maloney, Colonel E. H. Humphrey, Colonel Willis P. Coleman, Colonel Erie M. Wilson, Colonel Francis Lincoln, Colonel Willis Taylor and General McCoy and Mrs. McCoy.

General Estes entertains at a luncheon at his quarters Thursday in honor of the post commanders, and Friday this distinguished group will be honored at luncheon given by Colonel Bates and Colonel Abraham at the quarters of the former.

Interesting guests in military circles are Colonel Phillip Remington and Mrs. Remington, of Windsor, Conn., who are visiting Captain Edwin Aldridge and Mrs. Aldridge at their quarters. During their stay they have been honored at a number of informal social affairs.

General Estes, accompanied by his aide-de-camp, Charles Landon, leaves Sunday for Spartanburg, S. C., where he will represent the corps area commander at the dinner to be given by the South Carolina Reserve Officers' Association. General Estes and Mrs. Estes and Lieutenant Landon returned to the garrison Tuesday following an absence of ten days while General Estes inspected the military units in south Georgia and Florida.

Colonel George Arrowsmith has returned from an inspection trip of the R. O. T. C. in Tennessee.

Mrs. James B. Golden, who has been the guest of Miss Berenice Fiske, plans to visit her father, Colonel Louis M. Nuttman, at the post.

New England Women.

The Atlanta Colony National Society New England Women met at the home of Mrs. J. M. Reed, 950 Drewry street, N. E., Tuesday. Mrs. R. G. Peeples presided. The topic of the meeting was early colonial music. Mrs. De Los Hill read an interesting paper on New England musicians and composers, playing two compositions of MacDowell's to illustrate his work. Mrs. T. L. Stokes gave three pleasing vocal solos, accompanied by Mrs. Thad Morrison.

Guests were Mesdames De Los Hill, Thad Morrison, T. L. Stokes, C. S. Robinson, F. C. Foss, George W. Grant, C. C. Wilthrow and C. S. Foster. A social hour followed the meeting.

Bride-Elect Feted.

Dr. Priscilla Streeter entertained at luncheon yesterday at her home on North Boulevard in compliment to Miss Hazel Bell Rantley, whose marriage to Clayton Abrams will take place March 1 in Tuscaloosa, Ala.

Informal Dinner Given

Dr. and Mrs. DeLos Hill were hosts last evening at an informal dinner at their home on Eleventh street in compliment to Mrs. J. N. Ellis and her daughter, Miss Marjorie Jane Ellis, of Knoxville, Tenn., who are the guests of Mrs. Ellis' sister and brother, Mr. and Mrs. E. Cody Laird. Mrs. Ellis will be remembered in Atlanta as the former Miss Fannie Laird.

The table was artistically decorated with early spring flowers and covers were placed for Mrs. Ellis, Miss Ellis, Mr. and Mrs. Laird and Dr. and Mrs. Hill.

W. D. Rucker Celebrates Birthday

ALPHARETTA, Ga., Feb. 18.—W. D. Rucker celebrated his fifty-ninth birthday last Sunday at Foekiller, his new field stone house near Alpharetta. The name Foekiller is derived from the Indian chief whose grave lies on the ridge rising from Foekiller creek at the back of Mr. Rucker's house.

Honor guests of the occasion were Dr. W. H. Maxwell, of Granite Hill, Ga., whose fifty-ninth birthday fell on the following day and Rev. W. E. Hembree, of Alpharetta, Ga., who celebrates his fifty-ninth birthday this year.

Covers were placed for Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Maxwell, Rev. and Mrs. W. E. Hembree, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Rainwater, Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Broadwell, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Broadwell, Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Wheeler and baby, Mr. and Mrs. Troy Rucker, Misses Jennie Rucker, Grace Rainwater, Susie Broadwell, Mossye Broadwell, Helen, Mary and Sarah Rucker, Anita Murdock, Mrs. Ruth Rucker Murdock, Charles Murdock and the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Rucker.

Marist Dance.

BURGESS CHILDREN'S STORIES

JUMPER EXPLAINS.

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Knowledge is the precious key
That unlocks every mystery.
—Old Mother Nature.

"Hello, Cousin Peter! What are you so busy about?"

Startled, Peter turned to find his big cousin, Jumper the Hare, watching him from under a little hemlock tree. "Hello, Cousin Jumper!" exclaimed Peter. "I'm glad that it is you and not Reddy Fox." Peter grinned.

"You may well be," replied Jumper. "I've been watching you for some time and you have been so busy you haven't once looked around for enemies. Yes, sir, it is a lucky thing for you, Peter Rabbit, that I happened along instead of Reddy Fox. What is so interesting that you forget that there always is danger?"

"To tell the truth I've been looking for Jimmy Skunk," replied Peter.

"Jimmy Skunk!" exclaimed Jumper. "What under the sun do you want of Jimmy Skunk?"

Peter looked as if the question made him feel a wee bit foolish. "I don't really want anything of him," he confessed. "You see, I thought he was asleep over near Farmer Brown's, and when I found that he was here in the Green Forest I thought I would like to see him and just pass the time of day."

"Who says Jimmy Skunk is in the Green Forest?" inquired Jumper.

"My nose," replied Peter. "I can always trust my nose, and that tells me that Jimmy Skunk is around here somewhere, or at least has been here very recently. Don't you smell him?"

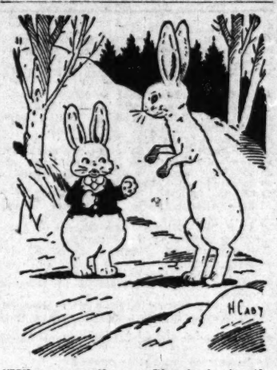
"No," replied Jumper bluntly. "No, I don't smell him, and what is more I don't believe he has been in the Green Forest this winter. If he had I would know it."

"Well, you are wrong!" retorted Peter. "Perhaps you can't smell him over there, but if you will come over here by me you'll smell him. It isn't very strong, but it is Jimmy Skunk's odor all right. There is no mistaking the scent Jimmy uses. You'll admit that. I can smell it this very minute. Come over here and you will."

Jumper hopped over to where Peter was sitting under a beautiful big spruce tree, growing in a little opening among the other trees, so that its spreading lower branches were near the ground. Jumper wrinkled his nose. Then he gave Peter a queer look and began to chuckle.

"Don't you smell it?" demanded Peter.

Jumper shook his head. "I don't smell Jimmy Skunk," said he. There was a twinkle in Jumper's eyes, but Peter didn't see it.



"Who says Jimmy Skunk is in the Green Forest?" inquired Jumper.

"Then there is something wrong with your nose," declared Peter. "Yes, sir, there is something wrong with your nose. Here, smell of this branch. Jimmy has left some of his scent on it."

Instead of doing this, Jumper went around to the other side of the tree. "Come here, Peter," said he. "Come smell of this branch."

Peter did as bidden. "There!" he cried triumphantly. "He left some of his scent on this branch, too!"

"What for?" asked Jumper.

"How should I know?" retorted Peter, beginning to lose patience. "Anyway, you smell it."

"No, I don't smell Jimmy Skunk's scent," replied Jumper. "Go all around this tree, Peter, and smell of every branch within reach. You'll find the same odor on all. Yet I don't believe that even you will believe that Jimmy would waste his scent by leaving it on every branch of a tree. This isn't Jimmy's scent at all. It belongs to the tree."

Peter's eyes opened very wide. "What?" he exclaimed.

"It's a fact," replied Jumper. "Because of it this kind of a tree is known as a Skunk Spruce. I can show you several others and they all smell alike."

DERVISH WHO ESCAPED GALLOWS RECAPTURED

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Feb. 18.—(AP) The law today caught up with the 25-year-old dervish, Hussein, who made a spectacular bid for freedom recently when he broke loose from the hangman who was to have executed him with 27 others, and escaped in the gloom of the dawn.

He was captured last night, half starved after 15 days' wandering through the mountains about Smyrna and this morning he was hanged.

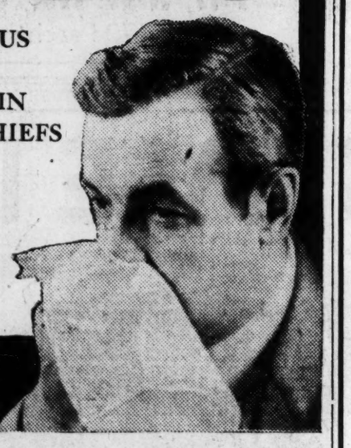
Benefit Luncheon.

Thursday morning from 10 to 1 o'clock the Cascade Chapter, O. E. S., will give a benefit luncheon at the home of Mrs. H. Grady Andrews, 1468 Lucile avenue. All friends of the chapter, especially all O. E. S., are invited. Reservations can be made by telephoning Raymond 0294-J, or Raymond 1310.

DURING COLDS

INFECTIOUS GERMS SURVIVE IN HANDKERCHIEFS

Handkerchief unsafe if used once . . . should be discarded to prevent constant self-infection.



Safety Demands Kleenex

Use it once . . . then discard

THE use of Kleenex in place of handkerchiefs may actually shorten the duration of your cold! This promise comes to us from the scientific laboratory, after a remarkable series of tests on handkerchiefs used during colds.

These tests reveal the vast numbers of disease germs discharged into a handkerchief during colds. As many as 240,000 in a handkerchief used one time! As many as 4,170,000 in a handkerchief used several times!

This means that the ordinary handkerchief carries countless germs back to the face every time it's used. Germs that should be destroyed—are destroyed when you use Kleenex.

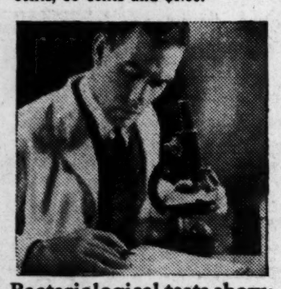
Use Kleenex—then discard

You use Kleenex just once, then discard it forever. All germs are discarded, too.

Each tissue that touches your face is absolutely clean. Think how much more sanitary! Health authorities advise Kleenex.

Kleenex is a soft, immaculate, super-absorbent tissue, handkerchief size. So gentle, so soothing, that irritation is impossible. So inexpensive that each tissue may be used just once, then discarded.

Ask for Kleenex at any drug, dry goods or department store; 25 cents, 50 cents and $1.00.



Bacteriological tests show:

1. That handkerchiefs used by persons having colds may contain as many as 4,170,000 germs per handkerchief.
2. That organisms representative of those known to be associated with colds, when impregnated upon linen and rinsed in boiling water and/or soap water followed by clear water, were not killed nor appreciably inhibited from growing.

NEW DEFENDS SELF ON POSTAL LEASES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Former Postmaster-General New today defended vigorously his conduct in connection with postal leases and revealed that relations between himself and his first assistant, John H. Bartlett, were badly strained.

Before the senate committee investigating the leasing of the St. Paul commercial postal station, and other leases, New praised Bartlett's ability in business negotiations, and said that for this reason he had "endured him."

He denied he had attempted to prevent a grand jury investigation of the lease or recommended dismissal of the assistant district attorney who prepared the case for the jury. The committee had previously received testimony that the St. Paul commercial station lease was signed with Bartlett's name in his absence by a subordinate at New's direction.

Chairman Blaine had intimated high republican officials sought to avert a grand jury investigation of the lease in 1928 for fear it would have a detrimental effect on their presidential campaign.

5 BELIEVED KILLED IN COAL MINE CAVE-IN

SCRANTON, Pa., Feb. 18.—(AP)—Five men were reported to have been crushed to death today in a cave-in in the Powderly mine of the Hudson Coal Company at Carbondale.

Four mules also were killed in the huge fall, which covers a wide area.

Officials of the Hudson Coal Company refused to give out information on the accident other than to say they had heard "something had happened" at the mine.

Rescuers were making efforts to reach the five men believed killed.

MANILA FANS EXTEND WELCOME TO DOUG

MANILA, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Douglas Fairbanks, motion picture actor, virtually paralyzed business along the water front today when he arrived aboard the liner Belgenland.

Almost all of the workers left their jobs to get a glimpse of him.

A crowd estimated at 8,000 persons jammed the pier while another huge throng lined the streets outside.

ANDERSON CHARGES ORDERED DROPPED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—(AP)—The house today adopted a resolution directing that charges against Federal Judge Harry B. Anderson, of Tennessee, be dropped.

A report from the judiciary committee said that although certain practices followed by the western Tennessee district judge and his predecessors were not praiseworthy, he had not been found guilty of "high crimes or misdemeanors" necessitating impeachment.

ALABAMA LAND TO AID EDUCATION

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Representative Allgood, democrat, Alabama, said today that congressional approval has sent to the president legislation conveying 16,000 acres of land in Cherokee county, Alabama, for use in vocational education.

"This land would be joined to a selected site purchased by the estate of H. G. Woodard and administered by a trust he left for the benefit of the state," Allgood said.

OIL PROMOTION FRAUD CHARGED IN MOBILE

MOBILE, Ala., Feb. 18.—(AP)—Jim McMurray, of Fort Worth, Texas, arrested at San Antonio today on federal indictment returned here on December 31, is said to have operated on a huge scale and to have collected large sums of money for his oil promotion schemes, according to D. R. Coley, assistant United States district attorney at Mobile. Four or five Mobilians were victims of the scheme, the attorney said. They are expected to testify when McMurray is put to trial but the attorney would not reveal their identity at this time.

36 KILLED, 72 HURT IN CHINESE WRECK

HANKOW, China, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Thirty-six were killed and 72 injured in a train wreck Sunday near Sinyang, 100 miles north of here on the Peiping-Hankow railway.

Because of crippled wire and rail communications, the report reached here only today.

When Your Cough Hangs On, Mix This at Home

The best cough remedy that money could buy, can easily be mixed at home. It saves money and gives you the most reliable, quick-acting medicine you ever used. The way it takes hold of stubborn coughs and chest colds, giving immediate relief, is astonishing.

Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and fill up with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. It's no trouble at all to mix, and when you once use it, you will never be without it. Keeps perfectly and tastes good—children really like it.

It is surprising how quickly this loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and soothes and heals the inflamed membranes. At the same time, part of the medicine is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes, and helps the system throw off the whole trouble. Even those severe coughs which follow cold epidemics, are promptly ended.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded. —(adv.)

Some Specialists In Excess Fat Make Thousands Thin

Since this new discovery

In old days, doctors were not often consulted in obesity. People simply assumed that excess fat meant too much food, too little exercise. They feared the doctor would prescribe starvation.

Now that has changed. Science has discovered that a scanty gland secretion is a great cause of excess fat. Doctors the world over know how to correct it. And some of them are telling thousands the way to normal figures.

The factor they use is employed in Marmola prescription tablets. A world-famous medical laboratory prepares them to fit the average case. Thus anyone can now deal with obesity in the right way at small cost. This way supplies a lacking factor which largely controls nutrition. It helps turn food into fuel and energy when too much goes to fat. No help in all medicine is more widely accepted today.

Marmola has been used for 24 years—millions of boxes of it. Users have told others about it, and the use has spread. Now you can see its results in every circle. Excess fat has been fast disappearing. Slender figures are everywhere the vogue.

Now excess fat is folly. It takes so little to correct it. No abnormal exercise or diet. Combat the gland cause. Think what the results will mean in beauty, health and vim.

All druggists supply Marmola at $1. A book in each box gives the formula and explains the reasons for results. It means doing what doctors do, instead of something harmful or absurd. Go start today.

New Yorker Gives Democrats' Slant On G.O.P. Record

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Representative Black, of New York, today gave a democratic version of republican achievements during this session of congress.

"The outstanding accomplishment of the administration was an assault on Webster's dictionary," he said. "Disdaining the short and the ugly word 'food' as having no place in American sociology, . . . it struck 'food' from Webster's and with the aid of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, of the department of agriculture, substituted 'rehabilitation.'

"Hoover would make mad faces at congress and then send Walter Newton (a presidential secretary) over to say he didn't mean it.

"A group of weather beaten little travelers, headed by Rip Van Wickersham, sought shelter at the White House from the storm without. They croaked and groaned pitifully: 'Master, we are wet.' Hoover drew himself proudly to his full height and a la Mussolini, waved his arm over them, saying: 'Brethren, thou art dry.' Dry they became, as dust, and flew away, nevermore to be seen by mortal men.

"The word 'panic' grated on his ears, so he had the cabinet members, including the greatest secretary of the treasury since Andrew Mellon, recite in sympathetic unison 500 times a day, 'prosperity.'

"Thereafter, the word 'panic' was to be known as 'depression' and the word 'prosperity' was to be known as 'depression' or vice versa."

NEW RIVER NAVIGABLE, PINCHOT DECLARES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Governor Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, today told the power commission in a preliminary brief mailed from Harrisburg that the New river in Virginia and West Virginia was a navigable stream and subject to federal jurisdiction.

Pinchot, who notified the commission in a letter today that a full brief would be submitted later this week, protested to the federal agency yesterday against issuance of a modified or "minor part" license to the Appalachian Electric Power Co., which seeks to build an $11,000,000 plant on the river near Radford, Va.

Manhattan Night

By William Almon Wolff

INSTALLMENT XIII.

He shouted to Manuel, busy somewhere about the flat, and said he wanted breakfast at once, and the water in his shower was running icy cold before he stepped out of it, so that as he slapped himself dry he was in a fine warm glow. He breakfasted in a heavy dressing gown, with the windows wide open, and the cool, crisp winter air filling the room so that Manuel, waiting on him, shivered, although he showed all his white teeth in a grin when Peter kept calling for more toast and coffee.

Deliberately, Peter glanced through the papers; then, settling down snugly into his chair, he started to try to think this business out.

He was in love with Martha. That was, it seemed to him, the chief thing. Perhaps New York, already, had made him as self-centered, as egocentric, as all these people he'd been looking down on so condescendingly; he didn't care, the fact that he was in love with Martha, and wanted her, and was going to get her if he could, was still his starting point. She was married; she was, by her own admission, in love with another man, not her husband. All right! Bad dope, but it couldn't be helped. This wasn't a question of theory, of conventions, of abstract ideas; he was up against stark and real and pretty bitter facts. And the chief fact, the only one, indeed, about which, as yet, he could be certain, was that no matter what Martha had done, no matter why she had done it, he loved her. He couldn't, as he sat there, imagine any conceivable thing she could tell him, when he saw her, that would alter that.

He thought of Tack, and ruled him out, without much ceremony. He couldn't see where Tack came in, no matter how you approached this business. He did, after all, know enough, from what he'd seen for himself, and from what both Tack and Martha, separately, had told him, to come to that conclusion. The things Tack had said to him that night on the roof, the night he'd talked about how easy it would be to jump off, had, somehow, a new significance now. He didn't feel that he was being disloyal to Tack in loving Martha and telling her he loved her; he wasn't sure, indeed, that he couldn't, in a queer fashion, count on Tack's backing and support. That sounded crazy, but it wasn't—not if the whole mad business had any sense in it.

Ross. He scowled as he let his mind work around to Ross. He never had liked the chap, and he'd passed, almost insensibly, from not liking him, which was a negative thing, to disliking him, which was, with Peter, always a very positive thing indeed. He had, he supposed, been jealous of Ross right along—because he was prepared to admit to himself, now, that he'd been in love with Martha for a long time. But he thought his dislike of the chap was based upon something besides jealousy.

He closed his eyes to evoke a sort of mental portrait of Ross. A handsome chap; tall, lean, with thin, delicate features, and a strong, well-made body; with sullen, dark eyes, and a rather Roman nose; with a bad, cruel mouth, though, and a pointed jaw of the sort that, in a prize fighter, makes the wise man bet on his opponent. Cruel hands, too; hands that, in a woman, might have been beautiful, but didn't, somehow, belong to a man; hands with greedy, grasping fingers, always a little bent as he sat still. Yet, all in all, Peter knew it, the sort of man women do love; the sort of man women go mad about, and always have, and always will. He wasn't, this morning, disposed, certainly, to underrate Ross as a rival.

Something puzzled him, though. Rita Gould. What lay between Ross and that tall, red-headed girl? Something, he thought. Something he didn't understand; something, he was ready to swear, that Martha, too, found baffling and mysterious.

He didn't know much about Rita Gould. No one did. You saw her around, but she wasn't, it seemed to Peter, really of the crowd he knew, the crowd she was with so much. He didn't know her at all well himself, though he'd seen her, often enough, since the night he'd met her at the Thayers.' She disliked him as much, he thought, as he disliked her. She wrote, Peter knew; he'd seen her name signed to stories in one or two magazines; she lived with an aunt whom no one ever saw. She had, certainly, no background in New York; she came, he had heard, from the south. He put her away, after a moment; filed her, so to speak, for future and more leisurely reference and examination. He was sure that she was, or would become, a factor in this business, but to what extent he lacked, as yet, the information to decide.

Martha. Well, there it was. When all was said and done, it began and ended with her. No one else really mattered. She, and she alone, held the key. He got up, and went back into his room, to the telephone.

"Ye-es?" Martha answered—and, for once, Peter was pretty sure, it was he who had waked her up, although she denied it, just as he always did. "How do I feel? Terrible! You sound annoyingly cheerful."

"I am," he said. "I don't believe Kodi's any good at breakfasts. How'd you like me to send Manuel up to teach him something about the art of making an omelet?"

"Stop it!" said Martha. She laughed, but there was a puzzled note in her voice.

"All right. But my mind seems to dwell on food. Going to have lunch with me?"

She waited a long time before she answered.

"If you like," she said, then. "Peter—do you know what you'd do, if you had any sense? Cross me off your list—right now. Go away—and stay away till—"

"Don't be silly," he said, cheerfully. "Romi's? Or—it's a decent sort of day. Suppose I pick you up and we go somewhere in the country?"

"Oh, I'd love to!" she said. "That—that's different, somehow. I couldn't bear a speakeasy today."

So, a little after noon he turned up, in his long, gray car, that, in city traffic, could always be identified blocks away because it couldn't be driven in high until it got across the bridge, as a rule, and Martha came down, in a fur coat, and he made a great ceremony of wrapping her up. She nestled down beside him and they didn't talk at all as he drove out through the endless, drab outskirts of Queens and came to open country at last, with last week's snow still white in the fields and in the shady ditches along the road.

He was headed for a place they both knew, though they'd never been there together, 30 miles out, and he was extremely firm when she wanted to stop at a dog wagon.

"Peter—I'm starving!" she said.

"You don't know what the word means yet," he assured her. "Wait till you've had 10 miles more of this air. Talk about a cocktail."

"If you do I'll scream!" she said.

"Steak?" he suggested, later. "And hashed brown potatoes? and whatever they've got in the way of vegetables?"

"Except spinach!"

"Of course. I temper firmness with mercy. Glad you came?"

She looked at him.

"Very glad, Peter," she said. "You—you're sweet. I thought when I woke up this morning that I never wanted to see you again."

"That," said Peter, "is so absurd that it doesn't deserve to be answered. Only—you had about as much chance of never seeing me again as I have of not getting pinched if I let that car do its stuff on the way home."

"I suppose so," said Martha. "Only—" She sighed. "I am such a selfish beast!" she said, and looked at him, very straight, with her clear eyes.

"Why?" he said. "Look here. Let's both be sensible. I'm in love with you. And you—well, you say you're in love with Ross. I'm sorry. Selfishly—because I want you myself. And—well—because I think it's not so good, anyway, leaving me out of it. But I can't see why you should call yourself names."

BY JOHN L. COOLEY.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Another early flare-up in stocks was dampened by realizing today, but this time the market had enough vitality to stiffen in the late trading and prices closed somewhat higher, although well below the day's top.

Bullish activity during the forenoon rally was somewhat restrained, nor was the rush to take profits as pronounced as on Tuesday. The result was a sharp decrease in turnover, sales approximating 2,800,000 shares against 4,000,000 in the previous session.

Reports that steel production had maintained an advance for the eighth consecutive week and that automobile manufacturers were increasing their schedules probably presented a reasonable basis for an advance in shares of companies affected by such mildly encouraging news. Foods and utilities also looked up, the latter in sympathy with smaller decline reported in electric power production as reported for last week. With the copper trade talking 10 1-4 cent metal, stocks of leading producers were stimulated. Rails and oils were dull.

American Can made a belated response to its 1930 earnings report and rushed up 4 1-4 points to a new 1931 high. It lost half the rise. United States Steel sold 2 1-2 points net higher, but yielded all but a fraction of its gain. Westinghouse halved a 4-point advance. In the utilities, there was net improvement of 1 to 1 1-2 in American Telephone, American & Foreign Power, Electric Power & Light, Consolidated Gas, National Power & Light and Public Service of New Jersey.

The motor accessories forged ahead consistently. Borg Warner, Briggs and Murray advanced 1 to 2 net. Foods did equally well, especially National Biscuit, General Foods, Penick & Ford and Loose Wiles. Some of the violent performers among the specialties were a little more sober. Auburn's extreme gain of 6 was succeeded by a loss of nearly 5 and it closed fractionally lower. Case lost a 5-point advance. General Asphalt came to the fore with a 6-point rally in response to the favorable outcome of its royalty suit against Royal Dutch.

The rise in steel operations was variously estimated at from 1 to 3 per cent, with the automobile plants accounting for a good part of the gain.

Buying from the far east and hopes for a settlement of the Indian difficulties sent cotton to new highs for the movement and futures rose 90 cents to $1.05 net.

A small decline in sterling marred an otherwise firm foreign exchange list.

Earnings.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—The preliminary consolidated income statement of the North American Company and subsidiaries for 1930 shows $27,008,083 for the common stock, compared with $26,986,700 for 1929.

Earnings for 1930 were equal to $4.83 a share on the average number of North American common shares outstanding during the year, compared with $5.03 a share in 1929.

American Commercial Alcohol Company and subsidiaries for 1930 had net profit of $556,381, before inventory adjustment amounting to $553,235, which was charged against surplus, against net profit of $1,395,716 for 1929.

Gould Coupler Company reported for 1930 net profit of $130,801, subject to year-end adjustment, against $284,740 for the previous year.

The pamphlet report of Consolidated Cigar Corporation, including subsidiaries, for 1930 shows net income of $2,372,535, equal to $5.95 a share on the common, against $3,314,090, or $9.46 a share, in 1929.

United Electric Coal Companies, for the quarter ended January 31, had net income of $48,834, against $100,763 in the January quarter of the preceding fiscal year.

Phoenix Silk Hosiery Company and subsidiaries for 1930 reported net loss after inventory adjustments, was $267,237, against net income of $321,935 in 1929.

BY DONALD C. BOLLES.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—(AP)—After traveling slowly down hill since the first of the week, the bond market moved forward in low gear today, apparently heartened by the mild rally of United States governments.

Traders were a little hazy as to the upturn in governments on a good volume of buying unless the issues had been oversold, for the senate demonstrated it would push the house soldiers' bonus bill through when the finance committee reported it favorably. An easier tone in the money market, may have accounted for the action of the governments.

Liberties were dull and just a trifle higher, but long-term treasuries were buoyant in the late trading and advanced on an average of 1-4 of a point with the exception of treasury 4s, up 3-32nds.

Prime domestic bonds attracted support from banks and on the whole gave the best performance of the week, advancing fractionally all along the line. Atchison General 4s made a new year's high.

Utilities were quiet and firm. Oils were narrowly irregular.

The abrupt declines in Australian bonds stood out in the foreign section.

CHURCHILL SEES BETTER BUSINESS

LONDON, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Economic conditions in the United States will better themselves before long, and with them conditions in a large part of the world, Winston Churchill said in another characteristically fiery speech in the house of commons today.

The present "great disorder," he said, was due to an orgy of speculation. On the other hand, he continued, the United States before the crash of 1929 had "come nearer to achieving the ideal relations between capital and labor than any community has ever come."

"They had," the conservative orator asserted, "twenty or twenty-five million persons then producing by mass production under private enterprise 200 standard articles which were consumed by those same twenty to twenty-five millions who produced them. It is my belief that this process in the United States came nearer to bridging the mysterious gap between producing and consuming power than we have yet seen."

Highlights OF Wall Street

By CHARLES W. STORM
Editor, the News Service of Wall Street.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—(NANA) Except in a few isolated instances the bull leaders were unable to force the market to new high levels today. The short interest for the time being has taken quite a licking and the big professional shorts have covered a substantial part of their outstanding commitments but stand ready to put out additional fresh lines as new high levels are reached.

Due to a more optimistic turn of the trade news the bull contingent injected strength to the leading speculative favorites during the forenoon but even the promulgation of an optimistic weekly Iron Age statement and the dissemination of favorable news with regard to the motor industry failed to induce buyers in sufficient volume to carry the list into new high ground. Profit-taking continued to appear and the list began to hesitate. One favorable development, however, was the diminished activity when the market receded.

CHAIN STORE BUSINESS.

Much elation is felt in the financial district over the fact that the business of the chain stores has started to show a resumption of the upward trend.

Little or no comment was heard marketwise with regard to the soldiers' bonus, the Street being content to wait for the final developments now that the market has been taken out of the low rut in which it had been wallowing for weeks.

More comment was heard with regard to the further improvement in the first few days of this month in the automobile industry and to the increase in the volume of electricity consumed during the week ending February 14, compared with last year. This increased use of current stimulated the public utilities early in the day but they eased off with the balance of the list later.

VANADIUM BATTLE.

On of the largest stock market battles witnessed in many a week is going on now in the market for Vanadium Corporation stock. So far those sponsoring the present advance have held the upper hand and have been able to put the stock higher and higher at the same time taking all offerings of the issue by the big professional bears who cannot see anything but failure in the present bull efforts. While big interests in the company are down in Peru trying to get a look at the big deposits of titanium that are supposed to make all the stockholders rich, other people here who ought to know something about mining are reported to be hammering the stock.

AUTO ACCESSORY STOCKS.

Automobile stocks did little worthy of attention but the recent advance in the motor stocks has given an excuse for the beginning of manipulation of a number of the automobile accessory company shares.

Chrysler Motor early in the day gave a good account of itself at higher prices due to the activities of the big pool in the stock which during the last year is credited with having been forced to accumulate nearly 200,000 shares of the stock at prices about 50 per cent higher than those now prevailing. The Chrysler pool has a big swim ahead of it before it gets its head above water.

International bankers are bending all efforts toward the formulation of a plan for the stabilization of the price of silver and the development of such a plan should do much to inject renewed activity and strength in the general stock market. Another advance in the price of copper metal is also expected this week to expand activity and speculation for the rise in the copper stocks.

NAVY FUND BILL VOTED BY FRENCH CHAMBER

PARIS, Feb. 18.—(AP)—The chamber of deputies voted the 1931-32 naval budget in the record time of three hours today with little opposition to the government's figures.

The speed with which the measure was carried was interpreted generally as meaning that France, as far as parliament was concerned, had reached the limit of naval limitation as far as the 1931-32 program was concerned.

This program, which devotes approximately $39,000,000 to the laying down of new construction, provides for beginning work on about 42,000 tons. The whole appropriation for naval needs total about $123,000,000.

ITALY MAY RESUME "GUN-FOR-GUN" POLICY

ROME, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Italy may go back to her "ton-for-ton, gun-for-gun" building program, official quarters indicated tonight, as the result of the French chamber voting today for $39,000,000 in new naval construction.

This nation has been ready for some time to resume the Franco-Italian naval holiday which expired in December, it was said, but now may be forced to build up evenly if the French program looms large and immediate.

CLEVELAND CUTS CRIME FIGURES

CLEVELAND, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Ohio's metropolis is winning its fight against the criminal.

This was announced today by Dan B. Sull, acting president of the Cleveland Association for Criminal Justice, while many other large cities of the country were combating crime increases.

Crimes of violence, he said, declined 25 per cent in 1930 under 1929. Despite the financial depression, which usually swells to a great degree the number involved in crimes against property, such as burglary, house breaking and larceny, these gained only 11 per cent. When prosperity returns Sull looks for this figure to be sharply reduced.

Famed Dancers in Anna Pavlova Memorial Program Here Tonight

Madame Vola Menzeli and Senia Solomonoff, world-famous exponents of the dance, will be featured in the Pavlova Memorial dance program which is to be presented tonight at the auditorium of the Woman's Club at 8:30.

Madame Menzeli and Mr. Solomonoff, who recently retired from the stage after achieving tremendous triumphs in Europe, and who have established their home here, were close personal friends of the late Anna Pavlova. The program tonight is given as a memorial to her, following her recent death. A feature of tonight's program will be Pavlova's most famous dance, the "Dying Swan," danced in black costume by Madame Menzeli.

"Christmas Eve in Moscow," the spectacular ballet which Mr. Solomonoff first gave some weeks ago at the auditorium, is being repeated tonight by special request. It includes in its personnel some of Atlanta's finest dancers and was received at the city auditorium as one of the most gorgeous dance productions ever seen here.

Many prominent Atlantans have already made reservations for tonight's performance which, it is indicated, will draw a capacity audience. The limited seating capacity makes it advisable to reserve seats in advance which may be done by telephone to the Studio Arts building.

Among the dancers who will appear in special numbers on the program are the three deaf and dumb girls whose dancing to the vibrations of the music they cannot hear has been acclaimed as one of the greatest teaching accomplishments of modern days. They were taught by Mr. Solomonoff.

Part of the proceeds of tonight's program will go to the Scottish Rite Hospital for Crippled Children.

Among prominent Atlantans who have already made reservations are Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Elsas, Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer L. Moore, Miss Jacqueline Moore, Mrs. Irving S. Thomas, Miss Aida Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Reinhardt, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Loridans, Miss Eugenia Dozier, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Joseph, Mr. and Mrs. Julian Harris, Mrs. Jessie Tomlinson, Miss Martha Tomlinson, Mr. and Mrs. De Forrest Scraggs, Mr. and Mrs. Delos A. Sparks, Mr. and Mrs. Julian Boehm, Mr. and Mrs. Lionel Keene, Mrs. Armond Carroll, Mrs. Ann Berry, Mr. and Mrs. S. Russell Bridges, Miss Elizabeth Morris, well-known dancing teacher of Rome, and her entire class.

TENNESSEE BANK ROBBED OF $8,000

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 18.—(AP)—Two men armed with pistols and a sub-machine gun held up an assistant cashier of the Bells Banking Company at Bells, Tenn., today and escaped with loot estimated at between $7,000 and $8,000. Bells is about 40 miles east of Memphis.

E. C. Smothers, the cashier's assistant, and a negro customer of the bank were forced into a vault and, while one of the robbers kept the two men covered, the other gathered up all the money in sight.

The automobile in which they fled from the bank was identified as one stolen here last night. A short distance from Bells the men transferred to another car, also believed to have been one stolen here.

SENATE ACCORDS OVERMAN TRIBUTE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Memorial services for the late Senator Lee S. Overman, of North Carolina, were conducted in the senate today with more than a dozen senators paying homage to the man who spent nearly 30 years of his lifetime in that body.

The widow and other members of the Overman family, dressed in black, sat in the members' gallery during the eulogies.

Senator Morrison, who was appointed to serve out the rest of Overman's term, opened the services. He read a tribute from Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, close friend of the deceased, who was unable to attend on account of illness. Morrison paid a brief personal tribute and then read the Simmons speech from the latter's seat.

SECKATARY HAWKINS — A Message to Harkinson :: :: By Robert Franc Schulkers

HARKINSON, THE RED RUNNER LEADER, HAD GONE BLIND—
EACH DAY THE PREACHER WENT TO THE HOSPITAL TO CALL ON THE BOY, AND OFTEN HE BROUGHT BACK TO US NEWS AS TO HIS CONDITION—TODAY THE PREACHER STOPPED IN.
Sack
HOW IS HARKINSON GETTING ALONG?
VERY POORLY— HE TOLD ME HE GAVE YOU HIS OLD BRASS HORN—
YES, HE WANTED ME TO HAVE SOMETHING TO REMEMBER HIM BY— BUT I WOULDN'T NEED ANYTHING FOR THAT HAVEN'T YOU FOUND IT IN YOUR HEART TO FORGIVE HIM?
FORGIVE HIM? WHAT FOR? IT WAS ALL FAIR IN FIGHTING—
I'M ON MY WAY TO VISIT HIM, NOW. MAY I TAKE A MESSAGE FROM YOU, HAWKINS

KILLED MATE WITH AX, WOMAN TELLS POLICE

Mother of Three Surrenders and Describes Gruesome Murder of Husband.

ENGLAND, Ark., Feb. 18.—(AP)—Mrs. Verda Walker, 28, surrendered to officers here late today and told them she had killed her husband, Leness Walker, 46, with an ax as he slept at their farm home 10 miles from here.

Mrs. Walker, the mother of three children, and stepmother of two, was quoted by officers as saying she struck her husband three times with the ax and almost severed his head from his body.

Police Chief C. W. Whayne said the woman told him Walker had repeatedly threatened her life and the lives of her children. Only last night, she was quoted as saying, Walker took a razor to bed with him and threatened to kill her. Her entreaties saved her life, she said. An inquest was to be held tonight.

Mrs. Walker said her husband lay down for a nap this afternoon and soon as he was asleep she struck him with the ax.

Then she started walking the 10 miles to England and had gone a short way when she was picked up by a neighbor in an automobile.

She surrendered to Chief Whayne and was held in jail pending the inquest.

McElveen, pastor of the United Congregational church, will have charge of a seminar for the study of industrial justice, unemployment, welfare agencies and prison reform at the meeting of the National Council of Congregational Churches of America in June at Seattle, Wash., it was announced Wednesday.

W. W. Davison, director of religious education for the diocese of Atlanta, will deliver a lecture on the subject of "The Prayer Book" at 7:30 o'clock tonight at St. Philip's cathedral chapter house, 11 Hunter street, S. W. The lectures are in conjunction with a training course for church school teachers, and tonight's talk will deal with "The Services of the Primitive Church."

Hatton B. Rogers, of Atlanta, who was president of a Tampa bank at the time C. N. Schwab, of Cleveland, Ohio, was alleged to have embezzled funds of the institution, testified in Schwab's trial in federal district court in the Florida city Wednesday. Mr. Rogers' testimony was to the effect that Schwab was believed to have "covered up" a shortage of $2,600.

Ivy and Crook, Atlanta architects, Wednesday received bids for construction of the new Emory Junior College dormitory at Valdosta. It was said at the offices of the architects that the bids would not be opened until later and that it is uncertain when the awarding of contracts would be announced.

G. S. Gaillard, freight claim agent of the Central of Georgia railway, will address the Traffic Study Club at its meeting Friday night at 8 o'clock at the Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Gaillard will speak on the subject of "Loss and Damage Claims." A large attendance is expected.

Atlanta School of Oratory and Expression, 402 Wesley Memorial Church building, will present pupils in a "personality program" at 11 o'clock this morning. The program is intended to show how to develop a pleasing personality. The public is invited.

W. R. Massengale, well-known Atlanta advertising man, has been elected chairman of the Southern Council of the American Association of Advertising Agencies, it was learned Wednesday following a meeting of the council in Louisville, Ky. Mr. Massengale for some time has served as secretary-treasurer of the council. As chairman of the council Mr. Massengale automatically becomes a member of the national board of directors.

Atlanta Tuberculosis Association will hold its twenty-third annual meeting at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon at 282 Forrest avenue, N. E. The public is invited.

Dr. Sherman L. Davis, of Georgetown University, Washington, D. C., widely known authority on diet and nutrition, will appear in the second of his series of lectures at 7 o'clock tonight at the Piedmont hotel. The first lecture was delivered Wednesday night, and another will be made Friday.

Atlanta Lodge, No. 78, B. P. O. Elks, will nominate officers and ballot on candidates tonight at 8 o'clock in the Peachtree street home.

J. Gordon Hardy, vice president of the Georgia Elks' Association, will be accompanied by a delegation of Atlanta Elks on his official visit to LaGrange Lodge No. 1084 tonight.

The Right Rev. H. J. Mikell, Episcopal bishop of the diocese of Atlanta, Wednesday was elected chairman of the board of trustees of George Peabody School for Teachers, Nashville, Tenn. Bishop Mikell succeeds James E. Caldwell, Nashville capitalist, who resigned as chairman, but who remains a member of the board.

Russell R. Whitman, president of Whitman & Starr, public relations counsel, has been appointed chairman of the public affairs committee of the Georgia district of Kiwanis, it was announced Wednesday by Fred H. Sned, newly-elected district governor. Other members on the committee are Stanford Arnold, Newnan; LeRoy Michael, Athens; M. Pembroke Cope, Washington; Charles Zelmemowitz, Brunswick; J. T. Mitchell, Bainbridge, and Eugene A. Bailey, Americus.

City Club of Atlanta will hold its weekly meeting at 12:30 o'clock today in Parlor H of the Piedmont hotel, during which the Fulton county school problems will be discussed. A committee of the club has been studying the education situation of the county and at today's meeting it will submit its report, which will be followed by a round table discussion.

Dr. T. C. Davison, president of the Fulton County Medical Society, announced Wednesday that an interesting program has been arranged for the regular meeting of the society at 8 o'clock tonight. Dr. Samuel Stampa will deliver a case report on "Musculo Spiral Paralysis" and Dr. M. G. Campbell will make a clinical talk on "Apoplexy of the Liver."

Judge Edgar E. Pomeroy Wednesday was named to preside over the first criminal division of the Fulton superior court for the March-April term. Judge Pomeroy will charge the new grand jury on the first Monday in March. Judge John D. Humphries will preside over the second division of the court.

An order fixing the minimum price at $1,001,000 was issued and directions for a sale of the Georgia Manganese & Iron Company, of Bartow county, issued in federal district court here Wednesday by Judge William Hale Barrett, of Augusta. Action followed proceedings against the company by the National City bank of New York. Henry B. Troutman, special master, will conduct the sale.

Judge William Hale Barrett, of Augusta, sitting in federal district court here Wednesday refused a new trial plea of the defendants in the government's suit to condemn the Frank T. Pike property, a portion of the Spring-Forsyth-Mitchell-Hunter street site for the new postoffice. A jury last week ordered an award of $75,000 for the Pike property after the owners had contended for $155,000. Attorneys said the case would be taken to the circuit court of appeals.

Ambulance Company, No. 325, organized in Atlanta during the war under Dr. Leo P. Daly, will have its annual reunion at 6:30 o'clock Saturday night, February 21, in the Piedmont hotel. Members of the organization are requested to notify President Wallace W. Rhodes, 883 Boulevard, N. E.

City Salesman's Association will hold its annual banquet at 7:30 o'clock Saturday night, March 6, at the Henry Grady hotel, E. F. (Pat) Johnson, chairman of the entertainment committee, announced Wednesday. Officers will be elected. J. P. Hill is president. Mayor James L. Key will be invited to attend.

The Atlanta Numismatic Society will meet at 8 o'clock tonight in the green room of the Henry Grady hotel, J. J. Gonzales, president, announced. All persons interested and those desiring to have old coins appraised are invited to attend, it was said.

Luke Arnold, executive secretary to Mayor James L. Key, Wednesday was reported recovering from an attack of influenza. He is at the Atlanta hospital.

Mrs. Eula Coleman Wednesday was "pinch hitting" for Luke Arnold as Mayor Key's executive secretary, and Miss Frances Pierce, secretary of the borough planning commission, was holding the post as private secretary to Mr. Key.

William A. Dunlap, acting manager of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce here, will address the school of business administration at Emory University at 9 o'clock this morning.

Two incendiary fires within 20 minutes Wednesday afternoon set police on the trail of a white man seen by J. M. Cowart, of 1545 Westminster avenue, to leave both houses shortly before the fires broke out. Both were vacant houses, one at 510 Jones avenue, and the other at 338 Edwards street, just around the corner. Slight damage was done.

Mrs. P. E. Lineback, of Emory University, left Tuesday morning for Arispe, Iowa, to attend the funeral of her mother, who died unexpectedly February 15.

Friends of Samuel W. Orr will regret to learn of his serious illness at his residence, 328 Ponce de Leon avenue, N. E.

Burglars raiding the Alexander Cafe, 120 Ponce de Leon avenue, after smashing equipment and furnishings, escaped Wednesday with a quantity of canned goods and tobacco. Two men attempting to break into the front door of the Empire Soda Company, Georgia avenue and Crew street, were frightened away by a Georgia Power Company employe whose name was not learned by police.

A clothing store at 289 Peters street, operated by Ben Bressler, was considerably damaged Wednesday night by fire of undetermined origin, according to reports at headquarters.

HAM LEWIS FORGETS CAWNPONE ETIQUET

Senator Too Long From Georgia To Have Opinion, He Says.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 18.—(AP)—J. Hamilton Lewis would not talk about potlikker tonight. Nineteen thirty-two, war debts, the return of taxes to the people—they were the subjects for Illinois' democratic senator-elect.

Twilight had darkened his hotel room, and the grey whiskers, once a famous pink, were dim beneath auburn hair. Two spatted ankles rested on a foot stool.

"Senator, do you dunk, or do you crumble?" opened the interview. What to do with bread and potlikker has become an issue in the south.

The words hung in the darkness, unanswered for a moment. Then a hand waved deprecatingly.

"Ah, my boy, I have been away from Georgia for a long time. Those things, such matters—I do not remember."

It has been a long time. Since he left Georgia he has been elected to congress from two states, Washington and Illinois, and is going back from Illinois next March.

Dunking and potlikker were shoved aside for national issues and the ways of lawyers. Lewis is here to wind up some law business before entering the senate.

Words shot out from his corner.

"Damnable"—the piling up of public moneys in the federal treasury.

"Artful"—the ways of some politicians, of President Hoover in particular.

With them would come the whiskers, the auburn hair, the carefully adjusted waistcoat, leaning forward to emphasize three points:

1.—That income tax proceeds, in excess of the federal government's immediate needs, should be returned proportionately to the states.

2.—That the World War cost would be borne by the next generation, through the suspension of payment on the principal of war bonds, while the interest is paid regularly.

3.—That war debts owed this country should be suspended for a generation, "to enable them to buy our goods now."

One gathered that these beliefs may be heard from in the next congress, and in the 1932 nominating conventions.

ROOSEVELT CLUB IS ORGANIZED HERE

The Atlanta Roosevelt-for-President Club was organized Wednesday night at a meeting held in the ballroom of the Kimball House, under the auspices of the Roosevelt Southern Club, with approximately 75 Roosevelt enthusiasts attending, it was reported.

J. P. Wall, chairman of the city democratic executive committee, was elected president of the new organization. Other officers are Walter E. Gallagher, vice president; B. T. Ashley, treasurer; C. W. Rountree, secretary, and W. R. Johnson, sergeant-at-arms. Dr. Horace Grant was appointed as a member of the central executive committee of the Roosevelt Southern Clubs. The next meeting is scheduled for March 5, in the Kimball House, officers announced.

DANIELS AND SON DIFFER ON ISSUE

RALEIGH, N. C., Feb. 18.—(AP)—Josephus Daniels, veteran editor of The Raleigh News and Observer, and his youngest son, Frank Daniels, business manager, were on opposing sides today in a debate before the senate welfare committee on the "newsboys'" bill before the North Carolina general assembly.

The former navy secretary opposed a proposed change in the law to allow boys between 14 and 16 to deliver newspapers starting at 5 o'clock in the morning and continuing until 8 p. m. The present law permits them to begin work at 6 a. m.

Frank Daniels spoke in favor of the change, declaring it would not hurt boys to deliver papers as early as 5 a. m., and as late as 8 p. m. He said they would work only two hours each day and there would be no interference with their school work.

The elder Daniels said he had worked too long for child welfare laws to see them weakened in any form and he thought the proposed measure granted special privileges to newspapers.

BETTY COMPTON NOW MRS. EDDIE DOWLING

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—(AP)—The Daily News says Betty Compton, musical comedy star, and Eddie Dowling, youthful employe of a motion picture company, were married secretly recently. The wedding was disclosed today when they sailed for a honeymoon in Havana.

Booking their suite under the names Mr. and Mrs. Edwards, they announced they had married earlier in the week. They were recognized by persons on the pier.

Miss Compton starred in "Fifty Million Frenchmen." Her husband is employed in the dialog department of the Paramount studios here.

HYDE IS AROUSED BY SEED LOAN FEE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Secretary Hyde has dispatched an official of the seed loan bureau to investigate a protest by Senator Barkley, democrat, Kentucky, that a fee of $5 for clerical work was charged farmers for filling out application blanks for crop production loans.

While the secretary said that he had "jumped all over them instanter" the moment he received the protest while on a mid-western trip from which he returned today, he was positive that no official of the department or any member of a local seed loan committee has charged such fees.

MINISTER-ABDUCTOR STARTS JAIL TERMS

ALTON, Ill., Feb. 18.—(AP)—The Rev. Alonzo L. Shoemaker, 38, former pastor of a Pentecostal church here, was taken to Chester, Ill., penitentiary today to serve an indeterminate sentence of one to ten years for the abduction of a 19-year-old former choir girl in his church.

He was convicted of abduction after he took Miss Bernice Ford, a choir girl, on a trip to Missouri, registering at a hotel as "man and wife."

Thousand-Dollar Dog Given Rescue League

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—(AP)—A thousand-dollar dog followed a woman home here Monday and she, unwittingly, turned it over to the Animal Rescue League.

It was Nicolai, a huge, white Russian wolfhound which belonged to Gloria Sacasa, the 12-year-old daughter of the Nicaraguan minister.

The dog was returned to her today. It had been given her a year ago by Senora Rosa Salinas De La Barra, wife of the first secretary of the Bolivian legation.

OSCAR STRAUSS AD CLUB SPEAKER

Oscar Strauss, sales promotion manager of Rich's, Inc., will speak on "Problems of an Advertising Department During 1931," at the luncheon in the civic room of the Ansley hotel.

Mr. Strauss, closely identified with one of the largest retail establishments in the city, has kept his fingers on the pulse of local retail sales and has made a real study of merchandising, advertising and selling. A large attendance of members is expected. Herbert Porter is president of the club, and Claude Grizzard, Jr., is secretary-treasurer.

L. O. Moseley, manager of the Ansley, announced that the menu will include fried spring chicken, yams, mixed greens, chow-chow pickle, jellied consomme, cream cold slaw, ice cream and coffee. In addition, each person will find by his plate a bag of fresh salted peanuts through the courtesy of C. O. Barrett, president of the Barrett Food Products Company, Inc., as a reminder of the excellence of Georgia peanuts.

NOTE: The plane to New York, scheduled to leave at 11:45 p. m.; the plane to Chicago, scheduled to depart at midnight, the late plane from New York, scheduled to arrive at 11:10 p. m., and the late plane from Miami, scheduled to arrive here about midnight, are not listed in the above table.

The famous St. Louis Robin, in which Dale "Red" Jackson and Forest O'Brine established their first refueling-in-air endurance record of 420 hours, is in town, and will remain here through Sunday. Now owned by the Gulf Refining Company, the Challenger-powered Robin was flown to Atlanta by W. L. Case, who began an extensive tour of the company's territory on October 26, from Pittsburgh. During the succeeding four months, Case has gone through Texas and into every state east of the Mississippi river except the Carolinas and other Atlantic seaboard states. Leaving here Sunday, Case will fly to Augusta for a few days' visit and then head back for Pittsburgh, planning to arrive there early in April. He is keeping his ship here at the Blevins Aircraft Corporation hangar.

Case landed at Candler field Wednesday afternoon from Macon, with two passengers, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Wheeler, who came along "for the ride." Mr. Wheeler is a prominent Macon lumber operative and an aviation enthusiast. Case, who has been flying for the Gulf people for about a year, has had rather an interesting career in the air. He learned to fly in the fall of 1917, when, at the age of 18, he joined the Royal Flying Corps in Canada. He stayed in the service for some time after the war and then flew for the Wright Aero Corporation and tested Moths for Curtiss-Wright at Lowell, Mass. He also was connected for a short time with Wedell-Williams Airlines, at New Orleans.

Council and the aldermanic board saw the light Wednesday afternoon and responded to an impassioned appeal by Councilman Joseph E. Berman, chairman of the aviation committee, by authorizing immediate advertising for bids on Candler field's sorely needed lighting equipment. The facilities, which will completely revamp the airport's electrical system, will cost in the neighborhood of $6,500. Under specifications drawn up by J. H. Gray, airport manager, a Sperry automatic remote-control floodlight will be installed at the southeastern corner of the field.

Chairman Berman made his appeal for acceptance of the recommendations in the interest of pilots forced to land at the field after dark and for the sake of Candler field's rating with the department of commerce. Council's action followed an attack by Berman on failure of the aldermanic board Monday afternoon to approve recommendations which had received the approval of the aviation committee and of Clarke Donaldson, chief of construction. Mayor Key signed the measure immediately after its passage and the new airport lighting arrangement should be installed and in operation inside of two months.

New Equipment for the Atlanta-Chicago and Atlanta-New Orleans routes now operated exclusively for air mail-carrying by American Airways, Inc., will be in operation within two months, as the company has bought 45 new nine-place Fairchild cabin planes and 20 J-6 "nine" Stearman mail ships. The new Fairchild, which is powered with a Wright Cyclone of 525 horsepower, is said to represent a radical departure in design from any plane ever turned out at the Farmingdale plant and to be a splendid performer. Rigged to carry a pay load of about one-third of its gross weight, the ship is said to attain a top speed of 140 miles an hour and a cruising speed of about 125.

The new Fairchild, which is expected to be put into service between here and Chicago as soon as the government's work on intermediate fields is completed, provides a unique cockpit arrangement—fitted for two pilots—which is said to give more complete vision than ever before attained in a closed job. It is understood that 25 of the planes will be sent to this division. The new Stearmans, 20 of which probably will be sent here for the New Orleans line and the night Chicago mail, will carry in the neighborhood of 750 pounds, against the 440-pound capacity of the lines' present J-5 Stearmans and Travel Airs.

In addition to the St. Louis Robin, two other visiting planes were recorded at the airport Wednesday. Lieutenant Commander T. E. Wagner, who passed through a few days ago in a Vought OZUS, new Hornet-powered observation job, on a flight from Washington to Pensacola, stopped over last night on the return trip. Accompanied by Captain Larimer, he will resume the journey this morning. Art Rigsby, flying a three-place J-5 Travel Air from Miami to Cincinnati, landed for fuel. R. W. Morris and Miss F. Driscoll were going along as passengers. Both these ships were serviced at the Curtiss-Wright hangar.

Government Faces Heaviest Financing Since World War

BY CECIL OWEN.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—(UP) Facing a deficit estimated officially at $500,000,000, the treasury has in prospect over the next three years the heaviest government financing since World War days.

Starting next month when it plans an issue aggregating $1,600,000,000 the treasury has callable over the next 31 months other large blocks of outstanding Liberty bonds and short term securities totaling about $5,000,000,000.

Regardless of the size of this fiscal year's deficit, the treasury has given assurances it plans no proposals to congress for an increase in 1931 taxes. It will borrow to meet this year's deficit, and prospects are there will be a small tax increase next year, although the treasury has not yet committed itself on this point.

Of the securities to be issued March 15, $1,100,000,000 will be a refunding operation to replace outstanding securities coming due with new issues at lower interest rates. The other $500,000,000 would be new money to meet requirements of the veterans' loan bill if enacted into law.

Another $400,000,000 would be needed in June to care further for the anticipated needs of the veterans' certificates. This will mean an increase this year in the outstanding $16,000,000,000 public debt.

The treasury obtained authority from congress this session to issue as much as $8,000,000,000 in new government bonds in connection with its refinancing operations of the next two years.

Virtually all of this will be merely replacing outstanding government bonds with new bonds, and will take no new money from the market.

Treasury officials estimate the cost of the veterans' bonus bill at between $700,000,000 and $1,000,000,000. Under their plan of meeting this sum in two installments in connection with the regular March and June quarterly financing, it is not expected it will greatly disturb the bond market.

Most government bonds are bought by the larger banking institutions of the nation, which at present, have on hand ample idle funds that would ordinarily be absorbed by business. The market for government bonds has been excellent despite a general depressed condition of all security markets.

Sixteen months from now in June, 1932, the $1,933,000,000 of first Liberty loan bonds become callable. Of this more than a third bears the high interest rate of 4 1-2 per cent. In October, 1933, $6,268,000,000 of Fourth Liberty loan 4 1-2 per cent bonds become callable.

With this huge block of government bonds coming due in 1933, the treasury is planning to undertake a large refinancing operation in that year which will refund part of the outstanding Liberty loan bonds. Otherwise, the entire $6,268,000,000 would mature in 1938.

Ogden L. Mills, undersecretary of the treasury, told the senate finance committee today that the existing $2,800,000,000 short term debt was too large, so the treasury is faced with the necessity of important refunding operations immediately as well as over the next three years.

TWO WOMEN LOSE PURSES TO THIEF

Purses carried by Mrs. D. H. Mays and Mrs. Helen Edmonds, both of 826 Peachtree street, were snatched simultaneously Wednesday night at Peachtree and Fifth streets by a young, shabbily dressed white man, who ran down Fifth street and made his escape, according to police reports.

The two women were walking along Peachtree towards their home when the youth, standing on the corner as though waiting for a street car, turned suddenly, seized a purse in each hand, and fled. Mrs. Mays told police that her purse contained $10 in cash and a new pair of glasses valued at $20. Mrs. Edmonds' purse, though it contained only about $5, was unusually valuable, she said, having cost her $35. They gave police a description of the thief.
